5:3 Cf. Gal 3:10–12. Just as those who seek to live by the law must carry out all its contents, so those who have faith and live by promise must stand firm in their freedom (Gal 5:1, 13).

5:6 Cf. Rom 2:25–26; 1 Cor 7:19; Gal 6:15. The Greek for faith working through love or “faith expressing itself through love” can also be rendered as “faith energized by (God’s) love.”

5:7–12 Paul addresses the Galatians directly: with questions (Gal 5:7, 11), a proverb (Gal 5:9), a statement (Gal 5:8), and biting sarcasm (Gal 5:12), seeking to persuade the Galatians to break with those trying to add law and circumcision to Christ as a basis for salvation.

5:7 Running well: as in an athletic contest; cf. Gal 2:2; 1 Cor 9:24–26; Phil 2:16; 3:14.

5:8 The one who called you: see note on Gal 1:6.

5:11 Preaching circumcision: this could refer to Paul’s pre-Christian period (possibly as a missionary for Judaism); more probably it arose as a charge from opponents, based perhaps on the story in Acts 16:1–3 that Paul had circumcised Timothy “on account of the Jews.” Unlike the Gentile Titus in Gal 2:3. Timothy was the son of a Jewish mother. The stumbling block of the cross: cf. 1 Cor 1:23.

5:12 A sarcastic half-wish that their knife would go beyond mere circumcision; cf. Phil 3:2 and the note there.

5:13–26 In light of another reminder of the freedom of the gospel (Gal 5:13; cf. Gal 5:1), Paul elaborates on what believers are called to do and be: they fulfill the law by love of neighbor (Gal 5:14–15), walking in the Spirit (Gal 5:16–26), as is illustrated by concrete fruit of the Spirit in their lives.

5:13 Serve... through love: cf. Gal 5:6.

5:14 Lv 19:18, emphasized by Jesus (Mt 22:39; Lk 10:27); cf. Rom 13:8–10.

5:16–25 Spirit... flesh: cf. Gal 3:3 and the note on Rom 8:1–13.

5:19–23 Such lists of vices and virtues (cf. Rom 1:29–31; 1 Cor 6:9–10) were common in the ancient world. Paul contrasts works of the flesh (Gal 5:19) with fruit (not “works”) of the Spirit (Gal 5:22). Not law, but the Spirit, leads to such traits.

5:21 Occasions of envy: after the Greek word phthonoi, “envies,” some manuscripts add a similar sounding one, phonoï, “murders.”

6:1–10 The ethical exhortations begun at Gal 5:1 continue with a variety of admonitions to the community (brothers: see note on Gal 1:2). Nearly every sentence contains a separate item of practical advice; the faith and freedom of the gospel underlie each maxim. Tensions and temptation within communal life have previously been addressed in Gal 5:15, 26 and Gal 6:1 continues with a case in which a person is caught in some transgression such as those in Gal 5:19–21; cf. Gal 2:17.

6:2 The law of Christ: cf. Rom 8:2; 1 Cor 9:21; Gal 5:14. The principle of love for others is meant. To bear one another's burdens is to "serve one another through love" (Gal 5:13).

6:4–5 Self-examination is the cure for self-deception. Compare what you are with what you were before, and give the glory to God; cf. Rom 6:19–22. Load: used elsewhere of a soldier's pack. Correcting one's own conduct avoids burdening others with it.

6:6 Implies oral instruction in the faith by catechists; these are to be remunerated for their service; cf. Rom 15:27.

6:10 The family of the faith: the Christian household or church. Doing good has a universal object (to all), but the local community makes specific the reality of those to be served.

6:11–18 A postscript in Paul's own hand, as was his practice (see 1 Cor 16:21; 2 Thes 3:17). Paul summarizes his appeal against his opponents (Gal 6:12–13), then returns to his message of glorying in the cross, not in circumcision, as the means of salvation (Gal 6:14–15; cf. Gal 5:11). Abenediction follows at Gal 6:16. In the polemical spirit that the attack on his apostleship called forth (Gal 1:11–2:21), Paul reasserts his missionary credentials (Gal 6:17) before giving a final benediction (Gal 6:18).

6:11 Large letters: in contrast to the finer hand of the scribe who wrote the letter up to this point. The larger Greek letters make Paul's message even more emphatic. Some find a hint of poor eyesight on Paul's part. See note on Gal 4:13.

6:12–15 The Jewish Christian opponents wished not to be persecuted, possibly by Jews. But since Judaism seems to have had a privileged status as a religion in the Roman empire, circumcised Christians might, if taken as Jews, thereby avoid persecution from the Romans. In any case, Paul instead stresses conformity with the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ; cf. Gal 2:19–21; 5:11.

6:13 Those having themselves circumcised: other manuscripts read, "those who have had themselves circumcised."

6:14 Through which: or "through whom."

6:15 New creation: or "new creature"; cf. 2 Cor 5:17.

6:16 This rule: the principle in Gal 6:14–15. The Israel of God: while the church may be meant (the phrase can be translated "to all who follow this rule, even the Israel of God"; cf. Gal 6:10; 1 Cor 10:18), the reference may also be to God's ancient people, Israel; cf. Ps 125:5; 128:6.

6:17 The marks of Jesus: slaves were often branded by marks (stigmata) burned into their flesh to show to whom they belonged; so also were devotees of pagan gods. Paul implies that instead of outdated circumcision, his body bears the scars of his apostolic labors (2 Cor 11:22–31), such as floggings (Acts 16:22; 2 Cor 11:25) and stonings (Acts 14:19), that mark him as belonging to the Christ who suffered (cf. Rom 6:3; 2 Cor 4:10; Col 1:24) and will protect his own.

The Letter to the Ephesians

1 2 3 4 5 6

See RG 520–23

Ephesians is the great Pauline letter about the church. It deals, however, not so much with a congregation in the city of Ephesus in Asia Minor as with the worldwide church, the head of which is Christ (Eph 4:15), the purpose of which is to be the instrument for making God's plan of salvation known throughout the universe (Eph 3:9–10). Yet this ecclesiology is anchored in God's saving love, shown in Jesus Christ (Eph 2:4–10), and the whole of redemption is rooted in the plan and accomplishment of the triune God (Eph 1:3–14). The language is often that of doxology (Eph 1:3–14) and prayer (cf. Eph 1:15–23; 3:14–19), indeed of liturgy and hymns (Eph 3:20–21; 5:14).

The majestic chapters of Ephesians emphasize the unity in the church of Christ that has come about for both Jews and Gentiles within God's household (Eph 1:15–2:22, especially Eph 2:11–22) and indeed the “seven unities” of church, Spirit, hope; one Lord, faith, and baptism; and the one God (Eph 4:4–6). Yet the concern is not with the church for its own sake but rather as the means for mission in the world (Eph 3:1–4:24). The gifts Christ gives its members are to lead to growth and renewal (Eph 4:7–24). Ethical admonition is not lacking either; all aspects of human life and relationships are illumined by the light of Christ (Eph 4:25–6:20).

The letter is seemingly addressed by Paul to Christians in Ephesus (Eph 1:1), a place where the apostle labored for well over two years (Acts 19:10). Yet there is a curiously impersonal tone to the writing for a community with which Paul was so intimately acquainted (cf. Eph 3:2 and Eph 4:21). There are no personal greetings (cf. Eph 6:23). More significantly, important early manuscripts omit the words “in Ephesus” (see note on Eph 1:1). Many therefore regard the letter as an encyclical or “circular letter” sent to a number of churches in Asia Minor, the addressees to be designated in each place by its bearer, Tychicus (Eph 6:21–22). Others think that Ephesians is the letter referred to in Col 4:16 as “to the Laodiceans.”

Paul, who is designated as the sole author at Eph 1:1, is described in almost unparalleled terms with regard to the significant role he has in God’s plan for bringing the Gentiles to faith in Christ (Eph 3:1–12). Yet at the time of writing he is clearly in prison (Eph 3:1; 4:1; 6:20), suffering afflictions (Eph 3:13). Traditionally this “Captivity Epistle” has, along with Colossians, Philippians, and Philemon, been dated to an imprisonment in Rome, likely in A.D. 61–63. Others appeal to an earlier imprisonment, perhaps in Caesarea (Acts 23:27–27:2). Since the early nineteenth century, however, much of critical scholarship has considered the letter’s style and use of words (especially when compared with Colossians), its concept of the church, and other points of doctrine put forward by the writer as grounds for serious doubt about authorship by Paul. The letter may then be the work of a secretary writing at the apostle’s direction or of a later disciple who sought to develop Paul’s ideas for a new situation around A.D. 80–100.

The principal divisions of the Letter to the Ephesians are the following:

- I. Address (1:1–14)
- II. Unity of the Church in Christ (1:15–2:22)
- III. World Mission of the Church (3:1–4:24)
- IV. Daily Conduct, an Expression of Unity (4:25–6:20)
- V. Conclusion (6:21–24)

I. ADDRESS

CHAPTER 1

See RG 520–23

Greeting. <sup>1a*</sup>Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, to the holy ones who are [in Ephesus] faithful in Christ Jesus: <sup>2b</sup>grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Father's Plan of Salvation. <sup>3c*</sup>Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us in Christ with every spiritual blessing in the heavens, <sup>4d</sup>as he chose us in him, before the foundation of the world, to be holy and without blemish before him. In love <sup>5e</sup>he destined us for adoption to himself through Jesus Christ, in accord with the favor of his will, <sup>6f</sup>for the praise of the glory of his grace that he granted us in the beloved.

Fulfillment Through Christ. <sup>7g</sup>In him we have redemption by his blood, the forgiveness of transgressions, in accord with the riches of his grace <sup>8h</sup>that he lavished upon us. In all wisdom and insight, <sup>9i*</sup>he has made known to us the mystery of his will in accord with his favor that he set forth in him <sup>10j</sup>as a plan for the fullness of times, to sum up all things in Christ, in heaven and on earth.

Inheritance Through the Spirit. <sup>11k</sup>In him we were also chosen, destined in accord with the purpose of the One who accomplishes all things according to the intention of his will, <sup>12*</sup>so that we might exist for the praise of his glory, we who first hoped in Christ. <sup>13l *</sup>In him you also, who have heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation, and have believed in him, were sealed with the promised holy Spirit, <sup>14m*</sup>which is the first installment of our inheritance toward redemption as God's possession, to the praise of his glory.

II. UNITY OF THE CHURCH IN CHRIST

The Church as Christ's Body. <sup>15n*</sup>Therefore, I, too, hearing of your faith in the Lord Jesus and of your love for all the holy ones, <sup>16o</sup>do not cease giving thanks for you, remembering you in my prayers, <sup>17p</sup>that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give you a spirit of wisdom and revelation resulting in knowledge of him. <sup>18</sup> <sup>q</sup>May the eyes of [your] hearts be enlightened, that you may know what is the hope that belongs to his call, what are the riches of glory in his inheritance among the holy ones, <sup>19</sup> <sup>r</sup>and what is the surpassing greatness of his power for us who believe, in accord with the exercise of his great might, <sup>20</sup> <sup>s</sup>which he worked in Christ, raising him from the dead and seating him at his right hand in the heavens, <sup>21</sup> <sup>t</sup>far above every principality, authority, power, and dominion, and every name that is named not only in this age but also in the one to come. <sup>22</sup> <sup>u</sup>And he put all things beneath his feet and gave him as head over all things to the church, <sup>23</sup> <sup>v*</sup>which is his body, the fullness of the one who fills all things in every way.

CHAPTER 2

Generosity of God's Plan. <sup>1w*</sup>You were dead in your transgressions and sins <sup>2x*</sup>in which you once lived following the age of this world, following the ruler of the power of the air, the spirit that is now at work in the disobedient. <sup>3y</sup>All of us once lived among them in the desires of our flesh, following the wishes of the flesh and the impulses, and we were by nature children of wrath, like the rest. <sup>4</sup>But God, who is rich in mercy, because of the great love he had for us, <sup>5z*</sup>even when we were dead in our transgressions, brought us to life with Christ (by grace you have been saved), <sup>6a</sup>raised us up with him, and seated us with him in the heavens in Christ Jesus, <sup>7b</sup>that in the ages to come he might show the immeasurable riches of his grace in his kindness to us in Christ Jesus. <sup>8c</sup>For by grace you have been saved through faith, and this is not from you; it is the gift of God; <sup>9d</sup>it is not from works, so no one may boast. <sup>10e</sup>For we are his handiwork, created in Christ Jesus for the good works that God has prepared in advance, that we should live in them.

One in Christ. <sup>11*</sup>Therefore, remember that at one time you, Gentiles in the flesh, called the uncircumcision by those called the circumcision, which is done in the flesh by human hands, <sup>12f*</sup>were at that time without Christ, alienated from the community of Israel and strangers to the covenants of promise, without hope and without God in the world. <sup>13g</sup>But now in Christ Jesus you who once were far off have become near by the blood of Christ.

<sup>14h*</sup>For he is our peace, he who made both one and broke down the dividing wall of enmity, through his flesh, <sup>15i*</sup>abolishing the law with its commandments and legal claims, that he might create in himself one new person in place of the two, thus establishing peace, <sup>16j</sup>and might reconcile both with God, in one body, through the cross, putting that enmity to death by it. <sup>17k</sup>He came and preached peace to you who were far off and peace to those who were near, <sup>18l</sup>for through him we both have access in one Spirit to the Father.

<sup>19m</sup>So then you are no longer strangers and sojourners, but you are fellow citizens with the holy ones and members of the household of God, <sup>20n*</sup>built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, with Christ Jesus himself as the capstone. <sup>21</sup>*o*Through him the whole structure is held together and grows into a temple sacred in the Lord; <sup>22</sup> *p*in him you also are being built together into a dwelling place of God in the Spirit.

III. WORLD MISSION OF THE CHURCH

CHAPTER 3

See RG 520–23

Commission to Preach God's Plan. <sup>1q*</sup>Because of this, I, Paul, a prisoner of Christ [Jesus] for you Gentiles— <sup>2r*</sup>if, as I suppose, you have heard of the stewardship of God's grace that was given to me for your benefit, <sup>3s*</sup>[namely, that] the mystery was made known to me by revelation, as I have written briefly earlier. <sup>4</sup>When you read this you can understand my insight into the mystery of Christ, <sup>5t</sup>which was not made known to human beings in other generations as it has now been revealed to his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit, <sup>6u</sup>that the Gentiles are coheirs, members of the same body, and copartners in the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel.

<sup>7v</sup>Of this I became a minister by the gift of God's grace that was granted me in accord with the exercise of his power. <sup>8w</sup>To me, the very least of all the holy ones, this grace was given, to preach to the Gentiles the inscrutable riches of Christ, <sup>9x*</sup>and to bring to light [for all] what is the plan of the mystery hidden from ages past in God who created all things, <sup>10y*</sup>so that the manifold wisdom of God might now be made known through the church to the principalities and authorities in the heavens. <sup>11</sup> This was according to the eternal purpose that he accomplished in Christ Jesus our Lord, <sup>12z</sup>in whom we have boldness of speech and confidence of access through faith in him. <sup>13a</sup>So I ask you not to lose heart over my afflictions for you; this is your glory.

Prayer for the Readers. <sup>14*</sup>For this reason I kneel before the Father, <sup>15</sup>from whom every family in heaven and on earth is named, <sup>16b</sup>that he may grant you in accord with the riches of his glory to be strengthened with power through his Spirit in the inner self, <sup>17c</sup>and that Christ may dwell in your hearts through faith; that you, rooted and grounded in love, <sup>18d</sup>may have strength to comprehend with all the holy ones what is the breadth and length and height and depth, <sup>19e</sup>and to know the love of Christ that surpasses knowledge, so that you may be filled with all the fullness of God.

<sup>20f</sup>Now to him who is able to accomplish far more than all we ask or imagine, by the power at work within us, <sup>21</sup> to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus to all generations, forever and ever. Amen.

CHAPTER 4

Unity in the Body. <sup>1g*</sup>I, then, a prisoner for the Lord, urge you to live in a manner worthy of the call you have received, <sup>2h</sup>with all humility and gentleness, with patience, bearing with one another through love, <sup>3i</sup>striving to preserve the unity of the spirit through the bond of peace: <sup>4j*</sup>one body and one Spirit, as you were also called to the one hope of your call; <sup>5k</sup>one Lord, one faith, one baptism; <sup>6l</sup>one God and Father of all, who is over all and through all and in all.

Diversity of Gifts. <sup>7m</sup>But grace was given to each of us according to the measure of Christ's gift. <sup>8n*</sup>Therefore, it says:

“He ascended on high and took prisoners captive;
he gave gifts to men.”

<sup>9</sup>What does “he ascended” mean except that he also descended into the lower [regions] of the earth? <sup>10</sup>The one who descended is also the one who ascended far above all the heavens, that he might fill all things.

<sup>11o*</sup>And he gave some as apostles, others as prophets, others as evangelists, others as pastors and teachers, <sup>12*</sup>to equip the holy ones for the work of ministry, for building up the body of Christ, <sup>13p*</sup>until we all attain to the unity of faith and knowledge of the Son of God, to mature manhood, to the extent of the full stature of Christ, <sup>14q</sup>so that we may no longer be infants, tossed by waves and swept along by every wind of teaching arising from human trickery, from their cunning in the interests of deceitful scheming. <sup>15r*</sup>Rather, living the truth in love, we should grow in every way into him who is the head, Christ, <sup>16s</sup>from whom the whole body, joined and held together by every supporting ligament, with the proper functioning of each part, brings about the body's growth and builds itself up in love.

Renewal in Christ. <sup>17t*</sup>So I declare and testify in the Lord that you must no longer live as the Gentiles do, in the futility of their minds; <sup>18u</sup>darkened in understanding, alienated from the life of God because of their ignorance, because of their hardness of heart, <sup>19v</sup>they have become callous and have handed themselves over to licentiousness for the practice of every kind of impurity to excess. <sup>20</sup>That is not how you learned Christ, <sup>21</sup> assuming that you have heard of him and were taught in him, as truth is in Jesus, <sup>22w</sup>that you should put away the old self of your former way of life, corrupted through deceitful desires, <sup>23x</sup>and be renewed in the spirit of your minds, <sup>24y*</sup>and put on the new self, created in God's way in righteousness and holiness of truth.

IV. DAILY CONDUCT, AN EXPRESSION OF UNITY

Rules for the New Life. <sup>25z*</sup>Therefore, putting away falsehood, speak the truth, each one to his neighbor, for we are members one of another. <sup>26a*</sup>Be angry but do not sin; do not let the sun set on your anger, <sup>27 b</sup> and do not leave room for the devil. <sup>28c*</sup>The thief must no longer steal, but rather labor, doing honest work with his [own] hands, so that he may have something to share with one in need. <sup>29d</sup>No foul language should come out of your mouths, but only such as is good for needed edification, that it may impart grace to those who hear. <sup>30 *</sup>And do not grieve the holy Spirit of God, with which you were sealed for the day of redemption. <sup>31e</sup>All bitterness, fury, anger, shouting, and reviling must be removed from you, along with all malice. <sup>32f</sup> [And] be kind to one another, compassionate, forgiving one another as God has forgiven you in Christ.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1g*</sup> So be imitators of God, as beloved children, <sup>2h</sup> and live in love, as Christ loved us and handed himself over for us as a sacrificial offering to God for a fragrant aroma. <sup>3i</sup> Immorality or any impurity or greed must not even be mentioned among you, as is fitting among holy ones, <sup>4j</sup> no obscenity or silly or suggestive talk, which is out of place, but instead, thanksgiving. <sup>5k</sup> Be sure of this, that no immoral or impure or greedy person, that is, an idolater, has any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God.

Duty to Live in the Light. <sup>6 l*</sup> Let no one deceive you with empty arguments, for because of these things the wrath of God is coming upon the disobedient. <sup>7</sup> So do not be associated with them. <sup>8m</sup> For you were once darkness, but now you are light in the Lord. Live as children of light, <sup>9n</sup> for light produces every kind of goodness and righteousness and truth. <sup>10o</sup> Try to learn what is pleasing to the Lord. <sup>11 p</sup> Take no part in the fruitless works of darkness; rather expose them, <sup>12f</sup> for it is shameful even to mention the things done by them in secret; <sup>13q</sup> but everything exposed by the light becomes visible, <sup>14r*</sup> for everything that becomes visible is light. Therefore, it says:

“Awake, O sleeper,
and Christ will give you light.”

Wives and Husbands. <sup>21w*</sup> Be subordinate to one another out of reverence for Christ. <sup>22x</sup> Wives should be subordinate to their husbands as to the Lord. <sup>23y</sup> For the husband is head of his wife just as Christ is head of the church, he himself the savior of the body. <sup>24</sup>As the church is subordinate to Christ, so wives should be subordinate to their husbands in everything. <sup>25z</sup>Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ loved the church and handed himself over for her <sup>26a</sup>to sanctify her, cleansing her by the bath of water with the word, <sup>27b</sup>that he might present to himself the church in splendor, without spot or wrinkle or any such thing, that she might be holy and without blemish. <sup>28</sup>So [also] husbands should love their wives as their own bodies. He who loves his wife loves himself. <sup>29</sup>For no one hates his own flesh but rather nourishes and cherishes it, even as Christ does the church, <sup>30c</sup>because we are members of his body.

and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh.”

<sup>32e</sup>This is a great mystery, but I speak in reference to Christ and the church.
<sup>33</sup>In any case, each one of you should love his wife as himself, and the wife should respect her husband.

CHAPTER 6

Children and Parents. <sup>1f</sup>Children, obey your parents [in the Lord], for this is right. <sup>2g</sup>“Honor your father and mother.” This is the first commandment with a promise, <sup>3</sup>“that it may go well with you and that you may have a long life on earth.” <sup>4h</sup>Fathers, do not provoke your children to anger, but bring them up with the training and instruction of the Lord.

Slaves and Masters. <sup>5i</sup>Slaves, be obedient to your human masters with fear and trembling, in sincerity of heart, as to Christ, <sup>6j</sup>not only when being watched, as currying favor, but as slaves of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart, <sup>7</sup>willingly serving the Lord and not human beings, <sup>8</sup>knowing that each will be requited from the Lord for whatever good he does, whether he is slave or free. <sup>9k</sup>Masters, act in the same way toward them, and stop bullying, knowing that both they and you have a Master in heaven and that with him there is no partiality.

Battle Against Evil. <sup>10*</sup>Finally, draw your strength from the Lord and from his mighty power. <sup>11 l</sup>Put on the armor of God so that you may be able to stand firm against the tactics of the devil. <sup>12m</sup>For our struggle is not with flesh and blood but with the principalities, with the powers, with the world rulers of this present darkness, with the evil spirits in the heavens. <sup>13n</sup>Therefore, put on the armor of God, that you may be able to resist on the evil day and, having done everything, to hold your ground. <sup>14o</sup>So stand fast with your loins girded in truth, clothed with righteousness as a breastplate, <sup>15p</sup>and your feet shod in readiness for the gospel of peace. <sup>16q</sup>In all circumstances, hold faith as a shield, to quench all [the] flaming arrows of the evil one. <sup>17r</sup>And take the helmet of salvation and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

Constant Prayer. <sup>18s</sup>With all prayer and supplication, pray at every opportunity in the Spirit. To that end, be watchful with all perseverance and supplication for all the holy ones <sup>19t</sup>and also for me, that speech may be given me to open my mouth, to make known with boldness the mystery of the gospel <sup>20u</sup>for which I am an ambassador in chains, so that I may have the courage to speak as I must.

V. CONCLUSION

A Final Message. <sup>21v*</sup> So that you also may have news of me and of what I am doing, Tychicus, my beloved brother and trustworthy minister in the Lord, will tell you everything. <sup>22w</sup> I am sending him to you for this very purpose, so that you may know about us and that he may encourage your hearts.

<sup>23</sup> Peace be to the brothers, and love with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>24x</sup> Grace be with all who love our Lord Jesus Christ in immortality.

1:1–2 For the epistolary form used at the beginning of letters, see note on Rom 1:1–7. Twenty-two of the thirty Greek words in Eph 1:1–2 also occur in Col 1:1–2.

1:1 [In Ephesus]: the phrase is lacking in important early witnesses such as P<sup>46</sup> (3rd cent.), and Sinaiticus and Vaticanus (4th cent.), appearing in the latter two as a fifth-century addition. Basil and Origen mention its absence from manuscripts. See Introduction. Without the phrase, the Greek can be rendered, as in Col 1:2, “to the holy ones and faithful brothers in Christ.”

1:3–14 While a Pauline letter usually continues after the greeting with a prayer of thanksgiving, as in Eph 1:15–23 below, Ephesians first inserts a blessing of God for the blessings Christians have experienced, as in 2 Cor 1:3–4 and 1 Pt 1:3–12. The blessing here, akin to a Jewish berakah, is rich in images almost certainly drawn from hymns and liturgy. Many ideas here are also found in Col 1:3–23. Certain phrases are frequently repeated, such as in Christ (Eph 1:3, 10, 12) or in him (Eph 1:4, 7, 9, 11, 13) or in the beloved (Eph 1:6) and (for) the praise of (his) glory (Eph 1:6, 12, 14). Some terms like chose (Eph 1:4) and destined (Eph 1:5) reflect Old Testament theology (Dt 7:7; 9:4–6; 23:5) or Pauline themes (redemption, Eph 1:7, 14; grace, Eph 1:6, 7) or specific emphases in Colossians (forgiveness, Col 1:14). Atriadic structure is discernible in Eph 1:3–14: God the Father (Eph 1:3–6, 8, 11), Christ (Eph 1:3, 5, 7–10, 12), and the Spirit (Eph 1:13–14). The spiritual blessings Christians have received through Christ (Eph 1:3) are gratefully enumerated: the call to holiness (Eph 1:4; cf. Col 1:22); the gift of divine adoption establishing a unique spiritual relationship with God the Father through Christ (Eph 1:5; cf. Gal 4:5); liberation from sin through Christ’s sacrificial death (Eph 1:7); revelation of God’s plan of salvation in Christ (Eph 1:9; cf. Eph 3:3–4; Rom 16:25); the gift of election and faith in Christ bestowed upon Jewish Christians (see note on Eph 1:12, we who first hoped in Christ); and finally, the same gift granted to Gentiles (Eph 1:13, you also). In the Christ-centered faith and existence of the Christian communities the apostle sees the predetermined plan of God to bring all creation under the final rule of Christ (Eph 1:4–5, 9–10) being made known (Eph 1:9) and carried through, to God’s glory (Eph 1:6, 12, 14).

1:9 Mystery: as in Rom 16:25; Col 1:26–27 and elsewhere, a secret of God now revealed in the plan to save and sum up all things in Christ (Eph 1:10); cf. Eph 3:3–6.

1:12 We who first hoped: probably Jewish Christians (contrast Eph 1:13, you, the Gentiles); possibly the people of Israel, “we who already enjoyed the hope of Christ,” or perhaps present hope in contrast to future redemption (cf. Eph 1:14).

1:13 Sealed: by God, in baptism; cf. Eph 4:30; 2 Cor 1:22.

1:14 First installment: down payment by God on full salvation, as at 2 Cor 1:22.

1:15–23 See note on Rom 1:8 for the thanksgiving form in a letter. Much of the content parallels thoughts in Col 1:3–20. The prayer moves from God and Christ (Eph 1:17, 20–21) to the Ephesians (Eph 1:17–19) and the church (Eph 1:22–23). Paul asks that the blessing imparted by God the Father (Eph 1:3) to the Ephesians will be strengthened in them through the message of the gospel (Eph 1:13, 17–19). Those blessings are seen in the context of God's might in establishing the sovereignty of Christ over all other creatures (Eph 1:19–21) and in appointing him head of the church (Eph 1:22–23). For the allusion to angelic spirits in Eph 1:21, see Rom 8:38 and Col 1:16. Here, as in 1 Cor 15:24–25 and Col 2:15, every such principality and power is made subject to Christ.

1:23 His body: the church (Eph 1:22); cf. note on Col 1:18. Only in Ephesians and Colossians is Christ the head of the body, in contrast to the view in 1 Cor 12 and Rom 12:4–8 where Christ is equated with the entire body or community. Fullness: see note on Col 1:19. Some take the one who fills as God, others as Christ (cf. Eph 4:10). If in Christ “dwells the fullness of the deity bodily” (Col 2:9), then, as God “fills” Christ, Christ in turn fills the church and the believer (Eph 3:19; 5:18). But the difficult phrases here may also allow the church to be viewed as the “complement” of Christ who is “being filled” as God’s plan for the universe is carried out through the church (cf. Eph 3:9–10).

2:1–22 The gospel of salvation (Eph 1:13) that God worked in Christ (Eph 1:20) is reiterated in terms of what God’s great love (Eph 2:4), expressed in Christ, means for us. The passage sometimes addresses you, Gentiles (Eph 2:1–2, 8, 11–13, 19, 22), but other times speaks of all of us who believe (Eph 2:3–7, 10, 14, 18). In urging people to remember their grim past when they were dead in sins (Eph 2:1–3, 11–12) and what they are now in Christ (Eph 2:4–10, 13), the author sees both Jew and Gentile reconciled with God, now one new person, a new humanity, one body, the household of God, a temple and dwelling place of God’s Spirit (Eph 2:15–16, 19–22). The presentation falls into two parts, the second stressing more the meaning for the church.

2:1–10 The recipients of Paul’s letter have experienced, in their redemption from transgressions and sins, the effect of Christ’s supremacy over the power of the devil (Eph 2:1–2; cf. Eph 6:11–12), who rules not from the netherworld but from the air between God in heaven and human beings on earth. Both Jew and Gentile have experienced, through Christ, God’s free gift of salvation that already marks them for a future heavenly destiny (Eph 2:3–7). The language dead, raised us up, and seated us... in the heavens closely parallels Jesus’ own passion and Easter experience. The terms in Eph 2:8–9 describe salvation in the way Paul elsewhere speaks of justification: by grace, through faith, the gift of God, not from works; cf. Gal 2:16–21; Rom 3:24–28. Christians are a newly created people in Christ, fashioned by God for a life of goodness (Eph 2:10).

2:1–7 These verses comprise one long sentence in Greek, the main verb coming in Eph 2:5, God brought us to life, the object you/us dead in... transgressions being repeated in Eph 2:1, 5; cf. Col 2:13.

2:2 Age of this world: or “aeon,” a term found in gnostic thought, possibly synonymous with the rulers of this world, but also reflecting the Jewish idea of “two ages,” this present evil age and “the age to come”; cf. 1 Cor 3:19; 5:10; 7:31; Gal 1:4; Ti 2:12. The disobedient: literally, “the sons of disobedience,” a Semitism as at Is 30:9.

2:5 Our relation through baptism with Christ, the risen Lord, is depicted in terms of realized eschatology, as already exaltation, though Eph 2:7 brings in the future aspect too.

2:11–22 The Gentiles lacked Israel’s messianic expectation, lacked the various covenants God made with Israel, lacked hope of salvation and knowledge of the true God (Eph 2:11–12); but through Christ all these religious barriers between Jew and Gentile have been transcended (Eph 2:13–14) by the abolition of the Mosaic covenant-law (Eph 2:15) for the sake of uniting Jew and Gentile into a single religious community (Eph 2:15–16), imbued with the same holy Spirit and worshipping the same Father (Eph 2:18). The Gentiles are now included in God’s household (Eph 2:19) as it arises upon the foundation of apostles assisted by those endowed with the prophetic gift (Eph 3:5), the preachers of Christ (Eph 2:20; cf. 1 Cor 12:28). With Christ as the capstone (Eph 2:20; cf. Is 28:16; Mt 21:42), they are being built into the holy temple of God's people where the divine presence dwells (Eph 2:21–22).

2:12 The community of Israel: or “commonwealth”; cf. Eph 4:18. The covenants: cf. Rom 9:4: with Abraham, with Moses, with David.

2:14–16 The elaborate imagery here combines pictures of Christ as our peace (Is 9:5), his crucifixion, the ending of the Mosaic law (cf. Col 2:14), reconciliation (2 Cor 5:18–21), and the destruction of the dividing wall such as kept people from God in the temple or a barrier in the heavens.

2:15 One new person: a corporate body, the Christian community, made up of Jews and Gentiles, replacing ancient divisions; cf. Rom 1:16.

2:20 Capstone: the Greek can also mean cornerstone or keystone.

3:1–13 Paul reflects on his mission to the Gentiles. He alludes to his call and appointment to the apostolic office (Eph 3:2–3) and how his insight through revelation, as well as that of the other apostles and charismatic prophets in the church (Eph 3:4–5), has deepened understanding of God's plan of salvation in Christ. Paul is the special herald (Eph 3:7) of a new promise to the Gentiles (Eph 3:6): that the divine plan includes them in the spiritual benefits promised to Israel. Not only is this unique apostolic role his; Paul also has been given the task of explaining to all the divine plan of salvation (Eph 3:8–9), once hidden. Through the church, God's plan to save through Christ is becoming manifest to angelic beings (Eph 3:10; cf. Eph 1:21), in accord with God's purpose (Eph 3:11). The fulfillment of the plan in Christ gives the whole church more confidence through faith in God (Eph 3:12). The readers of this letter are also thereby encouraged to greater confidence despite Paul's imprisonment (Eph 3:13).

3:1 A prisoner of Christ: see Introduction. Paul abruptly departs from his train of thought at the end of Eph 3:1, leaving an incomplete sentence.

3:2 Stewardship: the Greek is the same term employed at Eph 1:10 for the plan that God administers (Col 1:25) and in which Paul plays a key role.

3:3–4 The mystery: God's resolve to deliver Gentiles along with Israel through Christ; cf. notes on Eph 1:10; 3:9.

3:9 [For all]: while some think this phrase was added so as to yield the sense “to enlighten all about the plan...,” it is more likely that some manuscripts and Fathers omitted it accidentally or to avoid the idea that all conflicted with Paul's assignment to preach to the Gentiles (Eph 3:8) specifically.

3:10 Principalities and authorities: see note on Eph 1:15–23 regarding Eph 3:21.

3:14–21 The apostle prays that those he is addressing may, like the rest of the church, deepen their understanding of God's plan of salvation in Christ. It is a plan that affects the whole universe (Eph 3:15) with the breadth and length and height and depth of God's love in Christ (Eph 3:18) or possibly the universe in all its dimensions. The apostle prays that they may perceive the redemptive love of Christ for them and be completely immersed in the fullness of God (Eph 3:19). The prayer concludes with a doxology to God (Eph 3:20–21).

3:14–15 Every family: in the Greek there is wordplay on the word for the Father (patria, patēr). The phrase could also mean “God's whole family” (cf. Eph 2:21).

4:1–16 A general plea for unity in the church. Christians have been fashioned through the Spirit into a single harmonious religious community (one body, Eph 4:4, 12; cf. Eph 4:16), belonging to a single Lord (in contrast to the many gods of the pagan world), and by one way of salvation through faith, brought out especially by the significance of baptism (Eph 4:1–6; cf. Rom 6:1–11). But Christian unity is more than adherence to a common belief. It is manifested in the exalted Christ's gifts to individuals to serve so as to make the community more Christlike (Eph 4:11–16). This teaching on Christ as the source of the gifts is introduced in Eph 4:8 by a citation of Ps 68:18, which depicts Yahweh triumphantly leading Israel to salvation in Jerusalem. It is here understood of Christ, ascending above all the heavens, the head of the church; through his redemptive death, resurrection, and ascension he has become the source of the church's spiritual gifts. The "descent" of Christ (Eph 4:9–10) refers more probably to the incarnation (cf. Phil 2:6–8) than to Christ's presence after his death in the world of the dead (cf. 1 Pt 3:19).

4:4–6 The "seven unities" (church, Spirit, hope; Lord, faith in Christ [Eph 1:13], baptism; one God) reflect the triune structure of later creeds in reverse.

4:8–10 While the emphasis is on an ascension and gift-giving by Christ, there is also a reference in taking prisoners captive to the aeons and powers mentioned at Eph 1:21; 2:2; 3:10; 6:12.

4:11 Concerning this list of ministers, cf. 1 Cor 12:28 and Rom 12:6–8. Evangelists: missionary preachers (cf. Acts 21:8; 2 Tm 4:5), not those who wrote gospels. Pastors and teachers: a single group in the Greek, shepherding congregations.

4:12 The ministerial leaders in Eph 4:11 are to equip the whole people of God for their work of ministry.

4:13 Mature manhood: literally, "a perfect man" (cf. Col 1:28), possibly the "one new person" of Eph 2:15, though there anthrōpos suggests humanity, while here anēr is the term for male. This personage becomes visible in the church's growing to its fullness in the unity of those who believe in Christ.

4:15–16 The head, Christ: cf. Col 1:18 and contrast 1 Cor 12:12–27 and Rom 12:4–5 where Christ is identified with the whole body, including the head. The imagery may derive from ancient views in medicine, the head coordinating and caring for the body, each ligament (perhaps the ministers of Eph 4:11) supporting the whole. But as at Eph 2:19–22, where the temple is depicted as a growing organism, there may also be the idea here of growing toward the capstone, Christ.

4:17–24 Paul begins to indicate how the new life in Christ contrasts with the Gentiles' old way of existence. Literally, the old self (Eph 4:22) and the new self (Eph 4:24) are "the old man" and "the new man" (anthrōpos, person), as at Eph 2:15; cf. note on Eph 4:13.

4:24 Put on: in baptism. See note on Gal 3:27.

4:25–6:20 For similar exhortations to a morally good life in response to God's gift of faith, see notes on Rom 12:1–13:14 and Gal 5:13–26.

4:26 If angry, seek reconciliation that day, not giving the devil (Eph 6:11) opportunity to lead into sin.

4:28 Honest work: literally, "the good." His [own] hands: some manuscripts have the full phrase as in 1 Cor 4:12.

4:30 See note on Eph 1:13.

5:1 Imitators of God: in forgiving (Eph 4:32) and in loving (as exhibited in how Christ loved us).

5:6 See note on Eph 2:2.

5:14 An early Christian hymn, possibly from a baptismal liturgy. For the content compare Eph 2:5–6; 3:9 and Is 60:1.

5:15–16, 19–20 The wording is similar to Col 4:5 and Eph 3:16–17.

5:21–6:9 Cf. notes on Col 3:18–4:1 and 1 Pt 2:18–3:7 for a similar listing of household duties where the inferior is admonished first (wives, Eph 5:22; children, Eph 6:1; slaves, Eph 6:5), then the superior (husbands, Eph 5:25; fathers, Eph 6:4; masters, Eph 6:9). Paul varies this pattern by an emphasis on mutuality (see Eph 5:20); use of Old Testament material about father and mother in Eph 6:2; the judgment to come for slave-owners (you have a Master in heaven, Eph 6:9); and above all the initial principle of subordination to one another under Christ, thus effectively undermining exclusive claims to domination by one party. Into the section on wives and husbands an elaborate teaching on Christ and the church has been woven (Eph 5:22–33).

5:21–33 The apostle exhorts married Christians to a strong mutual love. Holding with Gn 2:24 that marriage is a divine institution (Eph 5:31), Paul sees Christian marriage as taking on a new meaning symbolic of the intimate relationship of love between Christ and the church. The wife should serve her husband in the same spirit as that of the church's service to Christ (Eph 5:22, 24), and the husband should care for his wife with the devotion of Christ to the church (Eph 5:25–30). Paul gives to the Genesis passage its highest meaning in the light of the union of Christ and the church, of which Christlike loyalty and devotion in Christian marriage are a clear reflection (Eph 5:31–33).

6:10–20 A general exhortation to courage and prayer. Drawing upon the imagery and ideas of Is 11:5; 59:16–17; and Wis 5:17–23, Paul describes the Christian in terms of the dress and equipment of Roman soldiers. He observes, however, that the Christian's readiness for combat is not directed against human beings but against the spiritual powers of evil (Eph 6:10–17; cf. Eph 1:21; 2:2; 3:10). Unique importance is placed upon prayer (Eph 6:18–20).

6:21–24 Tychicus: the bearer of the letter; see note on Col 4:7. Eph 6:21–22 parallel Col 4:7–8, often word for word. If Ephesians is addressed to several Christian communities (see Introduction), it is understandable that no greetings to individual members of these communities should have been included in it.

The Letter to the Philippians

See RG 523–26

Philippi, in northeastern Greece, was a city of some importance in the Roman province of Macedonia. Lying on the great road from the Adriatic coast to Byzantium, the Via Egnatia, and in the midst of rich agricultural plains near the gold deposits of Mt. Pangaeus, it was in Paul's day a Roman town (Acts 16:21), with a Greek-Macedonian population and a small group of Jews (see Acts 16:13). Originally founded in the sixth century B.C. as Krenides by the Thracians, the town was taken over after 360 B.C. by Philip II of Macedon, the father of Alexander the Great, and was renamed for himself, "Philip's City." The area became Roman in the second century B.C. On the plains near Philippi in October 42 B.C., Antony and Octavian decisively defeated the forces of Brutus and Cassius, the slayers of Julius Caesar. Octavian (Augustus) later made Philippi a Roman colony and settled many veterans of the Roman armies there.

Paul, according to Acts (Acts 16:9–40), established at Philippi the first Christian community in Europe. He came to Philippi, via its harbor town of Neapolis (modern Kavalla), on his second missionary journey, probably in A.D. 49 or 50, accompanied by Silas and Timothy (Acts 15:40; 16:3; cf. Phil 1:1) and Luke, if he is to be included in the "we" references of Acts 16:10–17. The Acts account tells of the conversion of a business woman, Lydia; the exorcism of a slave girl; and, after an earthquake, while Paul and Silas were imprisoned in Philippi, the faith and baptism of a jailer and his family. None of these persons, however, is directly mentioned in Philippians (cf. the notes on Phil 4:2 and Phil 4:3). Acts 16 concludes its account by describing how Paul (and Silas), asked by the magistrates to leave Philippi, went on to Thessalonica (Acts 17:1–10), where several times his loyal Philippians continued to support him with financial aid (Phil 4:16). Later, Paul may have passed through Philippi on his way from Ephesus to Greece (Acts 20:1–2), and he definitely stopped there on his fateful trip to Jerusalem (Acts 20:6).

Paul's letter to the Christians at Philippi was written while he was in a prison somewhere (Phil 1:7, 13, 14, 17), indeed in danger of death (Phil 1:20–23). Although under guard for preaching Christ, Paul rejoices at the continuing progress of the gospel (Phil 1:12–26) and expresses gratitude for the Philippians' renewed concern and help in an expression of thanks most clearly found at Phil 4:10–20. Much of the letter is devoted to instruction about unity and humility within the Christian community at Philippi (Phil 1:27–2:18) and exhortations to growth, joy, and peace in their life together (Phil 4:1–9). The letter seems to be drawing to a close at the end of what we number as Phil 2, as Paul reports the plans of his helper Timothy and of Epaphroditus (whom the Philippians had sent to aid Paul) to come to Philippi (Phil 2:19–3:1), and even Paul's own expectation that he will go free and come to Philippi (Phil 1:25–26; 2:24). Yet quite abruptly at Phil 3:2, Paul erupts into warnings against false teachers who threaten to impose on the Philippians the burdens of the Mosaic law, including circumcision. The section that follows, Phil 3:2–21, is a vigorous attack on these Judaizers (cf. Gal 2:11–3:29) or Jewish Christian teachers (cf. 2 Cor 11:12–23), giving us insights into Paul's own life story (Phil 3:4–6) and into the doctrine of justification, the Christian life, and ultimate hope (Phil 3:7–21).

The location of Paul's imprisonment when he wrote to the Philippians, and thus the date of the letter, are uncertain. The traditional view has been that it stems from Paul's confinement in Rome, between A.D. 59 and 63 (cf. Acts 28:14–31). One modern view suggests the period when he was imprisoned at Caesarea, on the coast of Palestine, A.D. 57 or 58 (Acts 23:23–26:32); another suggests Corinth (cf. 2 Cor 11:9). Much recent scholarship favors Ephesus, around A.D. 55, a situation referred to in 2 Cor 1:8 concerning "the affliction that came to us" in Asia Minor (cf. also 1 Cor 15:32). The reference at Phil 1:13 to the "praetorium" (cf. also Phil 4:22) can be understood to mean the imperial guard or government house at Ephesus (or Caesarea), or the praetorian camp in Rome. Involved in a decision are the several journeys back and forth between Philippi and wherever Paul is imprisoned, mentioned in the letter (Phil 2:25–28; 4:14); this factor causes many to prefer Ephesus because of its proximity to Philippi. The Ephesian hypothesis dates the composition of Philippians to the mid-50s when most of Paul's major letters were written.

There is also a likelihood, according to some scholars, that the letter as we have it is a composite from parts of three letters by Paul to the Philippians. Seemingly Phil 4:10–20 is a brief note of appreciation for help sent through Epaphroditus. The long section from Phil 1:3 to Phil 3:1 is then another letter, with news of Paul's imprisonment and reports on Timothy and Epaphroditus (who has fallen ill while with Paul), along with exhortations to the Philippians about Christian conduct; and Phil 3:2–21 a third communication warning about threats to Philippian Christianity. The other verses in Phil 4 and Phil 1:1–2, are variously assigned by critics to these three underlying letters, which an editor presumably put together to produce a picture of Paul writing earnestly from prison (Phil 1–2), facing opponents of the faith (Phil 3), and with serene joy advising and thanking his Philippians (Phil 4). If all four chapters were originally a unity, then one must assume that a break occurred between the writing of Phil 3:1 and Phil 3:2, possibly involving the receipt of bad news from Philippi, and that Paul had some reasons for delaying his words of thanks for the aid brought by Epaphroditus till the end of his letter.

This beautiful letter is rich in insights into Paul's theology and his apostolic love and concern for the gospel and his converts. In Philippians, Paul reveals his human sensitivity and tenderness, his enthusiasm for Christ as the key to life and death (Phil 1:21), and his deep feeling for those in Christ who dwell in Philippi. With them he shares his hopes and convictions, his anxieties and fears, revealing the total confidence in Christ that constitutes faith (Phil 3:8–10). The letter incorporates a hymn about the salvation that God has brought about through Christ (Phil 2:6–11), applied by Paul to the relations of Christians with one another (Phil 2:1–5). Philippians has been termed "the letter of joy" (Phil 4:4, 10). It is the rejoicing of faith, based on true understanding of Christ's unique role in the salvation of all who profess his lordship (Phil 2:11; 3:8–12, 14, 20–21).

The principal divisions of the Letter to the Philippians are the following:

- I. Address (1:1–11)
- II. Progress of the Gospel (1:12–26)
- III. Instructions for the Community (1:27–2:18)
- IV. Travel Plans of Paul and His Assistants (2:19–3:1)

- V. Polemic: Righteousness and the Goal in Christ (3:2–21)
- VI. Instructions for the Community (4:1–9)
- VII. Gratitude for the Philippians' Generosity (4:10–20)
- VIII. Farewell (4:21–23)

I. ADDRESS

CHAPTER 1

See RG 523–26

Greeting. <sup>1a*</sup>Paul and Timothy, slaves of Christ Jesus, to all the holy ones in Christ Jesus who are in Philippi, with the overseers and ministers: <sup>2b*</sup>grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Thanksgiving. <sup>3c*</sup>I give thanks to my God at every remembrance of you, <sup>4</sup>praying always with joy in my every prayer for all of you, <sup>5</sup>because of your partnership for the gospel from the first day until now. <sup>6d*</sup>I am confident of this, that the one who began a good work in you will continue to complete it until the day of Christ Jesus. <sup>7</sup>It is right that I should think this way about all of you, because I hold you in my heart, you who are all partners with me in grace, both in my imprisonment and in the defense and confirmation of the gospel. <sup>8e</sup>For God is my witness, how I long for all of you with the affection of Christ Jesus. <sup>9f</sup>And this is my prayer: that your love may increase ever more and more in knowledge and every kind of perception, <sup>10g</sup>to discern what is of value, so that you may be pure and blameless for the day of Christ, <sup>11 h</sup>filled with the fruit of righteousness that comes through Jesus Christ for the glory and praise of God.

II. PROGRESS OF THE GOSPEL

<sup>12i*</sup>I want you to know, brothers, that my situation has turned out rather to advance the gospel, <sup>13j*</sup>so that my imprisonment has become well known in Christ throughout the whole praetorium and to all the rest, <sup>14*</sup>and so that the majority of the brothers, having taken encouragement in the Lord from my imprisonment, dare more than ever to proclaim the word fearlessly.

<sup>15</sup>Of course, some preach Christ from envy and rivalry, others from good will. <sup>16</sup>The latter act out of love, aware that I am here for the defense of the gospel; <sup>17</sup>the former proclaim Christ out of selfish ambition, not from pure motives, thinking that they will cause me trouble in my imprisonment. <sup>18k*</sup>What difference does it make, as long as in every way, whether in pretense or in truth, Christ is being proclaimed? And in that I rejoice.

Indeed I shall continue to rejoice, <sup>19l*</sup>for I know that this will result in deliverance for me through your prayers and support from the Spirit of Jesus Christ. <sup>20m</sup>My eager expectation and hope is that I shall not be put to shame in any way, but that with all boldness, now as always, Christ will be magnified in my body, whether by life or by death. <sup>21n</sup>For to me life is Christ, and death is gain. <sup>22o</sup>If I go on living in the flesh, that means fruitful labor for me. And I do not know which I shall choose. <sup>23p</sup>I am caught between the two. I long to depart this life and be with Christ, [for] that is far better. <sup>24</sup>Yet that I remain [in] the flesh is more necessary for your benefit. <sup>25</sup>And this I know with confidence, that I shall remain and continue in the service of all of you for your progress and joy in the faith, <sup>26</sup>so that your boasting in Christ Jesus may abound on account of me when I come to you again.

III. INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE COMMUNITY

Steadfastness in Faith. <sup>27q*</sup>Only, conduct yourselves in a way worthy of the gospel of Christ, so that, whether I come and see you or am absent, I may hear news of you, that you are standing firm in one spirit, with one mind struggling together for the faith of the gospel, <sup>28</sup>not intimidated in any way by your opponents. This is proof to them of destruction, but of your salvation. And this is God's doing. <sup>29r</sup>For to you has been granted, for the sake of Christ, not only to believe in him but also to suffer for him. <sup>30s*</sup>Yours is the same struggle as you saw in me and now hear about me.

CHAPTER 2

See RG 523–26

Plea for Unity and Humility. <sup>1*</sup>If there is any encouragement in Christ, any solace in love, any participation in the Spirit, any compassion and mercy, <sup>2t</sup>complete my joy by being of the same mind, with the same love, united in heart, thinking one thing. <sup>3u</sup>Do nothing out of selfishness or out of vainglory; rather, humbly regard others as more important than yourselves, <sup>4v</sup>each looking out not for his own interests, but [also] everyone for those of others.

<sup>5*</sup>Have among yourselves the same attitude that is also yours in Christ Jesus, <sup>6w*</sup>Who, though he was in the form of God, did not regard equality with God something to be grasped.
<sup>7x*</sup>Rather, he emptied himself, taking the form of a slave, coming in human likeness;
and found human in appearance, <sup>8y*</sup>he humbled himself, becoming obedient to death,
even death on a cross.
<sup>9z*</sup>Because of this, God greatly exalted him and bestowed on him the name that is above every name, <sup>10a*</sup>that at the name of Jesus
every knee should bend, of those in heaven and on earth and under the earth, <sup>11b*</sup>and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

Obedience and Service in the World. <sup>12c*</sup>So then, my beloved, obedient as you have always been, not only when I am present but all the more now when I am absent, work out your salvation with fear and trembling. <sup>13d</sup>For God is the one who, for his good purpose, works in you both to desire and to work. <sup>14e</sup>Do everything without grumbling or questioning, <sup>15 f *</sup>that you may be blameless and innocent, children of God without blemish in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, among whom you shine like lights in the world, <sup>16g</sup>as you hold on to the word of life, so that my boast for the day of Christ may be that I did not run in vain or labor in vain. <sup>17h*</sup>But, even if I am poured out as a libation upon the sacrificial service of your faith, I rejoice and share my joy with all of you. <sup>18i</sup>In the same way you also should rejoice and share your joy with me.

IV. TRAVEL PLANS OF PAUL AND HIS ASSISTANTS

Timothy and Paul. <sup>19 j*</sup>I hope, in the Lord Jesus, to send Timothy to you soon, so that I too may be heartened by hearing news of you. <sup>20</sup>For I have no one comparable to him for genuine interest in whatever concerns you. <sup>21k</sup>For they all seek their own interests, not those of Jesus Christ. <sup>22</sup>But you know his worth, how as a child with a father he served along with me in the cause of the gospel. <sup>23</sup>He it is, then, whom I hope to send as soon as I see how things go with me, <sup>24*</sup>but I am confident in the Lord that I myself will also come soon.

Epaphroditus. <sup>25l*</sup>With regard to Epaphroditus, my brother and co-worker and fellow soldier, your messenger and minister in my need, I consider it necessary to send him to you. <sup>26</sup>For he has been longing for all of you and was distressed because you heard that he was ill. <sup>27</sup>He was indeed ill, close to death; but God had mercy on him, not just on him but also on me, so that I might not have sorrow upon sorrow. <sup>28</sup>I send him therefore with the greater eagerness, so that, on seeing him, you may rejoice again, and I may have less anxiety. <sup>29m</sup>Welcome him then in the Lord with all joy and hold such people in esteem, <sup>30</sup>because for the sake of the work of Christ he came close to death, risking his life to make up for those services to me that you could not perform.

CHAPTER 3

See RG 523–26

Concluding Admonitions. <sup>1n*</sup>Finally, my brothers, rejoice in the Lord. Writing the same things to you is no burden for me but is a safeguard for you.

V. POLEMIC: RIGHTEOUSNESS AND THE GOAL IN CHRIST

Against Legalistic Teachers. <sup>2o*</sup>Beware of the dogs! Beware of the evil-workers! Beware of the mutilation! <sup>3p*</sup>For we are the circumcision, we who worship through the Spirit of God, who boast in Christ Jesus and do not put our confidence in flesh, <sup>4q</sup>although I myself have grounds for confidence even in the flesh.

Paul's Autobiography. If anyone else thinks he can be confident in flesh, all the more can I. <sup>5r*</sup>Circumcised on the eighth day, of the race of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrew parentage, in observance of the law a Pharisee, <sup>6s</sup>in zeal I persecuted the church, in righteousness based on the law I was blameless.

Righteousness from God. <sup>7t*</sup>[But] whatever gains I had, these I have come to consider a loss because of Christ. <sup>8</sup>More than that, I even consider everything as a loss because of the supreme good of knowing Christ Jesus my Lord. For his sake I have accepted the loss of all things and I consider them so much rubbish, that I may gain Christ <sup>9u</sup>and be found in him, not having any righteousness of my own based on the law but that which comes through faith in Christ, the righteousness from God, depending on faith <sup>10v</sup>to know him and the power of his resurrection and [the] sharing of his sufferings by being conformed to his death, <sup>11w</sup>if somehow I may attain the resurrection from the dead.

Forward in Christ. <sup>12x*</sup>It is not that I have already taken hold of it or have already attained perfect maturity, but I continue my pursuit in hope that I may possess it, since I have indeed been taken possession of by Christ [Jesus]. <sup>13</sup>Brothers, I for my part do not consider myself to have taken possession. Just one thing: forgetting what lies behind but straining forward to what lies ahead, <sup>14y</sup>I continue my pursuit toward the goal, the prize of God's upward calling, in Christ Jesus. <sup>15</sup>Let us, then, who are "perfectly mature" adopt this attitude. And if you have a different attitude, this too God will reveal to you. <sup>16*</sup>Only, with regard to what we have attained, continue on the same course.

Wrong Conduct and Our Goal. <sup>17z*</sup>Join with others in being imitators of me, brothers, and observe those who thus conduct themselves according to the model you have in us. <sup>18a</sup>For many, as I have often told you and now tell you even in tears, conduct themselves as enemies of the cross of Christ. <sup>19b</sup>Their end is destruction. Their God is their stomach; their glory is in their "shame." Their minds are occupied with earthly things. <sup>20c*</sup>But our citizenship is in heaven, and from it we also await a savior, the Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>21d</sup>He will change our lowly body to conform with his glorified body by the power that enables him also to bring all things into subjection to himself.

VI. INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE COMMUNITY

CHAPTER 4

See RG 523–26

Live in Concord. <sup>1e*</sup>Therefore, my brothers, whom I love and long for, my joy and crown, in this way stand firm in the Lord, beloved.

<sup>2*</sup>I urge Euodia and I urge Syntyche to come to a mutual understanding in the Lord. <sup>3f*</sup>Yes, and I ask you also, my true yokemate, to help them, for they have struggled at my side in promoting the gospel, along with Clement and my other co-workers, whose names are in the book of life.

Joy and Peace. <sup>4g*</sup>Rejoice in the Lord always. I shall say it again: rejoice! <sup>5h*</sup>Your kindness should be known to all. The Lord is near. <sup>6i</sup>Have no anxiety at all, but in everything, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, make your requests known to God. <sup>7j</sup>Then the peace of God that surpasses all understanding will guard your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus.

<sup>8k*</sup>Finally, brothers, whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is gracious, if there is any excellence and if there is anything worthy of praise, think about these things. <sup>9l*</sup>Keep on doing what you have learned and received and heard and seen in me. Then the God of peace will be with you.

VII. GRATITUDE FOR THE PHILIPPIANS' GENEROSITY

<sup>10m*</sup>I rejoice greatly in the Lord that now at last you revived your concern for me. You were, of course, concerned about me but lacked an opportunity.

<sup>11n</sup>Not that I say this because of need, for I have learned, in whatever situation I find myself, to be self-sufficient. <sup>12</sup>I know indeed how to live in humble circumstances; I know also how to live with abundance. In every circumstance and in all things I have learned the secret of being well fed and of going hungry, of living in abundance and of being in need. <sup>13o</sup>I have the strength for everything through him who empowers me. <sup>14</sup>Still, it was kind of you to share in my distress.

<sup>15*</sup>You Philippians indeed know that at the beginning of the gospel, when I left Macedonia, not a single church shared with me in an account of giving and receiving, except you alone. <sup>16</sup>For even when I was at Thessalonica you sent me something for my needs, not only once but more than once. <sup>17</sup>It is not that I am eager for the gift; rather, I am eager for the profit that accrues to your account. <sup>18p*</sup>I have received full payment and I abound. I am very well supplied because of what I received from you through Epaphroditus, “a fragrant aroma,” an acceptable sacrifice, pleasing to God. <sup>19q</sup>My God will fully supply whatever you need, in accord with his glorious riches in Christ Jesus. <sup>20r</sup>To our God and Father, glory forever and ever. Amen.

VIII. FAREWELL

<sup>21*</sup>Give my greetings to every holy one in Christ Jesus. The brothers who are with me send you their greetings; <sup>22s*</sup>all the holy ones send you their greetings, especially those of Caesar’s household. <sup>23</sup>The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit.

1:1–2 See note on Rom 1:1–7, concerning the greeting.

1:1 Slaves: Paul usually refers to himself at the start of a letter as an apostle. Here he substitutes a term suggesting the unconditional obligation of himself and Timothy to the service of Christ, probably because, in view of the good relationship with the Philippians, he wishes to stress his status as a co-servant rather than emphasize his apostolic authority. Reference to Timothy is a courtesy: Paul alone writes the letter, as the singular verb throughout shows (Phil 1:3–26), and the reference (Phil 2:19–24) to Timothy in the third person. Overseers: the Greek term episkopos literally means “one who oversees” or “one who supervises,” but since the second century it has come to designate the “bishop,” the official who heads a local church. In New Testament times this office had not yet developed into the form that it later assumed, though it seems to be well on the way to such development in the Pastorals; see 1 Tm 3:2 and Ti 1:7, where it is translated bishop. At Philippi, however (and at Ephesus, according to Acts 20:28), there was more than one episkopos, and the precise function of these officials is uncertain. In order to distinguish this office from the later stages into which it developed, the term is here translated as overseers. Ministers: the Greek term diakonoi is used frequently in the New Testament to designate “servants,” “attendants,” or “ministers.” Paul refers to himself and to other apostles as “ministers of God” (2 Cor 6:4) or “ministers of Christ” (2 Cor 11:23). In the Pastorals (1 Tm 3:8, 12) the diakonos has become an established official in the local church; hence the term is there translated as deacon. The diakonoi at Philippi seem to represent an earlier stage of development of the office; we are uncertain about their precise functions. Hence the term is here translated as ministers. See Rom 16:1, where Phoebe is described as a diakonos (minister) of the church of Cenchreae.

1:2 The gifts come from Christ the Lord, not simply through him from the Father; compare the christology in Phil 2:6–11.

1:3–11 As in Rom 1:8–15 and all the Pauline letters except Galatians, a thanksgiving follows, including a direct prayer for the Philippians (Phil 1:9–11); see note on Rom 1:8. On their partnership for the gospel (Phil 1:5), cf. Phil 1:29–30; 4:10–20. Their devotion to the faith and to Paul made them his pride and joy (Phil 4:1). The characteristics thus manifested are evidence of the community's continuing preparation for the Lord's parousia (Phil 1:6, 10). Paul's especially warm relationship with the Philippians is suggested here (Phil 1:7–8) as elsewhere in the letter. The eschatology serves to underscore a concern for ethical growth (Eph 1:9–11), which appears throughout the letter.

1:6 The day of Christ Jesus: the parousia or triumphant return of Christ, when those loyal to him will be with him and share in his eternal glory; cf. Phil 1:10; 2:16; 3:20–21; 1 Thes 4:17; 5:10; 2 Thes 1:10; 1 Cor 1:8.

1:12–26 The body of the letter begins with an account of Paul's present situation, i.e., his imprisonment (Phil 1:12–13; see Introduction), and then goes on with advice for the Philippians (Phil 1:27–2:18). The advance of the gospel (Phil 1:12) and the progress of the Philippians in the faith (Phil 1:25) frame what is said.

1:13 Praetorium: either the praetorian guard in the city where Paul was imprisoned or the governor's official residence in a Roman province (cf. Mk 15:16; Acts 23:35). See Introduction on possible sites.

1:14–18 Although Paul is imprisoned, Christians there nonetheless go on preaching Christ. But they do so with varied motives, some with personal hostility toward Paul, others out of personal ambition.

1:18 Rejoice: a major theme in the letter; see Introduction.

1:19–25 Paul earnestly debates his prospects of martyrdom or continued missionary labor. While he may long to depart this life and thus be with Christ (Phil 1:23), his overall and final expectation is that he will be delivered from this imprisonment and continue in the service of the Philippians and of others (Phil 1:19, 25; Phil 2:24). In either case, Christ is central (Phil 1:20–21); if to live means Christ for Paul, death means to be united with Christ in a deeper sense.

1:19 Result in deliverance for me: an echo of Jb 13:16, hoping that God will turn suffering to ultimate good and deliverance from evil.

1:27–30 Ethical admonition begins at this early point in the letter, emphasizing steadfastness and congregational unity in the face of possible suffering. The opponents (Phil 1:28) are those in Philippi, probably pagans, who oppose the gospel cause. This is proof. . . (Phil 1:28) may refer to the whole outlook and conduct of the Philippians, turning out for their salvation but to the judgment of the opponents (cf. 2 Cor 2:15–16), or possibly the sentence refers to the opinion of the opponents, who hold that the obstinacy of the Christians points to the destruction of such people as defy Roman authority (though in reality, Paul holds, such faithfulness leads to salvation).

2:1–11 The admonition to likemindedness and unity (Phil 2:2–5) is based on the believers' threefold experience with Christ, God's love, and the Spirit. The appeal to humility (Phil 2:3) and to obedience (Phil 2:12) is rooted in christology, specifically in a statement about Christ Jesus (Phil 2:6–11) and his humbling of self and obedience to the point of death (Phil 2:8).

2:5 Have... the same attitude that is also yours in Christ Jesus: or, "that also Christ Jesus had." While it is often held that Christ here functions as a model for moral imitation, it is not the historical Jesus but the entire Christ event that Phil 2:6–11 depict. Therefore, the appeal is to have in relations among yourselves that same relationship you have in Jesus Christ, i.e., serving one another as you serve Christ (Phil 2:4).

2:6–11 Perhaps an early Christian hymn quoted here by Paul. The short rhythmic lines fall into two parts, Phil 2:6–8 where the subject of every verb is Christ, and Phil 2:9–11 where the subject is God. The general pattern is thus of Christ's humiliation and then exaltation. More precise analyses propose a division into six three-line stanzas (Phil 2:6; 7abc, 7d–8, 9, 10, 11) or into three stanzas (Phil 2:6–7ab, 7cd–8, 9–11). Phrases such as even death on a cross (Phil 2:8c) are considered by some to be additions (by Paul) to the hymn, as are Phil 2:10c, 11c.

2:6 Either a reference to Christ's preexistence and those aspects of divinity that he was willing to give up in order to serve in human form, or to what the man Jesus refused to grasp at to attain divinity. Many see an allusion to the Genesis story: unlike Adam, Jesus, though... in the form of God (Gn 1:26–27), did not reach out for equality with God, in contrast with the first Adam in Gn 3:5–6.

2:7 Taking the form of a slave, coming in human likeness: or "... taking the form of a slave. Coming in human likeness, and found human in appearance." While it is common to take Phil 2:6, 7 as dealing with Christ's preexistence and Phil 2:8 with his incarnate life, so that lines Phil 2:7b, 7c are parallel, it is also possible to interpret so as to exclude any reference to pre-existence (see note on Phil 2:6) and to take Phil 2:6–8 as presenting two parallel stanzas about Jesus' human state (Phil 2:6–7b; 7cd–8); in the latter alternative, coming in human likeness begins the second stanza and parallels 6a to some extent.

2:8 There may be reflected here language about the servant of the Lord, Is 52:13–53:12 especially Is 53:12.

2:9 The name: "Lord" (Phil 2:11), revealing the true nature of the one who is named.

2:10–11 Every knee should bend... every tongue confess: into this language of Is 45:23 there has been inserted a reference to the three levels in the universe, according to ancient thought, heaven, earth, under the earth.

2:11 Jesus Christ is Lord: a common early Christian acclamation; cf. 1 Cor 12:3; Rom 10:9. But doxology to God the Father is not overlooked here (Phil 2:11c) in the final version of the hymn.

2:12–18 Paul goes on to draw out further ethical implications for daily life (Phil 2:14–18) from the salvation God works in Christ.

2:12 Fear and trembling: a common Old Testament expression indicating awe and seriousness in the service of God (cf. Ex 15:16; Jdt 2:28; Ps 2:11; Is 19:16).

2:15–16 Generation... as you hold on to...: or "... generation. Among them shine like lights in the world because you hold the word of life...."

2:17 Libation: in ancient religious ritual, the pouring out on the ground of a liquid offering as a sacrifice. Paul means that he may be facing death.

2:19–3:1 The plans of Paul and his assistants for future travel are regularly a part of a Pauline letter near its conclusion; cf. Rom 15:22–29; 1 Cor 16:5–12.

2:19 Timothy: already known to the Philippians (Acts 16:1–15; cf. 1 Cor 4:17; 16:10).

2:24 I myself will also come soon: cf. Phil 1:19–25 for the significance of this statement.

2:25 Epaphroditus: sent by the Philippians as their messenger (literally, "apostle") to aid Paul in his imprisonment, he had fallen seriously ill; Paul commends him as he sends him back to Philippi.

3:1 Finally... rejoice: the adverb often signals the close of a letter; cf. Phil 4:8; 2 Cor 13:11. While the verb could also be translated "good-bye" or "farewell," although it is never so used in Greek epistolography, the theme of joy has been frequent in the letter (Phil 1:18; 2:2, 18); note also Phil 4:4 and the addition of "always" there as evidence for the meaning "rejoice." To write the same things may refer to what Paul has previously taught in Philippi or to what he has just written or to what follows.

3:2–21 An abrupt change in content and tone, either because Paul at this point responds to disturbing news he has just heard about a threat to the faith of the Philippians in the form of false teachers, or because part of another Pauline letter was inserted here; see Introduction. The chapter describes these teachers in strong terms as dogs. The persons meant are evidently different from the rival preachers of Phil 1:14–18 and the opponents of Phil 1:28. Since Phil 3:2–4 emphasize Jewish terms like circumcision (Phil 3:2–3, 5), some relate them to the “Judaizers” of the Letter to the Galatians. Other phrases make them appear more like the false teachers of 2 Cor 11:12–15, the evil-workers. The latter part of the chapter depicts the many who are enemies of Christ’s cross in terms that may sound more Gentile or even “gnostic” than Jewish (Phil 3:18–19). Accordingly, some see two groups of false teachers in Phil 3, others one group characterized by a claim of having attained “perfect maturity” (Phil 3:12–15).

3:2–11 Paul sets forth the Christian claim, especially using personal, autobiographical terms that are appropriate to the situation. He presents his own experience in coming to know Christ Jesus in terms of righteousness or justification (cf. Rom 1:16–17; 3:21–5:11; Gal 2:5–11), contrasting the righteousness from God through faith and that of one’s own based on the law as two exclusive ways of pleasing God.

3:2 Beware of the mutilation: literally, “incision,” an ironic wordplay on “circumcision”; cf. Gal 5:12. There may be an association with the self-inflicted mutilations of the prophets of Baal (1 Kgs 18:28) and of devotees of Cybele who slashed themselves in religious frenzy.

3:3 We are the circumcision: the true people of God, seed and offspring of Abraham (Gal 3:7, 29; 6:15). Spirit of God: some manuscripts read “worship God by the Spirit.”

3:5 Circumcised on the eighth day: as the law required (Gn 17:12; Lv 12:3).

3:7 Loss: his knowledge of Christ led Paul to reassess the ways of truly pleasing and serving God. His reevaluation indicates the profound and lasting effect of his experience of the meaning of Christ on the way to Damascus some twenty years before (Gal 1:15–16; Acts 9:1–22).

3:12–16 To be taken possession of by Christ does not mean that one has already arrived at perfect spiritual maturity. Paul and the Philippians instead press on, trusting in God.

3:16 Some manuscripts add, probably to explain Paul’s cryptic phrase, “thinking alike.”

3:17–21 Paul and those who live a life centered in Christ, envisaging both his suffering and resurrection, provide a model that is the opposite of opponents who reject Christ’s cross (cf. 1 Cor 1:23).

3:17 Being imitators of me: not arrogance, but humble simplicity, since all his converts know that Paul is wholly dedicated to imitating Christ (1 Cor 11:1; cf. also Phil 4:9; 1 Thes 1:6; 2 Thes 3:7, 9; 1 Cor 4:6).

3:20 Citizenship: Christians constitute a colony of heaven, as Philippi was a colonia of Rome (Acts 16:12). The hope Paul expresses involves the final coming of Christ, not a status already attained, such as the opponents claim.

4:1–9 This series of ethical admonitions rests especially on the view of Christ and his coming (cf. Phil 4:5) in Phil 3:20–21. Paul’s instructions touch on unity within the congregation, joy, prayer, and the Christian outlook on life.

4:2 Euodia ... Syntyche: two otherwise unknown women in the Philippian congregation; on the advice to them, cf. Phil 2:2–4.

4:3 Yokemate: or “comrade,” although the Greek syzygos could also be a proper name. Clement: otherwise unknown, although later writers sought to identify him with Clement, bishop of Rome (Eusebius, Ecclesiastical History 3.15.1).

4:4 Rejoice: see note on Phil 3:1.

4:5 Kindness: considerateness, forbearance, fairness. The Lord is near: most likely a reference to Christ's parousia (Phil 1:6, 10; 3:20–21; 1 Cor 16:22), although some sense an echo of Ps 119:151 and the perpetual presence of the Lord.

4:8 The language employs terms from Roman Stoic thought.

4:9 Cf. note on Phil 3:17.

4:10–20 Paul, more directly than anywhere else in the letter (cf. Phil 1:3–5), here thanks the Philippians for their gift of money sent through Epaphroditus (Phil 2:25). Paul's own policy was to be self-sufficient as a missionary, supporting himself by his own labor (1 Thes 2:5–9; 1 Cor 9:15–18; cf. Acts 18:2–3). In spite of this reliance on self and on God to provide (Phil 4:11–13) Paul accepted gifts from the Philippians not only once but more than once (Phil 4:16) when he was in Thessalonica (Acts 17:1–9), as he does now, in prison (my distress, Phil 4:14). While commercial terms appear in the passage, like an account of giving and receiving (Phil 4:15) and received full payment (Phil 4:18), Paul is most concerned about the spiritual growth of the Philippians (Phil 4:10, 17, 19); he emphasizes that God will care for their needs, through Christ.

4:15 The beginning of the gospel: it was at Philippi that Paul first preached Christ in Europe, going on from there to Thessalonica and Beroea (Acts 16:9–17:14).

4:18 Aroma... sacrifice: Old Testament cultic language (cf. Gn 8:21; Ex 29:18, 25, 41; Lv 1:9, 13; Ez 20:41) applied to the Philippians' gift; cf. Eph 5:2; 2 Cor 2:14–16.

4:21–23 On the usual greetings at the conclusion of a letter, see note on 1 Cor 16:19–24. Inclusion of greetings from all the holy ones in the place from which Paul writes would involve even the Christians of Phil 1:14–18 who had their differences with Paul.

4:22 Those of Caesar's household: minor officials or even slaves and freedmen, found in Ephesus or Rome, among other places.

The Letter to the Colossians

1 2 3 4

See RG 526–29

This letter is addressed to a congregation at Colossae in the Lycus Valley in Asia Minor, east of Ephesus. At the time of writing, Paul had not visited there, the letter says (Col 1:4; 2:1). The community had apparently been established by Epaphras of Colossae (Col 1:7; 4:12; Phlm 23). Problems, however, had arisen, brought on by teachers who emphasized Christ's relation to the universe (cosmos). Their teachings stressed angels (Col 2:18; "principalities and powers," Col 2:15), which were connected with astral powers and cultic practices (see note on Col 2:16) and rules about food and drink and ascetical disciplines (Col 2:16, 18). These teachings, Paul insists, detract from the person and work of Christ for salvation as set forth magnificently in a hymnic passage at Col 1:15–20 and reiterated throughout the letter. Such teachings are but "shadows"; Christ is "reality" (Col 2:17).

For help in dealing with these problems that the new teachers posed at Colossae, Epaphras sought out Paul, who was then imprisoned (Col 4:10, 18) at a place that the letter does not mention. Paul, without entering into debate over the existence of angelic spirits or their function, simply affirms that Christ possesses the sum total of redemptive power (Col 1:19) and that the spiritual renewal of the human person occurs through contact in baptism with the person of Christ, who died and rose again (Col 2:9–14). It is unnecessary for the Christian to be concerned about placating spirits (Col 2:15) or avoiding imagined defilement through ascetical practices in regard to food and drink (Col 2:20–23). True Christian asceticism consists in the conquering of personal sins (Col 3:5–10) and the practice of love of neighbor in accordance with the standard set by Christ (Col 3:12–16).

Paul commends the community as a whole (Col 1:3–8); this seems to indicate that, though the Colossians have been under pressure to adopt the false doctrines, they have not yet succumbed. The apostle expresses his prayerful concern for them (Col 1:9–14). His preaching has cost him persecution, suffering, and imprisonment, but he regards these as reflective of the sufferings of Christ, a required discipline for the sake of the gospel (see note on 1:24; cf. 1:29; 2:1). His instructions to the Christian family and to slaves and masters require a new spirit of reflection and action. Love, obedience, and service are to be rendered “in the Lord” (Col 3:18–4:1).

Colossians follows the outline of a typical Pauline letter. It is distinguished by the poetic lines in Col 1:15–20 concerning who Christ is and what Christ means in creation and redemption. This hymn may be compared with similar passages in Phil 2:6–11; 1 Tm 3:16; and Jn 1:1–18. It was apparently familiar liturgical material to the author, the audience, and the false teachers. In Col 1:21–2:7, however, Paul interprets the relation between the body of Christ, which he insists is the church (Col 1:18), and the world or cosmos to be one not simply of Christ’s preexistence and rule but one of missionary advance into the world by the spreading of the word (Col 1:25, 28). In this labor of the missionary body of Christ, Paul as a minister plays a prime part in bringing Christ and the gospel as hope to the Gentiles (Col 1:23, 25, 27). To “every creature under heaven” the word is to be proclaimed, so that everyone receives Christ, is established in faith, and walks in Christ (Col 1:28; 2:6, 7).

Paul wrote the Letter to the Colossians while in prison, but his several imprisonments leave the specific place and date of composition uncertain. On this point the same problem exists as with Ephesians and Philippians (see the Introductions to these letters). Traditionally the house arrest at Rome, in which Paul enjoyed a certain restricted freedom in preaching (see Acts 28:16–28), or a second Roman imprisonment has been claimed as the setting. Others suggest a still earlier imprisonment at Caesarea (see Acts 23:12–27:1) or in Ephesus (see Acts 19). Still others regard the letter as the work of some pupil or follower of Paul, writing in his name. In any case, the contents are often closely paralleled by thoughts in Ephesians.

I. Address (1:1–14)

II. The Preeminence of Christ (1:15–2:3)

- III. Warnings Against False Teachers (2:4–23)
  - IV. The Ideal Christian Life in the World (3:1–4:6)
  - V. Conclusion (4:7–18)

I. ADDRESS

CHAPTER 1

See RG 526–29

Greeting. <sup>1a*</sup>Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, <sup>2</sup>to the holy ones and faithful brothers in Christ in Colossae: grace to you and peace from God our Father.

Thanksgiving. <sup>3b*</sup>We always give thanks to God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, when we pray for you, <sup>4</sup>for we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and the love that you have for all the holy ones <sup>5c</sup>because of the hope reserved for you in heaven. Of this you have already heard through the word of truth, the gospel, <sup>6</sup>that has come to you. Just as in the whole world it is bearing fruit and growing, so also among you, from the day you heard it and came to know the grace of God in truth, <sup>7d*</sup>as you learned it from Epaphras our beloved fellow slave, who is a trustworthy minister of Christ on your behalf <sup>8</sup>and who also told us of your love in the Spirit.

Prayer for Continued Progress. <sup>9e*</sup>Therefore, from the day we heard this, we do not cease praying for you and asking that you may be filled with the knowledge of his will through all spiritual wisdom and understanding <sup>10</sup>to live in a manner worthy of the Lord, so as to be fully pleasing, in every good work bearing fruit and growing in the knowledge of God, <sup>11</sup>strengthened with every power, in accord with his glorious might, for all endurance and patience, with joy <sup>12f*</sup>giving thanks to the Father, who has made you fit to share in the inheritance of the holy ones in light. <sup>13</sup>He delivered us from the power of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of his beloved Son, <sup>14g</sup>in whom we have redemption, the forgiveness of sins.

II. THE PREEMINENCE OF CHRIST—HIS PERSON AND WORK

the firstborn of all creation.

<sup>16i*</sup>For in him were created all things in heaven and on earth, the visible and the invisible, whether thrones or dominions or principalities or powers;

all things were created through him and for him.

<sup>17</sup>He is before all things, and in him all things hold together.

<sup>18j*</sup>He is the head of the body, the church.
He is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead, that in all things he himself might be preeminent.

<sup>19*</sup>For in him all the fullness was pleased to dwell,

<sup>20k*</sup>and through him to reconcile all things for him,
making peace by the blood of his cross [through him], whether those on earth or those in heaven.

<sup>21l*</sup>And you who once were alienated and hostile in mind because of evil deeds <sup>22</sup> he has now reconciled in his fleshly body through his death, to present you holy, without blemish, and irreproachable before him, <sup>23</sup> provided that you persevere in the faith, firmly grounded, stable, and not shifting from the hope of the gospel that you heard, which has been preached to every creature under heaven, of which I, Paul, am a minister.

Christ in Us. <sup>24*</sup> Now I rejoice in my sufferings for your sake, and in my flesh I am filling up what is lacking in the afflictions of Christ on behalf of his body, which is the church, <sup>25</sup> of which I am a minister in accordance with God's stewardship given to me to bring to completion for you the word of God, <sup>26m</sup> the mystery hidden from ages and from generations past. But now it has been manifested to his holy ones, <sup>27n</sup> to whom God chose to make known the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles; it is Christ in you, the hope for glory. <sup>28o</sup> It is he whom we proclaim, admonishing everyone and teaching everyone with all wisdom, that we may present everyone perfect in Christ. <sup>29p</sup> For this I labor and struggle, in accord with the exercise of his power working within me.

CHAPTER 2

See RG 526–29

<sup>1*</sup>For I want you to know how great a struggle I am having for you and for those in Laodicea and all who have not seen me face to face, <sup>2q</sup>that their hearts may be encouraged as they are brought together in love, to have all the richness of fully assured understanding, for the knowledge of the mystery of God, Christ, <sup>3r</sup>in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.

III. WARNINGS AGAINST

FALSE TEACHERS

A General Admonition. <sup>4s*</sup>I say this so that no one may deceive you by specious arguments. <sup>5t</sup>For even if I am absent in the flesh, yet I am with you in spirit, rejoicing as I observe your good order and the firmness of your faith in Christ. <sup>6</sup>So, as you received Christ Jesus the Lord, walk in him, <sup>7u</sup>rooted in him and built upon him and established in the faith as you were taught, abounding in thanksgiving. <sup>8v*</sup>See to it that no one captivate you with an empty, seductive philosophy according to human tradition, according to the elemental powers of the world and not according to Christ.

Sovereign Role of Christ. <sup>9w*</sup>For in him dwells the whole fullness of the deity bodily, <sup>10</sup>and you share in this fullness in him, who is the head of every principality and power. <sup>11x*</sup>In him you were also circumcised with a circumcision not administered by hand, by stripping off the carnal body, with the circumcision of Christ. <sup>12y</sup>You were buried with him in baptism, in which you were also raised with him through faith in the power of God, who raised him from the dead. <sup>13z</sup>And even when you were dead [in] transgressions and the uncircumcision of your flesh, he brought you to life along with him, having forgiven us all our transgressions; <sup>14a*</sup>obliterating the bond against us, with its legal claims, which was opposed to us, he also removed it from our midst, nailing it to the cross; <sup>15b*</sup>despoiling the principalities and the powers, he made a public spectacle of them, leading them away in triumph by it.

Practices Contrary to Faith. <sup>16c*</sup>Let no one, then, pass judgment on you in matters of food and drink or with regard to a festival or new moon or sabbath. <sup>17d</sup>These are shadows of things to come; the reality belongs to Christ. <sup>18e*</sup>Let no one disqualify you, delighting in self-abasement and worship of angels, taking his stand on visions, inflated without reason by his fleshly mind, <sup>19f</sup>and not holding closely to the head, from whom the whole body, supported and held together by its ligaments and bonds, achieves the growth that comes from God.

<sup>20</sup>If you died with Christ to the elemental powers of the world, why do you submit to regulations as if you were still living in the world? <sup>21</sup>“Do not handle! Do not taste! Do not touch!” <sup>22g</sup>These are all things destined to perish with use; they accord with human precepts and teachings. <sup>23</sup> While they have a semblance of wisdom in rigor of devotion and self-abasement [and] severity to the body, they are of no value against gratification of the flesh.

IV. THE IDEAL CHRISTIAN LIFE IN THE WORLD

CHAPTER 3

Mystical Death and Resurrection. <sup>1h*</sup>If then you were raised with Christ, seek what is above, where Christ is seated at the right hand of God. <sup>2</sup>Think of what is above, not of what is on earth. <sup>3i</sup>For you have died, and your life is hidden with Christ in God. <sup>4</sup>When Christ your life appears, then you too will appear with him in glory.

Renunciation of Vice. <sup>5j*</sup>Put to death, then, the parts of you that are earthly: immorality, impurity, passion, evil desire, and the greed that is idolatry. <sup>6k*</sup>Because of these the wrath of God is coming [upon the disobedient]. <sup>7</sup>By these you too once conducted yourselves, when you lived in that way. <sup>8l*</sup>But now you must put them all away: anger, fury, malice, slander, and obscene language out of your mouths. <sup>9m</sup>Stop lying to one another, since you have taken off the old self with its practices <sup>10n*</sup>and have put on the new self, which is being renewed, for knowledge, in the image of its creator. <sup>11o*</sup>Here there is not Greek and Jew, circumcision and uncircumcision, barbarian, Scythian, slave, free; but Christ is all and in all.

<sup>12p</sup>Put on then, as God's chosen ones, holy and beloved, heartfelt compassion, kindness, humility, gentleness, and patience, <sup>13q</sup>bearing with one another and forgiving one another, if one has a grievance against another; as the Lord has forgiven you, so must you also do. <sup>14r</sup>And over all these put on love, that is, the bond of perfection. <sup>15s</sup>And let the peace of Christ control your hearts, the peace into which you were also called in one body. And be thankful. <sup>16t</sup>Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly, as in all wisdom you teach and admonish one another, singing psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs with gratitude in your hearts to God. <sup>17u</sup>And whatever you do, in word or in deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him.

The Christian Family. <sup>18v*</sup>Wives, be subordinate to your husbands, as is proper in the Lord. <sup>19</sup>Husbands, love your wives, and avoid any bitterness toward them. <sup>20w</sup>Children, obey your parents in everything, for this is pleasing to the Lord. <sup>21x</sup>Fathers, do not provoke your children, so they may not become discouraged.

Slaves and Masters. <sup>22y*</sup>Slaves, obey your human masters in everything, not only when being watched, as currying favor, but in simplicity of heart, fearing the Lord. <sup>23</sup>Whatever you do, do from the heart, as for the Lord and not for others, <sup>24</sup>knowing that you will receive from the Lord the due payment of the inheritance; be slaves of the Lord Christ. <sup>25z</sup>For the wrongdoer will receive recompense for the wrong he committed, and there is no partiality.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup>Masters, treat your slaves justly and fairly, realizing that you too have a Master in heaven.

Prayer and Apostolic Spirit. <sup>2a</sup>Persevere in prayer, being watchful in it with thanksgiving; <sup>3b</sup>at the same time, pray for us, too, that God may open a door to us for the word, to speak of the mystery of Christ, for which I am in prison, <sup>4</sup>that I may make it clear, as I must speak. <sup>5c</sup>Conduct yourselves wisely toward outsiders, making the most of the opportunity. <sup>6</sup>Let your speech always be gracious, seasoned with salt, so that you know how you should respond to each one.

V. CONCLUSION

Tychicus and Onesimus. <sup>7d*</sup>Tychicus, my beloved brother, trustworthy minister, and fellow slave in the Lord, will tell you all the news of me. <sup>8</sup>I am sending him to you for this very purpose, so that you may know about us and that he may encourage your hearts, <sup>9e</sup>together with Onesimus, a trustworthy and beloved brother, who is one of you. They will tell you about everything here.

From Paul's Co-Workers. <sup>10f*</sup>Aristarchus, my fellow prisoner, sends you greetings, as does Mark the cousin of Barnabas (concerning whom you have received instructions; if he comes to you, receive him), <sup>11*</sup>and Jesus, who is called Justus, who are of the circumcision; these alone are my co-workers for the kingdom of God, and they have been a comfort to me. <sup>12g*</sup>Epaphras sends you greetings; he is one of you, a slave of Christ [Jesus], always striving for you in his prayers so that you may be perfect and fully assured in all the will of God. <sup>13*</sup>For I can testify that he works very hard for you and for those in Laodicea and those in Hierapolis. <sup>14h*</sup>Luke the beloved physician sends greetings, as does Demas.

A Message for the Laodiceans. <sup>15*</sup>Give greetings to the brothers in Laodicea and to Nympha and to the church in her house. <sup>16*</sup>And when this letter is read before you, have it read also in the church of the Laodiceans, and you yourselves read the one from Laodicea. <sup>17i*</sup>And tell Archippus, “See that you fulfill the ministry that you received in the Lord.”

<sup>18j*</sup>The greeting is in my own hand, Paul’s. Remember my chains. Grace be with you.

1:1–2 For the epistolary form used by Paul at the beginning of his letters, see note on Rom 1:1–7. On holy ones or “God’s people,” see note on Rom 1:7. Awareness of their calling helps this group to be faithful brothers and sisters in Christ, i.e., dedicated to the tasks implied in their calling.

1:3–8 On thanksgiving at the start of a letter, see note on Rom 1:8. The apostle, recalling his own prayers for them and the good report about them he has received (Col 1:3–4), congratulates the Colossians upon their acceptance of Christ and their faithful efforts to live the gospel (Col 3:6–8). To encourage them he mentions the success of the gospel elsewhere (Col 1:6) and assures them that his knowledge of their community is accurate, since he has been in personal contact with Epaphras (Col 1:7–8), who likely had evangelized Colossae and other cities in the Lycus Valley of Asia Minor (cf. Col 4:12, 13; Phlm 23). On faith, love, and hope (Col 1:4, 5, 8), see note on 1 Cor 13:13; cf. 1 Thes 1:3; 5:8.

1:9–14 Moved by Epaphras’ account, the apostle has prayed and continues to pray fervently for the Colossians that, in their response to the gospel, they may be filled with the knowledge of God’s will (Col 1:9; cf. Col 3:10). Paul expects a mutual interaction between their life according to the gospel and this knowledge (Col 1:10), yielding results (fruit, Col 1:10; cf. Col 1:6) in every good work: growth, strength, endurance, patience, with joy (Col 1:11), and the further giving of thanks (Col 1:12).

1:12–14 A summary about redemption by the Father precedes the statement in Col 1:15–20 about the beloved Son who is God’s love in person (Col 1:13). Christians share the inheritance ... in light with the holy ones, here probably the angels (Col 1:12). The imagery reflects the Exodus (delivered ... transferred) and Jesus’ theme of the kingdom. Redemption is explained as forgiveness of sins (cf. Acts 2:38; Rom 3:24–25; Eph 1:7).

1:15–20 As the poetic arrangement indicates, these lines are probably an early Christian hymn, known to the Colossians and taken up into the letter from liturgical use (cf. Phil 2:6–11; 1 Tm 3:16). They present Christ as the mediator of creation (Col 1:15–18a) and of redemption (Col 1:18b–20). There is a parallelism between firstborn of all creation (Col 1:15) and firstborn from the dead (Col 1:18). While many of the phrases were at home in Greek philosophical use and even in gnosticism, the basic ideas also reflect Old Testament themes about Wisdom found in Prv 8:22–31; Wis 7:22–8:1; and Sir 1:4. See also notes on what is possibly a hymn in Jn 1:1–18.

1:15 Image: cf. Gn 1:27. Whereas the man and the woman were originally created in the image and likeness of God (see also Gn 1:26), Christ as image (2 Cor 4:4) of the invisible God (Jn 1:18) now shares this new nature in baptism with those redeemed (cf. Col 3:10–11).

1:16–17 Christ (though not mentioned by name) is preeminent and supreme as God’s agent in the creation of all things (cf. Jn 1:3), as prior to all things (Col 1:17; cf. Heb 1:3).

1:18 Church: such a reference seemingly belongs under “redemption” in the following lines, not under the “creation” section of the hymn. Stoic thought sometimes referred to the world as “the body of Zeus.” Pauline usage is to speak of the church as the body of Christ (1 Cor 12:12–27; Rom 12:4–5). Some think that the author of Colossians has inserted the reference to the church here so as to define “head of the body” in Paul’s customary way. See Col 1:24. Preeminent: when Christ was raised by God as firstborn from the dead (cf. Acts 26:23; Rev 1:5), he was placed over the community, the church, that he had brought into being, but he is also indicated as crown of the whole new creation, over all things. His further role is to reconcile all things (Col 1:20) for God or possibly “to himself.”

1:19 Fullness: in gnostic usage this term referred to a spiritual world of beings above, between God and the world; many later interpreters take it to refer to the fullness of the deity (Col 2:9); the reference could also be to the fullness of grace (cf. Jn 1:16).

1:20 The blood of his cross: the most specific reference in the hymn to redemption through Christ’s death, a central theme in Paul; cf. Col 2:14–15; 1 Cor 1:17, 18, 23. [Through him]: the phrase, lacking in some manuscripts, seems superfluous but parallels the reference to reconciliation through Christ earlier in the verse.

1:21–23 Paul, in applying this hymn to the Colossians, reminds them that they have experienced the reconciling effect of Christ’s death. He sees the effects of the cross in the redemption of human beings, not of cosmic powers such as those referred to in Col 1:16, 20 (all things). Paul also urges adherence to Christ in faith and begins to point to his own role as minister (Col 1:23), sufferer (Col 1:24), and proclaimer (Col 1:27–28) of this gospel.

1:24–2:3 As the community at Colossae was not personally known to Paul (see Introduction), he here invests his teaching with greater authority by presenting a brief sketch of his apostolic ministry and sufferings as they reflect those of Christ on behalf of the church (24). The preaching of God’s word (Col 1:25) carries out the divine plan (the mystery, Col 1:26) to make Christ known to the Gentiles (Col 1:27). It teaches the God-given wisdom about Christ (Col 1:28), whose power works mightily in the apostle (Col 1:29). Even in those communities that do not know him personally (Col 2:1), he can increase the perception of God in Christ, unite the faithful more firmly in love, and so bring encouragement to them (Col 2:2). He hopes that his apostolic authority will make the Colossians perceive more readily the defects in the teaching of others who have sought to delude them, the next concern in the letter.

1:24 What is lacking: although variously interpreted, this phrase does not imply that Christ’s atoning death on the cross was defective. It may refer to the apocalyptic concept of a quota of “messianic woes” to be endured before the end comes; cf. Mk 13:8, 19–20, 24 and the note on Mt 23:29–32. Others suggest that Paul’s mystical unity with Christ allowed him to call his own sufferings the afflictions of Christ.

2:1 Laodicea: chief city in Phrygia, northwest of Colossae; cf. Col 4:13, 16; Rev 3:14–22.

2:4–23 In face of the threat posed by false teachers (Col 2:4), the Colossians are admonished to adhere to the gospel as it was first preached to them (Col 2:6), steeping themselves in it with grateful hearts (Col 2:7). They must reject religious teachings originating in any source except the gospel (Col 2:8) because in Christ alone will they have access to God, the deity (Col 2:9). So fully has Christ enlightened them that they need no other source of religious knowledge or virtue (Col 2:10). They do not require circumcision (Col 2:11), for in baptism their whole being has been affected by Christ (Col 2:12) through forgiveness of sin and resurrection to a new life (Col 2:13; cf. Col 3:1 and Rom 6:1–11). On the cross Christ canceled the record of the debt that stood against us with all its claims (Col 2:14), i.e., he eliminated the law (cf. Eph 2:15) that human beings could not observe—and that could not save them. He forgave sins against the law (Col 2:14) and exposed as false and misleading (Col 2:15) all other powers (cf. Col 1:16) that purport to offer salvation. Therefore, the Colossians are not to accept judgments from such teachers on food and drink or to keep certain religious festivals or engage in certain cultic practices (Col 2:16), for the Colossians would thereby risk severing themselves from Christ (Col 2:19). If, when they accepted the gospel, they believed in Christ as their savior, they must be convinced that their salvation cannot be achieved by appeasing ruling spirits through dietary practices or through a wisdom gained simply by means of harsh asceticism (Col 2:20–23).

2:8 Elemental powers of the world: see note on Gal 4:3.

2:9 Fullness of the deity: the divine nature, not just attributes; see note on Col 1:19.

2:11 A description of baptism (Col 2:12) in symbolic terms of the Old Testament rite for entry into the community. The false teachers may have demanded physical circumcision of the Colossians.

2:14 The elaborate metaphor here about how God canceled the legal claims against us through Christ's cross depicts not Christ being nailed to the cross by men but the bond... with its legal claims being nailed to the cross by God.

2:15 The picture derives from the public spectacle and triumph of a Roman emperor's victory parade, where captives marched in subjection. The principalities and the powers are here conquered, not reconciled (cf. Col 1:16, 20). An alternate rendering for by it (the cross) is "by him" (Christ).

2:16 Festival or new moon or sabbath: yearly, monthly, and weekly observances determined by religious powers associated with a calendar set by the heavenly bodies, sun, moon, and stars (cf. Col 2:8).

2:18 Ascetic practices encouraged by the false teachers included subjection of self humbly to their rules, worship of angels, and cultivation of visions, though exact details are unclear.

3:1–4 By retaining the message of the gospel that the risen, living Christ is the source of their salvation, the Colossians will be free from false religious evaluations of the things of the world (Col 3:1–2). They have died to these; but one day when Christ ... appears, they will live with Christ in the presence of God (Col 3:3–4).

3:5–17 In lieu of false asceticism and superstitious festivals, the apostle reminds the Colossians of the moral life that is to characterize their response to God through Christ. He urges their participation in the liturgical hymns and prayers that center upon God's plan of salvation in Christ (Col 3:16).

3:5, 8 The two lists of five vices each are similar to enumerations at Rom 1:29–31 and Gal 5:19–21.

3:6 The wrath of God: see note on Rom 1:18. Many manuscripts add, as at Eph 5:6, "upon the disobedient."

3:8–10 Put ... away; have taken off; have put on: the terms may reflect baptismal practice, taking off garments and putting on new ones after being united with Christ, here translated into ethical terms.

3:11 Scythian: a barbarous people from north of the Black Sea.

3:18–4:6 After general recommendations that connect family life and the social condition of slavery with the service of Christ (Col 3:18–4:1), Paul requests prayers for himself, especially in view of his imprisonment (Col 3:2–3), and recommends friendly relations and meaningful discussions of Christian teaching with outsiders, i.e., non-Christians (Col 3:5–6). See note on Eph 5:21–6:9.

3:22–25 Slaves: within this table of duties in family and societal relations, involving wives and husbands, children and parents (Col 3:18–21), such as also appears in Eph 5:22–6:9, slaves here receive special attention because of the case of Onesimus the slave returning to his master (Col 4:9; Phlm 10–12).

4:7–18 Paul concludes with greetings and information concerning various Christians known to the Colossians.

4:7 Tychicus: Acts 20:4 mentions his role in the collection for Jerusalem; Eph 6:21 repeats what is said here; see also 2 Tm 4:12; Ti 3:12.

4:10 Aristarchus: a Thessalonian who was with Paul at Ephesus and Caesarea and on the voyage to Rome (Acts 19:29; 20:4; 27:2). Mark: also referred to at Phlm 24 and 2 Tm 4:11 and, as "John Mark," in Acts (Acts 12:12, 25; 13:13; 15:37–40). See also 1 Pt 5:13 and the note there. Traditionally the author of the second gospel.

4:11 Jesus: a then common Jewish name, the Greek form of Joshua.

4:12 Epaphras: see notes on Col 1:3–8 and Col 1:7.

4:13 Laodicea: see note on Col 2:1. Hierapolis: a city northeast of Laodicea and northwest of Colossae.

4:14 Luke: only here described as a medical doctor; cf. Phlm 24 and 2 Tm 4:11. Traditionally the author of the third gospel. Demas: cf. Phlm 24; he later deserted Paul (2 Tm 4:10).

4:15 Nympha and... her house: some manuscripts read a masculine for the house-church leader, “Nymphas and... his house.”

4:16 The one from Laodicea: either a letter by Paul that has been lost or the Letter to the Ephesians (cf. note on Eph 1:1 in Ephesus).

4:17 Fulfill the ministry: usually taken to mean that Archippus, the son of Philemon and Apphia (Phlm 1–2), is “pastor” at Colossae. An alternate interpretation is that Archippus, not Philemon, is the owner of the slave Onesimus and that Paul is asking Archippus to complete the service he has received in the Lord by sending Onesimus back to minister to Paul in his captivity (cf. Phlm 20).

4:18 My own hand: a postscript in Paul’s own hand was his custom; cf. Gal 6:11–18 and 2 Thes 3:17–18.

The First Letter to the Thessalonians

1 2 3 4 5

See RG 529–33

When Paul parted from Barnabas (Acts 15:36–41) at the beginning of what is called his second missionary journey, he chose Silvanus (Silas) as his traveling companion. Soon afterwards he took Timothy along with him (Acts 16:1–3). Paul was now clearly at the head of his own missionary band. About A.D. 50, he arrived in Greece for the first time. In making converts in Philippi and, soon afterwards, in Thessalonica, he was beset by persecution from Jews and Gentiles alike. Moving on to Beroea, he was again harassed by enemies from Thessalonica and hurriedly left for Athens (Acts 16:11–17:15). Silvanus and Timothy remained behind for a while. Paul soon sent Timothy back to Thessalonica to strengthen that community in its trials (1 Thes 3:1–5). Timothy and Silvanus finally returned to Paul when he reached Corinth (Acts 18:1–18), probably in the early summer of A.D. 51. Timothy's return with a report on conditions at Thessalonica served as the occasion for Paul's first letter (1 Thes 3:6–8).

The letter begins with a brief address (1 Thes 1:1) and concludes with a greeting (1 Thes 5:26–28). The body of the letter consists of two major parts. The first (1 Thes 1:2–3:13) is a set of three sections of thanksgiving connected by two apologiae (defenses) dealing, respectively, with the missionaries' previous conduct and their current concerns. Paul's thankful optimism regarding the Thessalonians' spiritual welfare is tempered by his insistence on their recognition of the selfless love shown by the missionaries. In an age of itinerant peddlers of new religions, Paul found it necessary to emphasize not only the content of his gospel but also his manner of presenting it, for both attested to God's grace as freely bestowed and powerfully effected.

The second part of the letter (1 Thes 4:1–5:25) is specifically hortatory or parenetic. The superabundant love for which Paul has just prayed (1 Thes 3:12–13) is to be shown practically by living out the norms of conduct that he has communicated to them. Specific “imperatives” of Christian life, principles for acting morally, stem from the “indicative” of one’s relationship to God through Christ by the sending of the holy Spirit. Thus, moral conduct is the practical, personal expression of one’s Christian faith, love, and hope.

The principal divisions of the First Letter to the Thessalonians are the following:

- I. Address (1:1–10)
- II. Previous Relations with the Thessalonians (2:1–3:13)
- III. Specific Exhortations (4:1–5:25)
- IV. Final Greeting (5:26–28)

I. ADDRESS

CHAPTER 1

Greeting. <sup>1a*</sup>Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy to the church of the Thessalonians in God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ: grace to you and peace.

Thanksgiving for Their Faith. <sup>2b</sup>We give thanks to God always for all of you, remembering you in our prayers, unceasingly <sup>3*</sup>calling to mind your work of faith and labor of love and endurance in hope of our Lord Jesus Christ, before our God and Father, <sup>4c</sup>knowing, brothers loved by God, how you were chosen. <sup>5d</sup>For our gospel did not come to you in word alone, but also in power and in the holy Spirit and [with] much conviction. You know what sort of people we were [among] you for your sake. <sup>6*</sup>And you became imitators of us and of the Lord, receiving the word in great affliction, with joy from the holy Spirit, <sup>7e</sup>so that you became a model for all the believers in Macedonia and in Achaia. <sup>8f</sup>For from you the word of the Lord has sounded forth not only in Macedonia and [in] Achaia, but in every place your faith in God has gone forth, so that we have no need to say anything. <sup>9g</sup>For they themselves openly declare about us what sort of reception we had among you, and how you turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God <sup>10h</sup>and to await his Son from heaven, whom he raised from [the] dead, Jesus, who delivers us from the coming wrath.

II. PREVIOUS RELATIONS WITH THE THESSALONIANS

CHAPTER 2

Paul's Ministry Among Them. <sup>1</sup>For you yourselves know, brothers, that our reception among you was not without effect. <sup>2i</sup>Rather, after we had suffered and been insolently treated, as you know, in Philippi, we drew courage through our God to speak to you the gospel of God with much struggle. <sup>3</sup> Our exhortation was not from delusion or impure motives, nor did it work through deception. <sup>4j*</sup>But as we were judged worthy by God to be entrusted with the gospel, that is how we speak, not as trying to please human beings, but rather God, who judges our hearts. <sup>5</sup>Nor, indeed, did we ever appear with flattering speech, as you know, or with a pretext for greed—God is witness—<sup>6k</sup>nor did we seek praise from human beings, either from you or from others, <sup>7*</sup>although we were able to impose our weight as apostles of Christ. Rather, we were gentle among you, as a nursing mother cares for her children. <sup>8</sup>With such affection for you, we were determined to share with you not only the gospel of God, but our very selves as well, so dearly beloved had you become to us. <sup>9l</sup>You recall, brothers, our toil and drudgery. Working night and day in order not to burden any of you, we proclaimed to you the gospel of God. <sup>10</sup>You are witnesses, and so is God, how devoutly and justly and blamelessly we behaved toward you believers. <sup>11m</sup>As you know, we treated each one of you as a father treats his children, <sup>12n</sup>exhorting and encouraging you and insisting that you conduct yourselves as worthy of the God who calls you into his kingdom and glory.

Further Thanksgiving. <sup>13</sup>And for this reason we too give thanks to God unceasingly, that, in receiving the word of God from hearing us, you received not a human word but, as it truly is, the word of God, which is now at work in you who believe. <sup>14*</sup>For you, brothers, have become imitators of the churches of God that are in Judea in Christ Jesus. For you suffer the same things from your compatriots as they did from the Jews, <sup>15o*</sup>who killed both the Lord Jesus and the prophets and persecuted us; they do not please God, and are opposed to everyone, <sup>16p</sup>trying to prevent us from speaking to the Gentiles that they may be saved, thus constantly filling up the measure of their sins. But the wrath of God has finally begun to come upon them.

Paul's Recent Travel Plans. <sup>17</sup><sup>q</sup>Brothers, when we were bereft of you for a short time, in person, not in heart, we were all the more eager in our great desire to see you in person. <sup>18</sup><sup>r</sup>We decided to go to you—I, Paul, not only once but more than once—yet Satan thwarted us. <sup>19</sup><sup>s</sup>For what is our hope or joy or crown to boast of in the presence of our Lord Jesus at his coming if not you yourselves? <sup>20</sup>For you are our glory and joy.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1t</sup> That is why, when we could bear it no longer, we decided to remain alone in Athens <sup>2u</sup>and sent Timothy, our brother and co-worker for God in the gospel of Christ, to strengthen and encourage you in your faith, <sup>3*</sup> so that no one be disturbed in these afflictions. For you yourselves know that we are destined for this. <sup>4v</sup>For even when we were among you, we used to warn you in advance that we would undergo affliction, just as has happened, as you know. <sup>5</sup>For this reason, when I too could bear it no longer, I sent to learn about your faith, for fear that somehow the tempter had put you to the test and our toil might come to nothing.

<sup>6</sup>But just now Timothy has returned to us from you, bringing us the good news of your faith and love, and that you always think kindly of us and long to see us as we long to see you. <sup>7</sup>Because of this, we have been reassured about you, brothers, in our every distress and affliction, through your faith. <sup>8</sup>For we now live, if you stand firm in the Lord.

Concluding Thanksgiving and Prayer. <sup>9*</sup>What thanksgiving, then, can we render to God for you, for all the joy we feel on your account before our God? <sup>10</sup>Night and day we pray beyond measure to see you in person and to remedy the deficiencies of your faith. <sup>11</sup> Now may God himself, our Father, and our Lord Jesus direct our way to you, <sup>12w</sup>and may the Lord make you increase and abound in love for one another and for all, just as we have for you, <sup>13x</sup>so as to strengthen your hearts, to be blameless in holiness before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all his holy ones. [Amen.]

III. SPECIFIC EXHORTATIONS

CHAPTER 4

See RG 531–33

General Exhortations. <sup>1</sup>Finally, brothers, we earnestly ask and exhort you in the Lord Jesus that, as you received from us how you should conduct yourselves to please God—and as you are conducting yourselves—you do so even more. <sup>2*</sup>For you know what instructions we gave you through the Lord Jesus.

Holiness in Sexual Conduct. <sup>3*</sup>This is the will of God, your holiness: that you refrain from immorality, <sup>4</sup>that each of you know how to acquire a wife for himself in holiness and honor, <sup>5y</sup>not in lustful passion as do the Gentiles who do not know God; <sup>6</sup>not to take advantage of or exploit a brother in this matter, for the Lord is an avenger in all these things, as we told you before and solemnly affirmed. <sup>7</sup>For God did not call us to impurity but to holiness. <sup>8z</sup>Therefore, whoever disregards this, disregards not a human being but God, who [also] gives his holy Spirit to you.

Mutual Charity. <sup>9a</sup>On the subject of mutual charity you have no need for anyone to write you, for you yourselves have been taught by God to love one another. <sup>10b</sup>Indeed, you do this for all the brothers throughout Macedonia. Nevertheless we urge you, brothers, to progress even more, <sup>11</sup>and to aspire to live a tranquil life, to mind your own affairs, and to work with your [own] hands, as we instructed you, <sup>12</sup>that you may conduct yourselves properly toward outsiders and not depend on anyone.

Hope for the Christian Dead. <sup>13</sup>We do not want you to be unaware, brothers, about those who have fallen asleep, so that you may not grieve like the rest, who have no hope. <sup>14c</sup>For if we believe that Jesus died and rose, so too will God, through Jesus, bring with him those who have fallen asleep. <sup>15d*</sup>Indeed, we tell you this, on the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, who are left until the coming of the Lord, will surely not precede those who have fallen asleep. <sup>16e</sup>For the Lord himself, with a word of command, with the voice of an archangel and with the trumpet of God, will come down from heaven, and the dead in Christ will rise first. <sup>17*</sup>Then we who are alive, who are left, will be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. Thus we shall always be with the Lord. <sup>18</sup>Therefore, console one another with these words.

CHAPTER 5

Vigilance. <sup>1f</sup>Concerning times and seasons, brothers, you have no need for anything to be written to you. <sup>2g</sup>For you yourselves know very well that the day of the Lord will come like a thief at night. <sup>3</sup>When people are saying, “Peace and security,” then sudden disaster comes upon them, like labor pains upon a pregnant woman, and they will not escape.

<sup>4h</sup>But you, brothers, are not in darkness, for that day to overtake you like a thief. <sup>5*</sup>For all of you are children of the light and children of the day. We are not of the night or of darkness. <sup>6i</sup>Therefore, let us not sleep as the rest do, but let us stay alert and sober. <sup>7</sup>Those who sleep go to sleep at night, and those who are drunk get drunk at night. <sup>8j</sup> But since we are of the day, let us be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love and the helmet that is hope for salvation. <sup>9</sup>For God did not destine us for wrath, but to gain salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, <sup>10*</sup>who died for us, so that whether we are awake or asleep we may live together with him. <sup>11 k</sup>Therefore, encourage one another and build one another up, as indeed you do.

Church Order. <sup>12</sup>We ask you, brothers, to respect those who are laboring among you and who are over you in the Lord and who admonish you, <sup>13</sup>and to show esteem for them with special love on account of their work. Be at peace among yourselves.

Concluding Prayer. <sup>23n*</sup>May the God of peace himself make you perfectly holy and may you entirely, spirit, soul, and body, be preserved blameless for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>24</sup>The one who calls you is faithful, and he will also accomplish it. <sup>25</sup>Brothers, pray for us [too].

IV. FINAL GREETING

1:1 On the address, see note on Rom 1:1–7.

1:3 Faith... love... hope: this, along with 1 Thes 5:8, is the earliest mention in Christian literature of the three “theological virtues” (see 1 Cor 13:13). The order here stresses eschatological hope, in line with the letter’s emphasis on the Lord’s second, triumphal coming, or parousia (1 Thes 1:10; 2:12, 19; 3:13; 4:13–5:11; 5:23).

1:6 Imitators: the Pauline theme of “imitation” (see 1 Thes 2:14; 1 Cor 4:16; 11:1; 2 Thes 3:9) is rooted in Paul’s view of solidarity in Christ through sharing in Jesus’ cross and in the Spirit of the risen Lord.

2:4 Judged worthy: Paul regards “worthiness” not as grounded in one’s own talent or moral self-righteousness but in God’s discernment of genuinely selfless attitudes and actions (see 2 Cor 10:17–18).

2:7 Gentle: many excellent manuscripts read “infants” (nēpioi), but “gentle” (ēpioi) better suits the context here.

2:14 Luke’s picture of the persecutions at Philippi (by Gentiles) and in Thessalonica and Beroea (by Jews) seems to be considerably schematized (Acts 16:11–40; 17:1–15). Paul pictures the Thessalonian community as composed of converts from paganism (1 Thes 1:9) and speaks here of persecution by their (pagan) compatriots rather than by Jews.

2:15–16 Paul is speaking of historical opposition on the part of Palestinian Jews in particular and does so only some twenty years after Jesus’ crucifixion. Even so, he quickly proceeds to depict the persecutors typologically, in apocalyptic terms. His remarks give no grounds for anti-Semitism to those willing to understand him, especially in view of Paul’s pride in his own ethnic and religious background (Rom 9:1–5; 10:1; 11:1–3; Phil 3:4–6). Sinful conduct (1 Thes 2:16) is itself an anticipation of the ultimate wrath or judgment of God (Rom 1:18–2:5), whether or not it is perceived as such.

3:3 We are destined: the Greek phraseology and the context suggest Paul’s concern to alert his readers to difficulties he knew they would necessarily face and to enable them to see their present experience in the light of what he warned them would happen in the future. This line of thought is followed in 2 Thes 2:1–15.

3:9–10 The tension between Paul’s optimism concerning the Thessalonians’ faith and his worries about their perseverance remains unresolved. Perhaps this is accounted for not only by the continuing harassment but also by the shortness of his own stay in Thessalonica (even if that were over twice as long as the conventional three weeks that Luke assigns to it, Acts 17:2).

4:2 Instructions: these include specific guidelines on the basis of the Lord’s authority, not necessarily sayings Jesus actually uttered. More profoundly, as 1 Thes 4:8 implies, the instructions are practical principles that Paul worked out in accordance with his understanding of the role of the Spirit.

4:3–8 Many think that this passage deals with a variety of moral regulations (fornication, adultery, sharp business practices). It can be more specifically interpreted as bringing general norms to bear on a specific problem, namely, marriage within degrees of consanguinity (as between uncle and niece) forbidden in Jewish law but allowed according to a Greek heiress law, which would insure retention of an inheritance within the family and perhaps thereby occasion divorce. In that case, “immorality” (1 Thes 4:3) should be rendered as “unlawful marriage” and “this matter” (1 Thes 4:6) as “a lawsuit.” The phrase in 1 Thes 4:4, “acquire a wife for himself,” has often been interpreted to mean “control one’s body.”

4:15 Coming of the Lord: Paul here assumes that the second coming, or parousia, will occur within his own lifetime but insists that the time or season is unknown (1 Thes 5:1–2). Nevertheless, the most important aspect of the parousia for him was the fulfillment of union with Christ. His pastoral exhortation focuses first on hope for the departed faithful, then (1 Thes 5:1–3) on the need of preparedness for those who have to achieve their goal.

4:17 Will be caught up together: literally, snatched up, carried off; cf. 2 Cor 12:2; Rev 12:5. From the Latin verb here used, rapiemur, has come the idea of “the rapture,” when believers will be transported away from the woes of the world; this construction combines this verse with Mt 24:40–41 (see note there) // Lk 17:34–35 and passages from Revelation in a scheme of millennial dispensationalism.

5:5 Children of the light: that is, belonging to the daylight of God’s personal revelation and expected to achieve it (an analogous development of imagery that appears in Jn 12:36).

5:10 Characteristically, Paul plays on words suggesting ultimate and anticipated death and life. Union with the crucified and risen Lord at his parousia is anticipated in some measure in contrasted states of our temporal life. The essential element he urges is our indestructible personal union in Christ’s own life (see Rom 5:1–10).

5:19–21 Paul’s buoyant encouragement of charismatic freedom sometimes occasioned excesses that he or others had to remedy (see 1 Cor 14; 2 Thes 2:1–15; 2 Pt 3:1–16).

5:23 Another possible translation is, “May the God of peace himself make you perfectly holy and sanctify your spirit fully, and may both soul and body be preserved blameless for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.” In either case, Paul is not offering an anthropological or philosophical analysis of human nature. Rather, he looks to the wholeness of what may be called the supernatural and natural aspects of a person’s service of God.

5:26 Kiss: the holy embrace (see Rom 16:16; 1 Cor 16:20; 2 Cor 13:12; 1 Pt 5:14) was a greeting of respect and affection, perhaps given during a liturgy at which Paul’s letter would have been read.

The Second Letter to the Thessalonians

1 2 3

See RG 529–35

This letter is addressed to the same church as the letter that precedes it in the canon and contains many expressions parallel to those in the First Letter to the Thessalonians, indeed verbatim with them. Yet other aspects of the contents of the Second Letter to the Thessalonians suggest a more impersonal tone and changed circumstances in the situation at Thessalonica.

The letter begins with an address (2 Thes 1:1–2) that expands only slightly on that of 1 Thes 1:1. It ends with a greeting insisting on its Pauline authority in the face of false claims made in Paul's name (see note on 2 Thes 2:2). The body of the letter falls into three short parts, of which the second is notoriously difficult (2 Thes 2).

The opening thanksgiving and prayer (2 Thes 1:3–12) speak of the Thessalonians' increasing faith and love in the face of outside persecution. God's eventual judgment against persecutors and his salvation for the faithful are already evidenced by the very fact of persecution. The second part (2 Thes 2:1–17), the heart of the letter, deals with a problem threatening the faith of the community. A message involving a prophetic oracle and apparently a forged letter, possibly presented at a liturgical gathering (cf. 2 Thes 2:2 and 1 Cor 14:26–33), to the effect that the day of the Lord and all that it means have already come, has upset the life of the Thessalonian church.

The writer counters their preoccupation with the date of the parousia (or coming again of the Lord Jesus from heaven, 2 Thes 2:1) by recalling Paul's teaching concerning what must happen first and by going on to describe what will happen at the Lord's coming (2 Thes 2:8); he indicates the twofold process by which the "activity of Satan" and God's actions (2 Thes 2:9–11) are working out, namely, a growing division between believers and those who succumb to false prophecy and “the lie.” He concludes by insisting on Pauline traditions and by praying for divine strength (2 Thes 2:13–17). The closing part of the letter (2 Thes 3:1–16) deals in particular with the apostle’s directives and model style of life and with correction of disorderly elements within the community.

Traditional opinion holds that this letter was written shortly after 1 Thessalonians. Occasionally it has been argued that 2 Thessalonians was written first or that the two letters are addressed to different segments within the church at Thessalonica (2 Thessalonians being directed to the Jewish Christians there) or even that 2 Thessalonians was originally written to some other nearby place where Paul carried out mission work, such as Philippi or Beroea. Increasingly in recent times, however, the opinion has been advanced that 2 Thessalonians is a pseudepigraph, that is, a letter written authoritatively in Paul’s name, to maintain apostolic traditions in a later period, perhaps during the last two decades of the first century.

In any case, the presumed audience of Second Thessalonians and certain features of its style and content require that it be read and studied in a Pauline context, particularly that provided by 1 Thessalonians. At the same time, and especially if the letter is regarded as not by Paul himself, its apocalyptic presentation of preconditions for the parousia (2 Thes 2:1–12) may profit from and require recourse to a wider biblical basis for interpretation, namely Old Testament books such as Daniel and Isaiah and especially, in the New Testament, the synoptic apocalyptic discourse (Mk 13; Mt 24–25; Lk 21:5–36) and the Book of Revelation.

The principal divisions of the Second Letter to the Thessalonians are the following:

- I. Address (1:1–12)
- II. Warning Against Deception Concerning the Parousia (2:1–17)
- III. Concluding Exhortations (3:1–16)
- IV. Final Greetings (3:17–18)

Greeting. <sup>1a*</sup>Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy to the church of the Thessalonians in God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ: <sup>2</sup> grace to you and peace from God [our] Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Thanksgiving. <sup>3b*</sup>We ought to thank God always for you, brothers, as is fitting, because your faith flourishes ever more, and the love of every one of you for one another grows ever greater. <sup>4</sup> Accordingly, we ourselves boast of you in the churches of God regarding your endurance and faith in all your persecutions and the afflictions you endure.

<sup>5c</sup>This is evidence of the just judgment of God, so that you may be considered worthy of the kingdom of God for which you are suffering. <sup>6</sup>For it is surely just on God's part to repay with afflictions those who are afflicting you, <sup>7</sup>and to grant rest along with us to you who are undergoing afflictions, at the revelation of the Lord Jesus from heaven with his mighty angels, <sup>8d</sup>in blazing fire, inflicting punishment on those who do not acknowledge God and on those who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus. <sup>9e</sup>These will pay the penalty of eternal ruin, separated from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of his power, <sup>10f*</sup>when he comes to be glorified among his holy ones and to be marveled at on that day among all who have believed, for our testimony to you was believed.

Prayer. <sup>11g</sup>To this end, we always pray for you, that our God may make you worthy of his calling and powerfully bring to fulfillment every good purpose and every effort of faith, <sup>12h*</sup>that the name of our Lord Jesus may be glorified in you, and you in him, in accord with the grace of our God and Lord Jesus Christ.

II. WARNING AGAINST DECEPTION CONCERNING THE PAROUSIA

CHAPTER 2

See RG 534–35

Christ and the Lawless One. <sup>1i*</sup>We ask you, brothers, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and our assembling with him, <sup>2j*</sup>not to be shaken out of your minds suddenly, or to be alarmed either by a “spirit,” or by an oral statement, or by a letter allegedly from us to the effect that the day of the Lord is at hand. <sup>3*</sup>Let no one deceive you in any way. For unless the apostasy comes first and the lawless one is revealed, the one doomed to perdition, <sup>4k*</sup>who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god and object of worship, so as to seat himself in the temple of God, claiming that he is a god—<sup>5</sup>do you not recall that while I was still with you I told you these things? <sup>6*</sup>And now you know what is restraining, that he may be revealed in his time. <sup>7l*</sup>For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work. But the one who restrains is to do so only for the present, until he is removed from the scene. <sup>8m</sup>And then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord [Jesus] will kill with the breath of his mouth and render powerless by the manifestation of his coming, <sup>9n</sup>the one whose coming springs from the power of Satan in every mighty deed and in signs and wonders that lie, <sup>10</sup>and in every wicked deceit for those who are perishing because they have not accepted the love of truth so that they may be saved. <sup>11</sup>Therefore, God is sending them a deceiving power so that they may believe the lie, <sup>12</sup>that all who have not believed the truth but have approved wrongdoing may be condemned.

<sup>13o*</sup>But we ought to give thanks to God for you always, brothers loved by the Lord, because God chose you as the firstfruits for salvation through sanctification by the Spirit and belief in truth. <sup>14p</sup>To this end he has [also] called you through our gospel to possess the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>15*</sup>Therefore, brothers, stand firm and hold fast to the traditions that you were taught, either by an oral statement or by a letter of ours.

<sup>16</sup>May our Lord Jesus Christ himself and God our Father, who has loved us and given us everlasting encouragement and good hope through his grace, <sup>17</sup>encourage your hearts and strengthen them in every good deed and word.

III. CONCLUDING EXHORTATIONS

CHAPTER 3

See RG 534–35

Request for Prayers. <sup>1q*</sup>Finally, brothers, pray for us, so that the word of the Lord may speed forward and be glorified, as it did among you, <sup>2</sup>and that we may be delivered from perverse and wicked people, for not all have faith. <sup>3r</sup>But the Lord is faithful; he will strengthen you and guard you from the evil one. <sup>4s</sup>We are confident of you in the Lord that what we instruct you, you [both] are doing and will continue to do. <sup>5</sup>May the Lord direct your hearts to the love of God and to the endurance of Christ.

Neglect of Work. <sup>6*</sup>We instruct you, brothers, in the name of [our] Lord Jesus Christ, to shun any brother who conducts himself in a disorderly way and not according to the tradition they received from us. <sup>7</sup>For you know how one must imitate us. For we did not act in a disorderly way among you, <sup>8t</sup>nor did we eat food received free from anyone. On the contrary, in toil and drudgery, night and day we worked, so as not to burden any of you. <sup>9u</sup>Not that we do not have the right. Rather, we wanted to present ourselves as a model for you, so that you might imitate us. <sup>10v</sup>In fact, when we were with you, we instructed you that if anyone was unwilling to work, neither should that one eat. <sup>11w</sup>We hear that some are conducting themselves among you in a disorderly way, by not keeping busy but minding the business of others. <sup>12</sup>Such people we instruct and urge in the Lord Jesus Christ to work quietly and to eat their own food. <sup>13</sup> But you, brothers, do not be remiss in doing good. <sup>14</sup>If anyone does not obey our word as expressed in this letter, take note of this person not to associate with him, that he may be put to shame. <sup>15x</sup>Do not regard him as an enemy but admonish him as a brother. <sup>16y</sup> May the Lord of peace himself give you peace at all times and in every way. The Lord be with all of you.

IV. FINAL GREETINGS

<sup>17z</sup>This greeting is in my own hand, Paul's. This is the sign in every letter; this is how I write. <sup>18</sup>The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with all of you.

1:1–2 On the address, see note on Rom 1:1–7 and cf. 1 Thes 1:1.

1:3–12 On the thanksgiving, see note on Rom 1:8 and cf. 1 Thes 1:2–10. Paul's gratitude to God for the faith and love of the Thessalonians (2 Thes 1:3) and his Christian pride in their faithful endurance (2 Thes 1:4–5) contrast with the condemnation announced for those who afflict them, a judgment to be carried out at the parousia (2 Thes 1:6–10), which is described in vivid language drawn from Old Testament apocalyptic. A prayer for the fulfillment of God's purpose in the Thessalonians (2 Thes 1:11–12) completes the section, as is customary in a Pauline letter (cf. 1 Thes 1:2–3).

1:10 Among his holy ones: in the Old Testament, this term can refer to an angelic throng (cf. also Jude 14), but here, in parallel with among all who have believed, it can refer to the triumphant people of God.

1:12 The grace of our God and Lord Jesus Christ: the Greek can also be translated, “the grace of our God and of the Lord Jesus Christ.”

2:1–17 The Thessalonians have been shaken by a message purporting to come from Paul himself that the day of the Lord is already present. He warns against this deception in eschatology by citing a scenario of events that must first occur (2 Thes 2:3–12) before the end will come. The overall point Paul makes is the need to reject such lies as Satan sends; he also reaffirms the Thessalonians in their calling (2 Thes 2:13–14). They are to uphold what Paul himself has taught (2 Thes 2:15). There is a concluding prayer for their strengthening (2 Thes 2:16–17). As in 2 Thes 1:8–10, the Old Testament provides a good deal of coloring; cf. especially Is 14:13–14; 66:15, 18–21; Ez 28:2–9; Dn 11:36–37. The contents of 2 Thes 2:3b–8 may come from a previously existing apocalypse. The details have been variously interpreted.

An alternative to the possibilities noted below understands that an oracular utterance, supposedly coming from a prophetic spirit (2 Thes 2:2–3a), has so disrupted the community's thinking that its effects may be compared to those of the mania connected with the worship of the Greek god Dionysus. On this view, the writer seems to allude in 2 Thes 2:6–8 to Dionysiac “seizure,” although, of course, ironically, somewhat as Paul alludes to witchcraft (“an evil eye”) in Gal 3:1 in speaking of the threat to faith posed by those disturbing the Galatians (Gal 1:6–7; 5:10b). On this view of 2 Thes, the Greek participles katechon (rendered above as what is restraining) and katechon (the one who restrains) are to be translated “the seizing power” in 2 Thes 2:6 and “the seizer” in 2 Thes 2:7. They then allude to a pseudocharismatic force or spirit of Dionysiac character that has suddenly taken hold of the Thessalonian community (see 2 Thes 2:2). The addressees know (2 Thes 2:6) this force or spirit because of the problem it is causing. This pseudocharismatic force or spirit is a kind of anticipation and advance proof of the ultimate, climactic figure (the lawless one or the rebel, 2 Thes 2:3), of which the community has been warned (see note on 1 Thes 3:3). It is, however, only the beginning of the end that the latter's manifestation entails; the end is not yet. For in the course of the mystery of lawlessness (2 Thes 2:7), false prophetism, after it ceases in the Thessalonian community, will be manifested in the world at large (2 Thes 2:8–12), where it will also be eliminated in turn by the Lord Jesus.

2:2 “Spirit”: a Spirit-inspired utterance or ecstatic revelation. An oral statement: literally, a “word” or pronouncement, not necessarily of ecstatic origin. A letter allegedly sent by us: possibly a forged letter, so that Paul calls attention in 2 Thes 3:17 to his practice of concluding a genuine letter with a summary note or greeting in his own hand, as at Gal 6:11–18 and elsewhere.

2:3b–5 This incomplete sentence (anacoluthon, 2 Thes 2:4) recalls what the Thessalonians had already been taught, an apocalyptic scenario depicting, in terms borrowed especially from Dn 11:36–37 and related verses, human self-assertiveness against God in the temple of God itself. The lawless one represents the climax of such activity in this account.

2:4 Seat himself in the temple of God: a reflection of the language in Dn 7:23–25; 8:9–12; 9:27; 11:36–37; 12:11 about the attempt of Antiochus IV Epiphanes to set up a statue of Zeus in the Jerusalem temple and possibly of the Roman emperor Caligula to do a similar thing (Mk 13:14). Here the imagery suggests an attempt to install someone in the place of God, claiming that he is a god (cf. Ez 28:2). Usually, it is the Jerusalem temple that is assumed to be meant; on the alternative view sketched above (see note on 2 Thes 2:1–17), the temple refers to the Christian community.

2:6–7 What is restraining... the one who restrains: neuter and masculine, respectively, of a force and person holding back the lawless one. The Thessalonians know what is meant (2 Thes 2:6), but the terms, seemingly found only in this passage and in writings dependent on it, have been variously interpreted. Traditionally, 2 Thes 2:6 has been applied to the Roman empire and 2 Thes 2:7 to the Roman emperor (in Paul's day, Nero) as bulwarks holding back chaos (cf. Rom 13:1–7). A second interpretation suggests that cosmic or angelic powers are binding Satan (2 Thes 2:9) and so restraining him; some relate this to an anti-Christ figure (1 Jn 2:18) or to Michael the archangel (Rev 12:7–9; 20:1–3). A more recent view suggests that it is the preaching of the Christian gospel that restrains the end, for in God's plan the end cannot come until the gospel is preached to all nations (Mk 13:10); in that case, Paul as missionary preacher par excellence is "the one who restrains," whose removal (death) will bring the end (2 Thes 2:7). On the alternative view (see note on 2 Thes 2:1–17), the phrases should be referred to that which and to him who seizes (a prophet) in ecstasy so as to have him speak pseudo-oracles.

2:7–12 The lawless one and the one who restrains are involved in an activity or process, the mystery of lawlessness, behind which Satan stands (2 Thes 2:9). The action of the Lord [Jesus] in overcoming the lawless one is described in Old Testament language (with the breath of his mouth; cf. Is 11:4; Jb 4:9; Rev 19:15). His coming is literally the Lord's "parousia." The biblical concept of the "holy war," eschatologically conceived, may underlie the imagery.

2:13 As the firstfruits: there is also strong manuscript evidence for the reading, "God chose you from the beginning," thus providing a focus on God's activity from beginning to end; firstfruits is a Pauline term, however; cf. Rom 8:23; 11:16; 16:5 among other references.

2:15 Reference to an oral statement and a letter (2 Thes 2:2) and the content here, including a formula of conclusion (cf. 1 Cor 16:13; Gal 5:1), suggest that 2 Thes 2:1–15 or even 2 Thes 2:1–17 are to be taken as a literary unit, notwithstanding the incidental thanksgiving formula in 2 Thes 2:13.

3:1–18 The final chapter urges the Thessalonians to pray for Paul and his colleagues (2 Thes 3:1–2) and reiterates confidence in the Thessalonians (2 Thes 3:3–5), while admonishing them about a specific problem in their community that has grown out of the intense eschatological speculation, namely, not to work but to become instead disorderly busybodies (2 Thes 3:6–15). A benediction (2 Thes 3:16) and postscript in Paul's own hand round out the letter. On 2 Thes 3:17–18, cf. note on 2 Thes 2:2.

3:6 Some members of the community, probably because they regarded the parousia as imminent or the new age of the Lord to be already here (2 Thes 2:2), had apparently ceased to work for a living. The disciplinary problem they posed could be rooted in distorted thinking about Paul's own teaching (cf. 1 Thes 2:16; 3:3–4; 5:4–5) or, more likely, in a forged letter (2 Thes 2:2) and the type of teaching dealt with in 2 Thes 2:1–15. The apostle's own moral teaching, reflected in his selfless labors for others, was rooted in a deep doctrinal concern for the gospel message (cf. 1 Thes 2:3–10).

The First Letter to Timothy

1 2 3 4 5 6

See RG 535–38

The three letters, First and Second Timothy and Titus, form a distinct group within the Pauline corpus. In the collection of letters by the Apostle to the Gentiles, they differ from the others in form and contents. All three suggest they were written late in Paul's career. The opponents are not "Judaizers" as in Galatians but false teachers stressing "knowledge" (gnōsis; see note on 1 Tm 6:20–21). Attention is given especially to correct doctrine and church organization. Jesus' second coming recedes into the background compared to references in Paul's earlier letters (though not Colossians and Ephesians). The three letters are addressed not to congregations but to those who shepherd congregations (Latin, pastores). These letters were first named "Pastoral Epistles" in the eighteenth century because they all are concerned with the work of a pastor in caring for the community or communities under his charge.

The first of the Pastorals, 1 Timothy, is presented as having been written from Macedonia. Timothy, whom Paul converted, was of mixed Jewish and Gentile parentage (Acts 16:1–3). He was the apostle's companion on both the second and the third missionary journeys (Acts 16:3; 19:22) and was often sent by him on special missions (Acts 19:22; 1 Cor 4:17; 1 Thes 3:2). In 1 Timothy (1 Tm 1:3), he is described as the administrator of the entire Ephesian community.

The letter instructs Timothy on his duty to restrain false and useless teaching (1 Tm 1:3–11; 4:1–5; 6:3–16) and proposes principles pertaining to his relationship with the older members of the community (1 Tm 5:1–2) and with the presbyters (5:17–22). It gives rules for aid to widows (1 Tm 5:3–8) and their selection for charitable ministrations (1 Tm 5:9–16) and also deals with liturgical celebrations (1 Tm 2:1–15), selections for the offices of bishop and deacon (1 Tm 3:1–13), relation of slaves with their masters (1 Tm 6:1–2), and obligations of the wealthier members of the community (1 Tm 6:17–19). This letter also reminds Timothy of the prophetic character of his office (1 Tm 1:12–20) and encourages him in his exercise of it (1 Tm 4:6–16). The central passage of the letter (1 Tm 3:14–16) expresses the principal motive that should guide the conduct of Timothy—preservation of the purity of the church’s doctrine against false teaching. On this same note the letter concludes (1 Tm 6:20–21).

From the late second century to the nineteenth, Pauline authorship of the three Pastoral Epistles went unchallenged. Since then, the attribution of these letters to Paul has been questioned. Most scholars are convinced that Paul could not have been responsible for the vocabulary and style, the concept of church organization, or the theological expressions found in these letters. A second group believes, on the basis of statistical evidence, that the vocabulary and style are Pauline, even if at first sight the contrary seems to be the case. They state that the concept of church organization in the letters is not as advanced as the questioners of Pauline authorship hold since the notion of hierarchical order in a religious community existed in Israel before the time of Christ, as evidenced in the Dead Sea Scrolls. Finally, this group sees affinities between the theological thought of the Pastorals and that of the unquestionably genuine letters of Paul. Other scholars, while conceding a degree of validity to the positions mentioned above, suggest that the apostle made use of a secretary who was responsible for the composition of the letters. A fourth group of scholars believes that these letters are the work of a compiler, that they are based on traditions about Paul in his later years, and that they include, in varying amounts, actual fragments of genuine Pauline correspondence.

If Paul is considered the more immediate author, the Pastorals are to be dated between the end of his first Roman imprisonment (Acts 28:16) and his execution under Nero (A.D. 63–67); if they are regarded as only more remotely Pauline, their date may be as late as the early second century. In spite of these problems of authorship and dating, the Pastorals are illustrative of early Christian life and remain an important element of canonical scripture.

The principal divisions of the First Letter to Timothy are the following:

I. Address (1:1–2)

- II. Sound Teaching (1:3–20)
  - III. Problems of Discipline (2:1–4:16)
  - IV. Duties Toward Others (5:1–6:2a)
  - V. False Teaching and True Wealth (6:2b–19)
  - VI. Final Recommendation and Warning (6:20–21)

I. ADDRESS

CHAPTER 1

See RG 536–38

Greeting. <sup>1a*</sup>Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by command of God our savior and of Christ Jesus our hope, <sup>2b</sup>to Timothy, my true child in faith: grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

II. SOUND TEACHING

Warning Against False Doctrine. <sup>3c*</sup>I repeat the request I made of you when I was on my way to Macedonia, that you stay in Ephesus to instruct certain people not to teach false doctrines <sup>4d*</sup>or to concern themselves with myths and endless genealogies, which promote speculations rather than the plan of God that is to be received by faith. <sup>5e</sup>The aim of this instruction is love from a pure heart, a good conscience, and a sincere faith. <sup>6f</sup>Some people have deviated from these and turned to meaningless talk, <sup>7</sup>wanting to be teachers of the law, but without understanding either what they are saying or what they assert with such assurance.

<sup>8g*</sup>We know that the law is good, provided that one uses it as law, <sup>9</sup>with the understanding that law is meant not for a righteous person but for the lawless and unruly, the godless and sinful, the unholy and profane, those who kill their fathers or mothers, murderers, <sup>10h*</sup>the unchaste, sodomites, kidnappers, liars, perjurers, and whatever else is opposed to sound teaching, <sup>11i</sup>according to the glorious gospel of the blessed God, with which I have been entrusted.

Gratitude for God's Mercy. <sup>12j*</sup>I am grateful to him who has strengthened me, Christ Jesus our Lord, because he considered me trustworthy in appointing me to the ministry. <sup>13k*</sup>I was once a blasphemer and a persecutor and an arrogant man, but I have been mercifully treated because I acted out of ignorance in my unbelief. <sup>14l</sup>Indeed, the grace of our Lord has been abundant, along with the faith and love that are in Christ Jesus. <sup>15m*</sup>This saying is trustworthy and deserves full acceptance: Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners. Of these I am the foremost. <sup>16</sup>But for that reason I was mercifully treated, so that in me, as the foremost, Christ Jesus might display all his patience as an example for those who would come to believe in him for everlasting life. <sup>17n*</sup>To the king of ages, incorruptible, invisible, the only God, honor and glory forever and ever. Amen.

Responsibility of Timothy. <sup>18o*</sup>I entrust this charge to you, Timothy, my child, in accordance with the prophetic words once spoken about you. Through them may you fight a good fight <sup>19p</sup>by having faith and a good conscience. Some, by rejecting conscience, have made a shipwreck of their faith, <sup>20q*</sup>among them Hymenaeus and Alexander, whom I have handed over to Satan to be taught not to blaspheme.

III. PROBLEMS OF DISCIPLINE

CHAPTER 2

See RG 536–38

Prayer and Conduct. <sup>1r*</sup>First of all, then, I ask that supplications, prayers, petitions, and thanksgivings be offered for everyone, <sup>2</sup> for kings and for all in authority, that we may lead a quiet and tranquil life in all devotion and dignity. <sup>3s</sup>This is good and pleasing to God our savior, <sup>4t</sup>who wills everyone to be saved and to come to knowledge of the truth.

<sup>5u</sup>For there is one God.

There is also one mediator between God and the human race, Christ Jesus, himself human,

<sup>6v*</sup>who gave himself as ransom for all.

This was the testimony at the proper time. <sup>7w</sup>For this I was appointed preacher and apostle (I am speaking the truth, I am not lying), teacher of the Gentiles in faith and truth.

<sup>8*</sup>It is my wish, then, that in every place the men should pray, lifting up holy hands, without anger or argument. <sup>9x</sup>Similarly, [too,] women should adorn themselves with proper conduct, with modesty and self-control, not with braided hairstyles and gold ornaments, or pearls, or expensive clothes, <sup>10y</sup>but rather, as befits women who profess reverence for God, with good deeds. <sup>11z</sup>A woman must receive instruction silently and under complete control. <sup>12*</sup>I do not permit a woman to teach or to have authority over a man. She must be quiet. <sup>13a</sup>For Adam was formed first, then Eve. <sup>14b</sup>Further, Adam was not deceived, but the woman was deceived and transgressed. <sup>15c</sup>But she will be saved through motherhood, provided women persevere in faith and love and holiness, with self-control.

CHAPTER 3

Qualifications of Various Ministers. <sup>1d*</sup>This saying is trustworthy: whoever aspires to the office of bishop desires a noble task. <sup>2</sup>Therefore, a bishop must be irreproachable, married only once, temperate, self-controlled, decent, hospitable, able to teach, <sup>3e</sup>not a drunkard, not aggressive, but gentle, not contentious, not a lover of money. <sup>4</sup>He must manage his own household well, keeping his children under control with perfect dignity; for if a man does not know how to manage his own household, how can he take care of the church of God? <sup>6*</sup>He should not be a recent convert, so that he may not become conceited and thus incur the devil's punishment. <sup>7f</sup> He must also have a good reputation among outsiders, so that he may not fall into disgrace, the devil's trap.

The Mystery of Our Religion. <sup>14*</sup>I am writing you about these matters, although I hope to visit you soon. <sup>15h</sup>But if I should be delayed, you should know how to behave in the house-hold of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and foundation of truth. <sup>16i*</sup>Undeniably great is the mystery of devotion,

Who was manifested in the flesh, vindicated in the spirit,
seen by angels,
proclaimed to the Gentiles, believed in throughout the world, taken up in glory.

CHAPTER 4

See RG 536–38

False Asceticism. <sup>1j*</sup>Now the Spirit explicitly says that in the last times some will turn away from the faith by paying attention to deceitful spirits and demonic instructions <sup>2</sup> through the hypocrisy of liars with branded consciences. <sup>3k</sup>They forbid marriage and require abstinence from foods that God created to be received with thanksgiving by those who believe and know the truth. <sup>4l</sup>For everything created by God is good, and nothing is to be rejected when received with thanksgiving, <sup>5*</sup>for it is made holy by the invocation of God in prayer.

Counsel to Timothy. <sup>6*</sup>If you will give these instructions to the brothers, you will be a good minister of Christ Jesus, nourished on the words of the faith and of the sound teaching you have followed. <sup>7m</sup>Avoid profane and silly myths. Train yourself for devotion, <sup>8n</sup>for, while physical training is of limited value, devotion is valuable in every respect, since it holds a promise of life both for the present and for the future. <sup>9o</sup>This saying is trustworthy and deserves full acceptance. <sup>10p*</sup>For this we toil and struggle, because we have set our hope on the living God, who is the savior of all, especially of those who believe.

<sup>11*</sup>Command and teach these things. <sup>12q*</sup>Let no one have contempt for your youth, but set an example for those who believe, in speech, conduct, love, faith, and purity. <sup>13*</sup>Until I arrive, attend to the reading, exhortation, and teaching. <sup>14r*</sup>Do not neglect the gift you have, which was conferred on you through the prophetic word with the imposition of hands of the presbyterate. <sup>15</sup>Be diligent in these matters, be absorbed in them, so that your progress may be evident to everyone. <sup>16</sup>Attend to yourself and to your teaching; persevere in both tasks, for by doing so you will save both yourself and those who listen to you.

IV. DUTIES TOWARD OTHERS

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1s*</sup>Do not rebuke an older man, but appeal to him as a father. Treat younger men as brothers, <sup>2</sup> older women as mothers, and younger women as sisters with complete purity.

Rules for Widows. <sup>3</sup>Honor widows who are truly widows. <sup>4</sup>But if a widow has children or grandchildren, let these first learn to perform their religious duty to their own family and to make recompense to their parents, for this is pleasing to God. <sup>5t</sup>The real widow, who is all alone, has set her hope on God and continues in supplications and prayers night and day. <sup>6</sup>But the one who is self-indulgent is dead while she lives. <sup>7</sup>Command this, so that they may be irreproachable. <sup>8</sup>And whoever does not provide for relatives and especially family members has denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever.

Rules for Presbyters. <sup>17x*</sup>Presbyters who preside well deserve double honor, especially those who toil in preaching and teaching. <sup>18y</sup>For the scripture says, “You shall not muzzle an ox when it is threshing,” and, “A worker deserves his pay.” <sup>19z</sup>Do not accept an accusation against a presbyter unless it is supported by two or three witnesses. <sup>20a</sup>Reprimand publicly those who do sin, so that the rest also will be afraid. <sup>21</sup>I charge you before

God and Christ Jesus and the elect angels to keep these rules without prejudice, doing nothing out of favoritism. <sup>22b</sup>Do not lay hands too readily on anyone, and do not share in another's sins. Keep yourself pure. <sup>23</sup>Stop drinking only water, but have a little wine for the sake of your stomach and your frequent illnesses.

<sup>24</sup>Some people's sins are public, preceding them to judgment; but other people are followed by their sins. <sup>25</sup>Similarly, good works are also public; and even those that are not cannot remain hidden.

CHAPTER 6

See RG 536–38

Rules for Slaves. <sup>1c*</sup>Those who are under the yoke of slavery must regard their masters as worthy of full respect, so that the name of God and our teaching may not suffer abuse. <sup>2d</sup>Those whose masters are believers must not take advantage of them because they are brothers but must give better service because those who will profit from their work are believers and are beloved.

V. FALSE TEACHING AND TRUE WEALTH

Teach and urge these things. * <sup>3e</sup>Whoever teaches something different and does not agree with the sound words of our Lord Jesus Christ and the religious teaching <sup>4</sup> is conceited, understanding nothing, and has a morbid disposition for arguments and verbal disputes. From these come envy, rivalry, insults, evil suspicions, <sup>5f</sup> and mutual friction among people with corrupted minds, who are deprived of the truth, supposing religion to be a means of gain. <sup>6g*</sup>Indeed, religion with contentment is a great gain. <sup>7h</sup>For we brought nothing into the world, just as we shall not be able to take anything out of it. <sup>8i</sup>If we have food and clothing, we shall be content with that. <sup>9j</sup>Those who want to be rich are falling into temptation and into a trap and into many foolish and harmful desires, which plunge them into ruin and destruction. <sup>10</sup>For the love of money is the root of all evils, and some people in their desire for it have strayed from the faith and have pierced themselves with many pains.

Exhortations to Timothy. <sup>11k*</sup>But you, man of God, avoid all this. Instead, pursue righteousness, devotion, faith, love, patience, and gentleness. <sup>12l</sup>Compete well for the faith. Lay hold of eternal life, to which you were called when you made the noble confession in the presence of many witnesses. <sup>13m</sup>I charge [you] before God, who gives life to all things, and before Christ Jesus, who gave testimony under Pontius Pilate for the noble confession, <sup>14</sup>to keep the commandment without stain or reproach until the appearance of our Lord Jesus Christ <sup>15n</sup>that the blessed and only ruler will make manifest at the proper time, the King of kings and Lord of lords, <sup>16o</sup>who alone has immortality, who dwells in unapproachable light, and whom no human being has seen or can see. To him be honor and eternal power. Amen.

Right Use of Wealth. <sup>17p*</sup>Tell the rich in the present age not to be proud and not to rely on so uncertain a thing as wealth but rather on God, who richly provides us with all things for our enjoyment. <sup>18</sup>Tell them to do good, to be rich in good works, to be generous, ready to share, <sup>19q</sup>thus accumulating as treasure a good foundation for the future, so as to win the life that is true life.

VI. FINAL RECOMMENDATION AND WARNING

<sup>20r*</sup>O Timothy, guard what has been entrusted to you. Avoid profane babbling and the absurdities of so-called knowledge. <sup>21s</sup>By professing it, some people have deviated from the faith.

Grace be with all of you.

1:1–2 For the Pauline use of the conventional epistolary form, see note on Rom 1:1–7.

1:3–7 Here Timothy's initial task in Ephesus (cf. Acts 20:17–35) is outlined: to suppress the idle religious speculations, probably about Old Testament figures (1 Tm 1:3–4, but see note on 1 Tm 6:20–21), which do not contribute to the development of love within the community (1 Tm 1:5) but rather encourage similar useless conjectures (1 Tm 1:6–7).

1:4 The plan of God that is to be received by faith: the Greek may also possibly mean “God’s trustworthy plan” or “the training in faith that God requires.”

1:8–11 Those responsible for the speculations that are to be suppressed by Timothy do not present the Old Testament from the Christian viewpoint. The Christian values the Old Testament not as a system of law but as the first stage in God’s revelation of his saving plan, which is brought to fulfillment in the good news of salvation through faith in Jesus Christ.

1:10 Sodomites: see 1 Cor 6:9 and the note there.

1:12–17 Present gratitude for the Christian apostleship leads Paul to recall an earlier time when he had been a fierce persecutor of the Christian communities (cf. Acts 26:9–11) until his conversion by intervention of divine mercy through the appearance of Jesus. This and his subsequent apostolic experience testify to the saving purpose of Jesus’ incarnation. The fact of his former ignorance of the truth has not kept the apostle from regarding himself as having been the worst of sinners (1 Tm 1:15). Yet he was chosen to be an apostle, that God might manifest his firm will to save sinful humanity through Jesus Christ (1 Tm 1:16). The recounting of so great a mystery leads to a spontaneous outpouring of adoration (1 Tm 1:17).

1:15 This saying is trustworthy: this phrase regularly introduces in the Pastorals a basic truth of early Christian faith; cf. 1 Tm 3:1; 4:9; 2 Tm 2:11; Ti 3:8.

1:17 King of ages: through Semitic influence, the Greek expression could mean “everlasting king”; it could also mean “king of the universe.”

1:18–20 Timothy is to be mindful of his calling, which is here compared to the way Barnabas and Saul were designated by Christ as prophets for missionary service; cf. Acts 13:1–3. Such is probably the sense of the allusion to the prophetic words (1 Tm 1:18). His task is not to yield, whether in doctrine or in conduct, to erroneous opinions, taking warning from what has already happened at Ephesus in the case of Hymenaeus and Alexander (1 Tm 1:19–20).

1:18 The prophetic words once spoken about you: the Greek may also be translated, “the prophecies that led (me) to you.” It probably refers to testimonies given by charismatic figures in the Christian communities. Fight a good fight: this translation preserves the play on words in Greek. The Greek terms imply a lengthy engagement in battle and might well be translated “wage a good campaign.”

1:20 Hymenaeus: mentioned in 2 Tm 2:17 as saying that the resurrection has already taken place (in baptism). Alexander: probably the Alexander mentioned in 2 Tm 4:14 as the coppersmith who “did me a great deal of harm.” Whom I have handed over to Satan: the same terms are used in the condemnation of the incestuous man in 1 Cor 5:5.

2:1–7 This marked insistence that the liturgical prayer of the community concern itself with the needs of all, whether Christian or not, and especially of those in authority, may imply that a disposition existed at Ephesus to refuse prayer for pagans. In actuality, such prayer aids the community to achieve peaceful relationships with non-Christians (1 Tm 2:2) and contributes to salvation, since it derives its value from the presence within the community of Christ, who is the one and only savior of all (1 Tm 2:3–6). The vital apostolic mission to the Gentiles (1 Tm 2:7) reflects Christ’s purpose of universal salvation. 1 Tm 2:5 contains what may well have been a very primitive creed. Some interpreters have called it a Christian version of the Jewish shema: “Hear, O Israel, the LORD is our God, the LORD alone...” (Dt 6:4–5). The assertion in 1 Tm 2:7, “I am speaking the truth, I am not lying,” reminds one of similar affirmations in Rom 9:1; 2 Cor 11:31; and Gal 1:20.

2:6 The testimony: to make sense of this overly concise phrase, many manuscripts supply “to which” (or “to whom”); two others add “was given.” The translation has supplied “this was.”

2:8–15 The prayer of the community should be unmarred by internal dissension (1 Tm 2:8); cf. Mt 5:21–26; 6:14; Mk 11:25. At the liturgical assembly the dress of women should be appropriate to the occasion (1 Tm 2:9); their chief adornment is to be reputation for good works (1 Tm 2:10). Women are not to take part in the charismatic activity of the assembly (1 Tm 2:11–12; cf. 1 Cor 14:34) or exercise authority; their conduct there should reflect the role of man’s helpmate (1 Tm 2:13; cf. Gn 2:18) and not the later relationship of Eve to Adam (1 Tm 2:14; cf. Gn 3:6–7). As long as women perform their role as wives and mothers in faith and love, their salvation is assured (1 Tm 2:15).

2:12 A man: this could also mean “her husband.”

3:1–7 The passage begins by commending those who aspire to the office of bishop (episkopos; see note on Phil 1:1) within the community, but this first sentence (1 Tm 3:1) may also imply a warning about the great responsibilities involved. The writer proceeds to list the qualifications required: personal stability and graciousness; talent for teaching (1 Tm 3:2); moderation in habits and temperament (1 Tm 3:3); managerial ability (1 Tm 3:4); and experience in Christian living (1 Tm 3:5–6). Moreover, the candidate’s previous life should provide no grounds for the charge that he did not previously practice what he now preaches. No list of qualifications for presbyters appears in 1

Timothy. The presbyter-bishops here and in Titus (see note on Ti 1:5–9) lack certain functions reserved here for Paul and Timothy.

3:1 This saying is trustworthy: the saying introduced is so unlike others after this phrase that some later Western manuscripts read, “This saying is popular.” It is understood by some interpreters as concluding the preceding section (1 Tm 2:8–15). Bishop: literally, “overseer”; see note on Phil 1:1.

3:6 The devil’s punishment: this phrase could mean the punishment once incurred by the devil (objective genitive) or a punishment brought about by the devil (subjective genitive).

3:8–13 Deacons, besides possessing the virtue of moderation (1 Tm 3:8), are to be outstanding for their faith (1 Tm 3:9) and well respected within the community (1 Tm 3:10). Women in the same role, although some interpreters take them to mean wives of deacons, must be dignified, temperate, dedicated, and not given to malicious talebearing (1 Tm 3:11). Deacons must have shown stability in marriage and have a good record with their families (1 Tm 3:12), for such experience prepares them well for the exercise of their ministry on behalf of the community (1 Tm 3:13). See further the note on Phil 1:1.

3:11 Women: this seems to refer to women deacons but may possibly mean wives of deacons. The former is preferred because the word is used absolutely; if deacons’ wives were meant, a possessive “their” would be expected. Moreover, they are also introduced by the word “similarly,” as in 1 Tm 3:8; this parallel suggests that they too exercised ecclesiastical functions.

3:14–16 In case there is some delay in the visit to Timothy at Ephesus planned for the near future, the present letter is being sent on ahead to arm and enlighten him in his task of preserving sound Christian conduct in the Ephesian church. The care he must exercise over this community is required by the profound nature of Christianity. It centers in Christ, appearing in human flesh, vindicated by the holy Spirit; the mystery of his person was revealed to the angels, announced to the Gentiles, and accepted by them in faith. He himself was taken up (through his resurrection and ascension) to the divine glory (1 Tm 3:16). This passage apparently includes part of a liturgical hymn used among the Christian communities in and around Ephesus. It consists of three couplets in typical Hebrew balance: flesh-spirit (contrast), seen-proclaimed (complementary), world-glory (contrast).

3:16 Who: the reference is to Christ, who is himself “the mystery of our devotion.” Some predominantly Western manuscripts read “which,” harmonizing the gender of the pronoun with that of the Greek word for mystery; many later (eighth/ninth century on), predominantly Byzantine manuscripts read “God,” possibly for theological reasons.

4:1–5 Doctrinal deviations from the true Christian message within the church have been prophesied, though the origin of the prophecy is not specified (1 Tm 4:1–2); cf. Acts 20:29–30. The letter warns against a false asceticism that prohibits marriage and regards certain foods as forbidden, though they are part of God’s good creation (1 Tm 4:3).

4:5 The invocation of God in prayer: literally, “the word of God and petition.” The use of “word of God” without an article in Greek suggests that it refers to the name of God being invoked in blessing rather than to the “word of God” proclaimed to the community.

4:6–10 Timothy is urged to be faithful, both in his teaching and in his own life, as he looks only to God for salvation.

4:10 Struggle: other manuscripts and patristic witnesses read “suffer reproach.”

4:11–16 Timothy is urged to preach and teach with confidence, relying on the gifts and the mission that God has bestowed on him.

4:12 Youth: some commentators find this reference a sign of pseudepigraphy. Timothy had joined Paul as a missionary already in A.D. 49, some fifteen years before the earliest supposed date of composition.

4:13 Reading: the Greek word refers to private or public reading. Here, it probably designates the public reading of scripture in the Christian assembly.

4:14 Prophetic word: this may mean the utterance of a Christian prophet designating the candidate or a prayer of blessing accompanying the rite. Imposition of hands: this gesture was used in the Old Testament to signify the transmission of authority from Moses to Joshua (Nm 27:18–23; Dt 34:9). The early Christian community used it as a symbol of installation into an office: the Seven (Acts 6:6) and Paul and Barnabas (Acts 13:3). Of the presbyterate: this would mean that each member of the college of presbyters imposed hands and appears to contradict 2 Tm 1:6, in which Paul says that he imposed hands on Timothy. This latter text, however, does not exclude participation by others in the rite. Some prefer to translate “for the presbyterate,” and thus understand it to designate the office into which Timothy was installed rather than the agents who installed him.

5:1–16 After a few words of general advice based on common sense (1 Tm 5:1–2), the letter takes up, in its several aspects, the subject of widows. The first responsibility for their care belongs to the family circle, not to the Christian community as such (1 Tm 5:3–4, 16). The widow left without the aid of relatives may benefit the community by her prayer, and the community should consider her material sustenance its responsibility (1 Tm 5:5–8). Widows who wish to work directly for the Christian community should not be accepted unless they are well beyond the probability of marriage, i.e., sixty years of age, married only once, and with a reputation for good works (1 Tm 5:9–10). Younger widows are apt to be troublesome and should be encouraged to remarry (1 Tm 5:11–15).

5:16 Woman believer: some early Latin manuscripts and Fathers have a masculine here, while most later manuscripts and patristic quotations conflate the two readings, perhaps to avoid unfair restriction to women.

5:17–25 The function of presbyters is not exactly the same as that of the episkopos, “bishop” (1 Tm 3:1); in fact, the relation of the two at the time of this letter is obscure (but cf. note on Ti 1:5–9). The Pastorals seem to reflect a transitional stage that developed in many regions of the church into the monarchical episcopate of the second and third centuries. The presbyters possess the responsibility of preaching and teaching, for which functions they are supported by the community (1 Tm 5:17–18). The realization that their position subjects them to adverse criticism is implied in the direction to Timothy (1 Tm 5:19–20) to make sure of the truth of any accusation against them before public reproof is given. He must be as objective as possible in weighing charges against presbyters (1 Tm 5:21), learning from his experience to take care in selecting them (1 Tm 5:22). Some scholars take 1 Tm 5:22 as a reference not to ordination of presbyters but to reconciliation of public sinners. The letter now sounds an informal note of personal concern in its advice to Timothy not to be so ascetic that he even avoids wine (1 Tm 5:23). Judgment concerning the fitness of candidates to serve as presbyters is easy with persons of open conduct, more difficult and prolonged with those of greater reserve (1 Tm 5:24–25).

6:1–2 Compare the tables for household duties, such as that of Col 3:18–4:1. Domestic relationships derive new meaning from the Christian faith.

6:1 Our teaching: this refers to the teaching of the Christian community.

6:2b–10 Timothy is exhorted to maintain steadfastly the position outlined in this letter, not allowing himself to be pressured into any other course. He must realize that false teachers can be discerned by their pride, envy, quarrelsomeness, and greed for material gain. 1 Tm 6:6 is rather obscure and is interpreted, and therefore translated, variously. The suggestion seems to be that the important gain that religion brings is spiritual, but that there is material gain, too, up to the point of what is needed for physical sustenance (cf. 1 Tm 6:17–19).

6:6 Contentment: the word autarkeia is a technical Greek philosophical term for the virtue of independence from material goods (Aristotle, Cynics, Stoics).

6:11–16 Timothy’s position demands total dedication to God and faultless witness to Christ (1 Tm 6:11–14) operating from an awareness, through faith, of the coming revelation in Jesus of the invisible God (1 Tm 6:15–16).

6:11 Man of God: a title applied to Moses and the prophets (Dt 33:1; 1 Sm 2:27; 1 Kgs 12:22; 13:1; etc.).

6:17–19 Timothy is directed to instruct the rich, advising them to make good use of their wealth by aiding the poor.

6:20–21 A final solemn warning against the heretical teachers, with what seems to be a specific reference to gnosticism, the great rival and enemy of the church for two centuries and more (the Greek word for “knowledge” is gnōsis). If gnosticism is being referred to here, it is probable that the warnings against “speculations” and “myths and genealogies” (cf. especially 1 Tm 1:4; Ti 3:9) involve allusions to that same kind of heresy. Characteristic of the various gnostic systems of speculation was an elaborate mythology of innumerable superhuman intermediaries, on a descending scale (“genealogies”), between God and the world. Thus would be explained the emphasis upon Christ’s being the one mediator (as in 1 Tm 2:5). Although fully developed gnosticism belonged to the second and later centuries, there are signs that incipient forms of it belonged to Paul’s own period.

The Second Letter to Timothy

1 2 3 4

See RG 535–40

The authorship and date of this letter, as one of the Pastoral Epistles, are discussed in the Introduction to the First Letter to Timothy.

The tone here is more personal than in First Timothy, for this letter addresses Timothy in vivid terms (2 Tm 1:6–14; 2:1–13) and depicts Paul's courage and hope in the face of discouragements late in the course of his apostolic ministry (2 Tm 1:15–18; 3:10–17; 4:9–18). Indeed, the letter takes on the character of a final exhortation and testament from Paul to the younger Timothy (2 Tm 4:1–8). Paul is portrayed as a prisoner (2 Tm 1:8, 16; 2:9) in Rome (2 Tm 1:17), and there is a hint that Timothy may be in Ephesus (2 Tm 2:17). The letter reveals that, with rare exceptions, Christians have not rallied to Paul's support (2 Tm 1:15–18) and takes a pessimistic view of the outcome of his case (2 Tm 4:6). It describes Paul as fully aware of what impends, looking to God, not to human beings, for his deliverance (2 Tm 4:3–8, 18). It recalls his mission days with Timothy (2 Tm 1:3–5; cf. Acts 16:1–4). It points to his preaching of the gospel as the reason for his imprisonment and offers Timothy, as a motive for steadfastness, his own example of firmness in faith despite adverse circumstances (2 Tm 1:6–14). The letter suggests that Timothy should prepare others to replace himself as Paul has prepared Timothy to replace him (2 Tm 2:1–2). Paul urges him not to desist out of fear from preserving and spreading the Christian message (2 Tm 2:3–7). It presents the resurrection of Jesus and his messianic role as the heart of the gospel for which Paul has been ready to lay down his life (2 Tm 2:8–9) and thus not only to express his own conviction fully but to support the conviction of others (2 Tm 2:10–13).

This letter, like the preceding one, urges Timothy to protect the community from the inevitable impact of false teaching (2 Tm 2:14–3:9), without fear of the personal attacks that may result (2 Tm 3:10–13). It recommends that he rely on the power of the scriptures, on proclamation of the word, and on sound doctrine (2 Tm 3:14–4:2), without being troubled by those who do not accept him (2 Tm 4:3–5). The letter poignantly observes in passing that Paul has need of his reading materials and his cloak (2 Tm 4:13) and, what will be best of all, a visit from Timothy.

On the theory of authorship by Paul himself, Second Timothy appears to be the last of the three Pastoral Epistles. The many scholars who argue that the Pastorals are products of the Pauline school often incline toward Second Timothy as the earliest of the three and the one most likely to have actual fragments of material from Paul himself.

The principal divisions of the Second Letter to Timothy are the following:

- I. Address (1:1–5)
- II. Exhortations to Timothy (1:6–2:13)
- III. Instructions Concerning False Teaching (2:14–4:8)
- IV. Personal Requests and Final Greetings (4:9–22)

Thanksgiving. <sup>3b*</sup>I am grateful to God, whom I worship with a clear conscience as my ancestors did, as I remember you constantly in my prayers, night and day. <sup>4*</sup>I yearn to see you again, recalling your tears, so that I may be filled with joy, <sup>5c</sup>as I recall your sincere faith that first lived in your grandmother Lois and in your mother Eunice and that I am confident lives also in you.

II. EXHORTATIONS TO TIMOTHY

The Gifts Timothy Has Received. <sup>6d*</sup>For this reason, I remind you to stir into flame the gift of God that you have through the imposition of my hands. <sup>7e</sup>For God did not give us a spirit of cowardice but rather of power and love and self-control. <sup>8f*</sup>So do not be ashamed of your testimony to our Lord, nor of me, a prisoner for his sake; but bear your share of hardship for the gospel with the strength that comes from God.

<sup>9g*</sup>He saved us and called us to a holy life, not according to our works but according to his own design and the grace bestowed on us in Christ Jesus before time began, <sup>10h</sup>but now made manifest through the appearance of our savior Christ Jesus, who destroyed death and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel, <sup>11i*</sup>for which I was appointed preacher and apostle and teacher. <sup>12j*</sup>On this account I am suffering these things; but I am not ashamed, for I know him in whom I have believed and am confident that he is able to guard what has been entrusted to me until that day. <sup>13k</sup>Take as your norm the sound words that you heard from me, in the faith and love that are in Christ Jesus. <sup>14l</sup>Guard this rich trust with the help of the holy Spirit that dwells within us.

Paul's Suffering. <sup>15m*</sup>You know that everyone in Asia deserted me, including Phygelus and Hermogenes. <sup>16n*</sup>May the Lord grant mercy to the family of Onesiphorus because he often gave me new heart and was not ashamed of my chains. <sup>17</sup>But when he came to Rome, he promptly searched for me and found me. <sup>18</sup><sup>o*</sup>May the Lord grant him to find mercy from the Lord on that day. And you know very well the services he rendered in Ephesus.

CHAPTER 2

Timothy's Conduct. <sup>1*</sup>So you, my child, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus. <sup>2</sup> And what you heard from me through many witnesses entrust to faithful people who will have the ability to teach others as well. <sup>3</sup> <sup>p</sup> Bear your share of hardship along with me like a good soldier of Christ Jesus. <sup>4q</sup>To satisfy the one who recruited him, a soldier does not become entangled in the business affairs of life. <sup>5r</sup>Similarly, an athlete cannot receive the winner's crown except by competing according to the rules. <sup>6s</sup>The hardworking farmer ought to have the first share of the crop. <sup>7t</sup>Reflect on what I am saying, for the Lord will give you understanding in everything.

<sup>8u*</sup>Remember Jesus Christ, raised from the dead, a descendant of David: such is my gospel, <sup>9v</sup>for which I am suffering, even to the point of chains, like a criminal. But the word of God is not chained. <sup>10w</sup>Therefore, I bear with everything for the sake of those who are chosen, so that they too may obtain the salvation that is in Christ Jesus, together with eternal glory. <sup>11x</sup> This saying is trustworthy:

If we have died with him
we shall also live with him; <sup>12y</sup>if we persevere we shall also reign with him.
But if we deny him
he will deny us.
<sup>13z</sup>If we are unfaithful
he remains faithful, for he cannot deny himself.

III. INSTRUCTIONS CONCERNING FALSE TEACHING

Warning Against Useless Disputes. <sup>14a*</sup>Remind people of these things and charge them before God to stop disputing about words. This serves no useful purpose since it harms those who listen. <sup>15b</sup>Be eager to present yourself as acceptable to God, a workman who causes no disgrace, imparting the word of truth without deviation. <sup>16c</sup>Avoid profane, idle talk, for such people will become more and more godless, <sup>17d</sup>and their teaching will spread like gangrene. Among them are Hymenaeus and Philetus, <sup>18e</sup>who have deviated from the truth by saying that [the] resurrection has already taken place and are upsetting the faith of some. <sup>19f</sup> Nevertheless, God's solid foundation stands, bearing this inscription, "The Lord knows those who are his"; and, "Let everyone who calls upon the name of the Lord avoid evil."

<sup>20</sup>In a large household there are vessels not only of gold and silver but also of wood and clay, some for lofty and others for humble use. <sup>21g</sup>If anyone cleanses himself of these things, he will be a vessel for lofty use, dedicated, beneficial to the master of the house, ready for every good work. <sup>22h*</sup>So turn from youthful desires and pursue righteousness, faith, love, and peace, along with those who call on the Lord with purity of heart. <sup>23i</sup>Avoid foolish and ignorant debates, for you know that they breed quarrels. <sup>24 j</sup> A slave of the Lord should not quarrel, but should be gentle with everyone, able to teach, tolerant, <sup>25k</sup>correcting opponents with kindness. It may be that God will grant them repentance that leads to knowledge of the truth, <sup>26l*</sup>and that they may return to their senses out of the devil's snare, where they are entrapped by him, for his will.

CHAPTER 3

The Dangers of the Last Days. <sup>1m*</sup>But understand this: there will be terrifying times in the last days. <sup>2n</sup>People will be self-centered and lovers of money, proud, haughty, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, irreligious, <sup>3</sup>callous, implacable, slanderous, licentious, brutal, hating what is good, <sup>4</sup>traitors, reckless, conceited, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God, <sup>5o</sup>as they make a pretense of religion but deny its power. Reject them. <sup>6p</sup>For some of these slip into homes and make captives of women weighed down by sins, led by various desires, <sup>7q</sup>always trying to learn but never able to reach a knowledge of the truth. <sup>8r</sup>Just as Jannes and Jambres opposed Moses, so they also oppose the truth—people of depraved mind, unqualified in the faith. <sup>9</sup>But they will not make further progress, for their foolishness will be plain to all, as it was with those two.

Paul's Example and Teaching. <sup>10*</sup>You have followed my teaching, way of life, purpose, faith, patience, love, endurance, <sup>11s</sup>persecutions, and sufferings, such as happened to me in Antioch, Iconium, and Lystra, persecutions that I endured. Yet from all these things the Lord delivered me. <sup>12t</sup>In fact, all who want to live religiously in Christ Jesus will be persecuted. <sup>13</sup>But wicked people and charlatans will go from bad to worse, deceivers and deceived. <sup>14u</sup>But you, remain faithful to what you have learned and believed, because you know from whom you learned it, <sup>15v</sup>and that from infancy you have known [the] sacred scriptures, which are capable of giving you wisdom for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. <sup>16w*</sup>All scripture is inspired by God and is useful for teaching, for refutation, for correction, and for training in righteousness, <sup>17x</sup>so that one who belongs to God may be competent, equipped for every good work.

CHAPTER 4

Solemn Charge. <sup>1y*</sup>I charge you in the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who will judge the living and the dead, and by his appearing and his kingly power: <sup>2z</sup>proclaim the word; be persistent whether it is convenient or inconvenient; convince, reprimand, encourage through all patience and teaching. <sup>3a*</sup>For the time will come when people will not tolerate sound doctrine but, following their own desires and insatiable curiosity, will accumulate teachers <sup>4b</sup>and will stop listening to the truth and will be diverted to myths. <sup>5</sup>But you, be self-possessed in all circumstances; put up with hardship; perform the work of an evangelist; fulfill your ministry.

Reward for Fidelity. <sup>6c*</sup>For I am already being poured out like a libation, and the time of my departure is at hand. <sup>7d*</sup>I have competed well; I have finished the race; I have kept the faith. <sup>8e*</sup>From now on the crown of righteousness awaits me, which the Lord, the just judge, will award to me on that day, and not only to me, but to all who have longed for his appearance.

IV. PERSONAL REQUESTS AND FINAL GREETINGS

Paul's Loneliness. <sup>9*</sup>Try to join me soon, <sup>10f*</sup>for Demas, enamored of the present world, deserted me and went to Thessalonica, Crescens to Galatia, and Titus to Dalmatia. <sup>11 g</sup> Luke is the only one with me. Get Mark and bring him with you, for he is helpful to me in the ministry. <sup>12h</sup>I have sent Tychicus to Ephesus. <sup>13i</sup>When you come, bring the cloak I left with Carpus in Troas, the papyrus rolls, and especially the parchments.

<sup>14j*</sup> Alexander the coppersmith did me a great deal of harm; the Lord will repay him according to his deeds. <sup>15</sup>You too be on guard against him, for he has strongly resisted our preaching.

<sup>16k</sup>At my first defense no one appeared on my behalf, but everyone deserted me. May it not be held against them! <sup>17l</sup>But the Lord stood by me and gave me strength, so that through me the proclamation might be completed and all the Gentiles might hear it. And I was rescued from the lion's mouth. <sup>18m</sup>The Lord will rescue me from every evil threat and will bring me safe to his heavenly kingdom. To him be glory forever and ever. Amen.

1:1–2 For the formula of address and greeting, see note on Rom 1:1–7.

1:1 The promise of life in Christ Jesus: that God grants through union with Christ in faith and love; cf. Col 3:4; 1 Tm 4:8.

1:3 As my ancestors did: this emphasizes the continuity of Judaism and Christianity; for a similar view, see Rom 9:3–5; Phil 3:4–6.

1:4–5 Purportedly written from prison in Rome (2 Tm 1:8, 17; 4:6–8) shortly before the writer's death, the letter recalls the earlier sorrowful parting from Timothy, commending him for his faith and expressing the longing to see him again.

1:6 The gift of God: the grace resulting from the conferral of an ecclesiastical office. The imposition of my hands: see note on 1 Tm 4:14.

1:8 Do not be ashamed of your testimony to our Lord: i.e., of preaching and suffering for the sake of the gospel.

1:9–10 Redemption from sin and the call to holiness of life are not won by personal deeds but are freely and graciously bestowed according to God's eternal plan; cf. Eph 1:4.

1:11 Teacher: the overwhelming majority of manuscripts and Fathers read "teacher of the nations," undoubtedly a harmonization with 1 Tm 2:7.

1:12 He is able to guard ... until that day: the intervening words can also be translated "what I have entrusted to him" (i.e., the fruit of his ministry) as well as "what has been entrusted to me" (i.e., the faith). The same difficult term occurs in 2 Tm 1:14, where it is modified by the adjective "rich" and used without a possessive.

1:15 Keen disappointment is expressed, here and later (2 Tm 4:16), that the Christians of the province of Asia, especially Phygelus and Hermogenes, should have abandoned the writer and done nothing to defend his case in court.

1:16–18 The family of Onesiphorus because he ... of my chains: Onesiphorus seems to have died before this letter was written. His family is mentioned twice (here and in 2 Tm 4:19), though it was Onesiphorus himself who was helpful to Paul in prison and rendered much service to the community of Ephesus. Because the apostle complains of abandonment by all in Asia during his second imprisonment and trial, the assistance of Onesiphorus seems to have been given to Paul during his first Roman imprisonment (A.D. 61–63).

1:18 Lord ... Lord: the first "Lord" here seems to refer to Christ, the second "Lord" to the Father.

2:1–7 This passage manifests a characteristic deep concern for safeguarding the faith and faithfully transmitting it through trustworthy people (2 Tm 2:1–2; cf. 2 Tm 1:14; 1 Tm 6:20; Ti 1:9). Comparisons to the soldier’s detachment, the athlete’s sportsmanship, and the farmer’s arduous work as the price of recompense (2 Tm 2:4–6) emphasize the need of singleness of purpose in preaching the word, even at the cost of hardship, for the sake of Christ (2 Tm 2:3).

2:8–13 The section begins with a sloganlike summary of Paul’s gospel about Christ (2 Tm 2:8) and concludes with what may be part of an early Christian hymn (2 Tm 2:11b–12a; most exegetes include the rest of 2 Tm 2:12 and all of 2 Tm 2:13 as part of the quotation). The poetic lines suggest that through baptism Christians die spiritually with Christ and hope to live with him and reign with him forever, but the Christian life includes endurance, witness, and even suffering, as the final judgment will show and as Paul’s own case makes clear; while he is imprisoned for preaching the gospel (2 Tm 2:9), his sufferings are helpful to the elect for obtaining the salvation and glory available in Christ (2 Tm 2:10), who will be true to those who are faithful and will disown those who deny him (2 Tm 2:12–13).

2:14–19 For those who dispute about mere words (cf. 2 Tm 2:23–24) and indulge in irreligious talk to the detriment of their listeners (2 Tm 2:16–19), see notes on 1 Tm 1:3–7; 6:20–21. Hymenaeus and Philetus (2 Tm 2:17), while accepting the Christian’s mystical death and resurrection in Christ through baptism, claimed that baptized Christians are already risen with Christ in this life and thus that there is no future bodily resurrection or eternal glory to come. The first quotation in 2 Tm 2:19 is from Nm 16:5; the other quotation is from some unidentified Jewish or Christian writing.

2:14 Before God: many ancient manuscripts read “before the Lord.”

2:22 Those who call on the Lord: those who believe in Christ and worship him as Lord, i.e., Christians (Acts 9:14–16, 20–21; Rom 10:12–13; cf. 2 Tm 2:19, literally, “Everyone who names the name of the Lord”).

2:26 Some interpreters would render this passage, “Thus they may come to their senses and, forced to do his (i.e., God’s) will, may escape the devil’s trap.” This interpretation of the Greek is possible, but the one accepted in the text seems more likely.

3:1–9 The moral depravity and false teaching that will be rampant in the last days are already at work (2 Tm 3:1–5). The frivolous and superficial, too, devoid of the true spirit of religion, will be easy victims of those who pervert them by falsifying the truth (2 Tm 3:6–8), just as Jannes and Jambres, Pharaoh’s magicians of Egypt (Ex 7:11–12, 22), discredited the truth in Moses’ time. Exodus does not name the magicians, but the two names are widely found in much later Jewish, Christian, and even pagan writings. Their origins are legendary.

3:10–17 Paul’s example for Timothy includes persecution, a frequent emphasis in the Pastorals. Timothy is to be steadfast to what he has been taught and to scripture. The scriptures are the source of wisdom, i.e., of belief in and loving fulfillment of God’s word revealed in Christ, through whom salvation is given.

3:16–17 Useful for teaching... every good work: because as God’s word the scriptures share his divine authority. It is exercised through those who are ministers of the word.

3:16 All scripture is inspired by God: this could possibly also be translated, “All scripture inspired by God is useful for....” In this classic reference to inspiration, God is its principal author, with the writer as the human collaborator. Thus the scriptures are the word of God in human language. See also 2 Pt 1:20–21.

4:1–5 The gravity of the obligation incumbent on Timothy to preach the word can be gauged from the solemn adjuration: in the presence of God, and of Christ coming as universal judge, and by his appearance and his kingly power (2 Tm 4:1). Patience, courage, constancy, and endurance are required despite the opposition, hostility, indifference, and defection of many to whom the truth has been preached (2 Tm 4:2–5).

4:3 Insatiable curiosity: literally, “with itching ears.”

4:6 The apostle recognizes his death through martyrdom to be imminent. He regards it as an act of worship in which his blood will be poured out in sacrifice; cf. Ex 29:38–40; Phil 2:17.

4:7 At the close of his life Paul could testify to the accomplishment of what Christ himself foretold concerning him at the time of his conversion, “I will show him what he will have to suffer for my name” (Acts 9:16).

4:8 When the world is judged at the parousia, all who have eagerly looked for the Lord’s appearing and have sought to live according to his teachings will be rewarded. The crown is a reference to the laurel wreath placed on the heads of victorious athletes and conquerors in war; cf. 2 Tm 2:5; 1 Cor 9:25.

4:9–13 Demas either abandoned the work of the ministry for worldly affairs or, perhaps, gave up the faith itself (2 Tm 4:10). Luke (2 Tm 4:11) may have accompanied Paul on parts of his second and third missionary journeys (Acts 16:10–12; 20:5–7). Notice the presence of the first personal pronoun “we” in these Acts passages, suggesting to some that Luke (or at least some traveling companion of Paul’s) was the author of Acts. Mark, once rejected by Paul (Acts 13:13; 15:39), is now to render him a great service (2 Tm 4:11); cf. Col 4:10; Phlm 24. For Tychicus, see Eph 6:21; cf. also Acts 20:4; Col 4:7.

4:10 Galatia: some manuscripts read “Gaul” or “Gallia.”

4:14–18 Alexander: an opponent of Paul’s preaching (2 Tm 4:14–15), perhaps the one who is mentioned in 1 Tm 1:20. Despite Paul’s abandonment by his friends in the province of Asia (cf. 2 Tm 1:15–16), the divine assistance brought this first trial to a successful issue, even to the point of making the gospel message known to those who participated in or witnessed the trial (2 Tm 4:16–17).

4:19 Prisca and Aquila: they assisted Paul in his ministry in Corinth (Acts 18:2–3) and Ephesus (Acts 18:19, 26; 1 Cor 16:19). They risked death to save his life, and all the Gentile communities are indebted to them (Rom 16:3–5).

4:20 Erastus: he was the treasurer of the city of Corinth (Rom 16:24); cf. also Acts 19:22. Trophimus: from the province of Asia, he accompanied Paul from Greece to Troas (Acts 20:4–5).

4:21 Linus: Western tradition sometimes identified this Linus with the supposed successor of Peter as bishop of Rome, and Claudia as the mother of Linus (Apostolic Constitutions, fourth century).

The Letter to Titus

1 2 3

See RG 535–42

The third of the Pastoral Epistles in the New Testament is addressed to a different co-worker of Paul than are First and Second Timothy. The situation is different, too, for Titus is addressed as the person in charge of developing the church on the large Mediterranean island of Crete (Ti 1:5), a place Paul had never, according to the New Testament, visited. The tone is closer to that of First Timothy as three topics of church life and structure are discussed: presbyter-bishops (see note on Ti 1:5–9), groups with which one must work in the church (Ti 2:1–10), and admonitions for conduct based on the grace and love of God that appeared in Jesus Christ (Ti 2:11–3:10). The warmer personal tone of Second Timothy is replaced by emphasis on church office and on living in the society of the day, in which deceivers and heretics abound (Ti 1:10–16; 3:9–10).

The Pauline assistant who is addressed, Titus, was a Gentile Christian, but we are nowhere informed of his place of birth or residence. He went from Antioch with Paul and Barnabas to Jerusalem (Gal 2:1; cf. Acts 15:2). According to 2 Corinthians (2 Cor 2:13; 7:6, 13–14), he was with Paul on his third missionary journey; his name, however, does not appear in Acts. Besides being the bearer of Paul's severe letter to the Corinthians (2 Cor 7:6–8), he had the responsibility of taking up the collection in Corinth for the Christian community of Jerusalem (2 Cor 8:6, 16–19, 23). In the present letter (Ti 1:5), he is mentioned as the administrator of the Christian community in Crete, charged with the task of organizing it through the appointment of presbyters and bishops (Ti 1:5–9; here the two terms refer to the same personages).

The letter instructs Titus about the character of the assistants he is to choose in view of the pastoral difficulties peculiar to Crete (Ti 1:5–16). It suggests the special individual and social virtues that the various age groups and classes in the Christian community should be encouraged to acquire (Ti 2:1–10). The motivation for transformation of their lives comes from christology, especially the redemptive sacrifice of Christ and his future coming, as applied through baptism and justification (Ti 2:11–14; 3:4–8). The community is to serve as a leaven for Christianizing the social world about it (Ti 3:1–3). Good works are to be the evidence of their faith in God (Ti 3:8); those who engage in religious controversy are, after suitable warning, to be ignored (Ti 3:9–11).

The authorship and date of the Letter to Titus are discussed in the Introduction to 1 Timothy. Those who assume authorship by Paul himself usually place Titus after 1 Timothy and before 2 Timothy. Others see it as closely related to 1 Timothy, in a growing emphasis on church structure and opposition to heresy, later than the letters of Paul himself and 2 Timothy. It has also been suggested that, if the three Pastorals once circulated as a literary unit, Titus was meant to be read ahead of 1 and 2 Timothy.

The principal divisions of the Letter to Titus are the following:

- I. Address (1:1–4)
- II. Pastoral Charge (1:5–16)
- III. Teaching the Christian Life (2:1–3:15)

I. ADDRESS

CHAPTER 1

See RG 541–42

Greeting. <sup>1a*</sup>Paul, a slave of God and apostle of Jesus Christ for the sake of the faith of God's chosen ones and the recognition of religious truth, <sup>2b</sup>in the hope of eternal life that God, who does not lie, promised before time began, <sup>3c</sup>who indeed at the proper time revealed his word in the proclamation with which I was entrusted by the command of God our savior, <sup>4d</sup>to Titus, my true child in our common faith: grace and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our savior.

II. PASTORAL CHARGE

Titus in Crete. <sup>5*</sup>For this reason I left you in Crete so that you might set right what remains to be done and appoint presbyters in every town, as I directed you, <sup>6e</sup>on condition that a man be blameless, married only once, with believing children who are not accused of licentiousness or rebellious. <sup>7</sup>For a bishop as God's steward must be blameless, not arrogant, not irritable, not a drunkard, not aggressive, not greedy for sordid gain, <sup>8</sup>but hospitable, a lover of goodness, temperate, just, holy, and self-controlled, <sup>9f</sup>holding fast to the true message as taught so that he will be able both to exhort with sound doctrine and to refute opponents. <sup>10*</sup>For there are also many rebels, idle talkers and deceivers, especially the Jewish Christians. <sup>11</sup>It is imperative to silence them, as they are upsetting whole families by teaching for sordid gain what they should not. <sup>12*</sup>One of them, a prophet of their own, once said, "Cretans have always been liars, vicious beasts, and lazy gluttons." <sup>13g</sup>That testimony is true. Therefore, admonish them sharply, so that they may be sound in the faith, <sup>14h</sup>instead of paying attention to Jewish myths and regulations of people who have repudiated the truth. <sup>15i</sup>To the clean all things are clean, but to those who are defiled and unbelieving nothing is clean; in fact, both their minds and their consciences are tainted. <sup>16</sup>They claim to know God, but by their deeds they deny him. They are vile and disobedient and unqualified for any good deed.

III. TEACHING THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

CHAPTER 2

Christian Behavior. <sup>1j*</sup>As for yourself, you must say what is consistent with sound doctrine, namely, <sup>2</sup>that older men should be temperate, dignified, self-controlled, sound in faith, love, and endurance. <sup>3</sup>Similarly, older women should be reverent in their behavior, not slanderers, not addicted to drink, teaching what is good, <sup>4</sup>so that they may train younger women to love their husbands and children, <sup>5k</sup>to be self-controlled, chaste, good homemakers, under the control of their husbands, so that the word of God may not be discredited.

<sup>6</sup>Urge the younger men, similarly, to control themselves, <sup>7</sup>showing yourself as a model of good deeds in every respect, with integrity in your teaching, dignity, <sup>8</sup>and sound speech that cannot be criticized, so that the opponent will be put to shame without anything bad to say about us.

<sup>9l</sup>Slaves are to be under the control of their masters in all respects, giving them satisfaction, not talking back to them <sup>10m</sup>or stealing from them, but exhibiting complete good faith, so as to adorn the doctrine of God our savior in every way.

Transformation of Life. <sup>11n *</sup>For the grace of God has appeared, saving all <sup>12</sup>and training us to reject godless ways and worldly desires and to live temperately, justly, and devoutly in this age, <sup>13o*</sup>as we await the blessed hope, the appearance of the glory of the great God and of our savior Jesus Christ, <sup>14p</sup>who gave himself for us to deliver us from all lawlessness and to cleanse for himself a people as his own, eager to do what is good.

<sup>15q</sup>Say these things. Exhort and correct with all authority. Let no one look down on you.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1r*</sup>Remind them to be under the control of magistrates and authorities, to be obedient, to be open to every good enterprise. <sup>2</sup> They are to slander no one, to be peaceable, considerate, exercising all graciousness toward everyone. <sup>3s</sup>For we ourselves were once foolish, disobedient, deluded, slaves to various desires and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful ourselves and hating one another.

<sup>4t</sup> But when the kindness and generous
of God our savior appeared, <sup>5u</sup> not because of any righteous deeds we had done
but because of his mercy, he saved us through the bath of rebirth and renewal by the holy Spirit, <sup>6v</sup> whom he richly poured out on us through Jesus Christ our savior, <sup>7w</sup> so that we might be justified by his grace and become heirs in hope of eternal

Advice to Titus. I want you to insist on these points, that those who have believed in God be careful to devote themselves to good works; these are excellent and beneficial to others. <sup>9y*</sup> Avoid foolish arguments, genealogies, rivalries, and quarrels about the law, for they are useless and futile. <sup>10z</sup> After a first and second warning, break off contact with a heretic, <sup>11</sup> realizing that such a person is perverted and sinful and stands self-condemned.

Directives, Greetings, and Blessing. <sup>12a*</sup> When I send Artemas to you, or Tychicus, try to join me at Nicopolis, where I have decided to spend the winter. <sup>13 b</sup> Send Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their journey soon, and see to it that they have everything they need. <sup>14c</sup> But let our people, too, learn to devote themselves to good works to supply urgent needs, so that they may not be unproductive.

<sup>15d</sup> All who are with me send you greetings. Greet those who love us in the faith.

Grace be with all of you.

1:1–4 On the epistolary form, see note on Rom 1:1–7. The apostolate is the divinely appointed mission to lead others to the true faith and through it to eternal salvation (Ti 1–3).

1:5–9 This instruction on the selection and appointment of presbyters, substantially identical with that in 1 Tm 3:1–7 on a bishop (see note there), was aimed at strengthening the authority of Titus by apostolic mandate; cf. Ti 2:15. In Ti 1:5, 7 and Acts 20:17, 28, the terms episkopos and presbyteros (“bishop” and “presbyter”) refer to the same persons. Deacons are not mentioned in Titus. See also note on Phil 1:1.

1:10–16 This adverse criticism of the defects within the community is directed especially against certain Jewish Christians, who busy themselves with useless speculations over persons mentioned in the Old Testament, insist on the observance of Jewish ritual purity regulations, and thus upset whole families by teaching things they have no right to teach; cf. Ti 3:9; 1 Tm 1:3–10.

1:10 Jewish Christians: literally, “those of the circumcision.”

1:12 Cretans... gluttons: quoted from Epimenides, a Cretan poet of the sixth century B.C.

2:1–10 One of Titus’ main tasks in Crete is to become acquainted with the character of the Cretans and thereby learn to cope with its deficiencies (see Ti 1:12). The counsel is not only for Titus himself but for various classes of people with whom he must deal: older men and women (Ti 2:2–4), younger women and men (Ti 2:4–7), and slaves (Ti 2:9–10); cf. Eph 6:1–9; Col 3:18–4:1.

2:11–15 Underlying the admonitions for moral improvement in Ti 2:1–10 as the moving force is the constant appeal to God’s revelation of salvation in Christ, with its demand for transformation of life.

2:13 The blessed hope, the appearance: literally, “the blessed hope and appearance,” but the use of a single article in Greek strongly suggests an exegetical, i.e., explanatory sense. Of the great God and of our savior Jesus Christ: another possible translation is “of our great God and savior Jesus Christ.”

3:1–8 The list of Christian duties continues from Ti 2:9–10, undergirded again as in Ti 2:11–13 by appeal to what God in Christ has done (Ti 2:4–7; cf. Ti 2:11–14). The spiritual renewal of the Cretans, signified in God’s merciful gift of baptism (Ti 3:4–7), should be reflected in their improved attitude toward civil authority and in their Christian relationship with all (Ti 3:1–3).

3:1 Magistrates and authorities: some interpreters understand these terms as referring to the principalities and powers of the heavenly hierarchy. To be open to every good enterprise: this implies being good citizens. It could also be translated “ready to do every sort of good work” (as Christians); cf. Ti 3:14.

3:8–11 In matters of good conduct and religious doctrine, Titus is to stand firm.

3:9 See note on 1 Tm 6:20–21.

3:12–15 Artemas or Tychicus (2 Tm 4:12) is to replace Titus, who will join Paul in his winter sojourn at Nicopolis in Epirus, on the western coast of Greece.

The Letter to Philemon

See RG 542–44

This short letter addressed to three specific individuals was written by Paul during an imprisonment, perhaps in Rome between A.D. 61 and 63 (see the Introduction to Colossians for other possible sites). It concerns Onesimus, a slave from Colossae (Col 4:9), who had run away from his master, perhaps guilty of theft in the process (Phlm 18). Onesimus was converted to Christ by Paul (Phlm 10). Paul sends him back to his master (Phlm 12) with this letter asking that he be welcomed willingly by his old master (Phlm 8–10, 14, 17) not just as a slave but as a brother in Christ (Phlm 16). Paul uses very strong arguments (especially Phlm 19) in his touching appeal on behalf of Onesimus. It is unlikely that Paul is subtly hinting that he would like to retain Onesimus as his own slave, lent to Paul by his master. Rather, he suggests he would like to have Onesimus work with him for the gospel (Phlm 13, 20–21). There is, however, little evidence connecting this Onesimus with a bishop of Ephesus of the same name mentioned by Ignatius of Antioch (ca. A.D. 110).

Paul's letter deals with an accepted institution of antiquity, human slavery. But Paul breathes into this letter the spirit of Christ and of equality within the Christian community. He does not attack slavery directly, for this is something the Christian communities of the first century were in no position to do, and the expectation that Christ would soon come again militated against social reforms. Yet Paul, by presenting Onesimus as “brother, beloved... to me, but even more so to you” (Phlm 16), voiced an idea revolutionary in that day and destined to break down worldly barriers of division “in the Lord.”

See RG 543–44

Address and Greeting. <sup>1a*</sup>Paul, a prisoner for Christ Jesus, and Timothy our brother, to Philemon, our beloved and our co-worker, <sup>2b*</sup>to Apphia our sister, to Archippus our fellow soldier, and to the church at your house.

<sup>3c*</sup> Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Thanksgiving. <sup>4d*</sup> I give thanks to my God always, remembering you in my prayers, <sup>5*</sup> as I hear of the love and the faith you have in the Lord Jesus and for all the holy ones, <sup>6e*</sup> so that your partnership in the faith may become effective in recognizing every good there is in us that leads to Christ.

Plea for Onesimus. <sup>7f*</sup> For I have experienced much joy and encouragement from your love, because the hearts of the holy ones have been refreshed by you, brother. <sup>8*</sup> Therefore, although I have the full right in Christ to order you to do what is proper, <sup>9g*</sup> I rather urge you out of love, being as I am, Paul, an old man, and now also a prisoner for Christ Jesus. <sup>10h</sup> I urge you on behalf of my child Onesimus, whose father I have become in my imprisonment, <sup>11*</sup> who was once useless to you but is now useful to [both] you and me. <sup>12</sup> I am sending him, that is, my own heart, back to you. <sup>13i*</sup> I should have liked to retain him for myself, so that he might serve me on your behalf in my imprisonment for the gospel, <sup>14j</sup> but I did not want to do anything without your consent, so that the good you do might not be forced but voluntary. <sup>15*</sup> Perhaps this is why he was away from you for a while, that you might have him back forever, <sup>16k*</sup> no longer as a slave but more than a slave, a brother, beloved especially to me, but even more so to you, as a man and in the Lord. <sup>17</sup> So if you regard me as a partner, welcome him as you would me. <sup>18*</sup> And if he has done you any injustice or owes you anything, charge it to me. <sup>19l</sup> I, Paul, write this in my own hand: I will pay. May I not tell you that you owe me your very self. <sup>20</sup> Yes, brother, may I profit from you in the Lord. Refresh my heart in Christ.

<sup>21</sup> With trust in your compliance I write to you, knowing that you will do even more than I say. <sup>22m</sup> At the same time prepare a guest room for me, for I hope to be granted to you through your prayers.

Final Greetings. <sup>23n*</sup> Epaphras, my fellow prisoner in Christ Jesus, greets you, <sup>24o</sup> as well as Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke, my co-workers. <sup>25</sup> The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit.

1 Prisoner: as often elsewhere (cf. Romans, 1 Corinthians, Galatians especially), the second word in Greek enunciates the theme and sets the tone of the letter. Here it is the prisoner appealing rather than the apostle commanding.

2 Apphia our sister: sister is here used (like brother) to indicate a fellow Christian. The church at your house: your here is singular. It more likely refers to Philemon than to the last one named, Archippus; Philemon is then the owner of the slave Onesimus (Phlm 10). An alternate view is that the actual master of the slave is Archippus and that the one to whom the letter is addressed, Philemon, is the most prominent Christian there; see note on Col 4:17.

3 Grace... and peace: for this greeting, which may be a combination of Greek and Aramaic epistolary formulae, see note on Rom 1:1–7.

4 In my prayers: literally, “at the time of my prayers.”

5 Holy ones: a common term for members of the Christian community (so also Phlm 7).

6 In us: some good ancient manuscripts have in you (plural). That leads to Christ: leads to translates the Greek preposition eis, indicating direction or purpose.

7 Encouragement: the Greek word paraklesis is cognate with the verb translated “urge” in Phlm 9, 10, and serves as an introduction to Paul’s plea. Hearts: literally, “bowels,” expressing in Semitic fashion the seat of the emotions, one’s “inmost self.” The same Greek word is used in Phlm 12 and again in Phlm 20, where it forms a literary inclusion marking off the body of the letter.

8 Full right: often translated “boldness,” the Greek word parresia connotes the full franchise of speech, as the right of a citizen to speak before the body politic, claimed by the Athenians as their privilege (Euripides).

9 Old man: some editors conjecture that Paul here used a similar Greek word meaning “ambassador” (cf. Eph 6:20). This conjecture heightens the contrast with “prisoner” but is totally without manuscript support.

13 Serve: the Greek diakoneō could connote a ministry.

16 As a man: literally, “in the flesh.” With this and the following phrase, Paul describes the natural and spiritual orders.

18–19 Charge it to me... I will pay: technical legal and commercial terms in account keeping and acknowledgment of indebtedness.

23–24 Epaphras: a Colossian who founded the church there (Col 1:7) and perhaps also in Laodicea and Hierapolis (Col 2:1; 4:12–13). Aristarchus: a native of Thessalonica and fellow worker of Paul (Acts 19:29; 20:4; 27:2). For Mark, Demas, and Luke, see 2 Tm 4:9–13 and the note there.

The Letter to the Hebrews

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13

See RG 545–50

As early as the second century, this treatise, which is of great rhetorical power and force in its admonition to faithful pilgrimage under Christ's leadership, bore the title "To the Hebrews." It was assumed to be directed to Jewish Christians. Usually Hebrews was attached in Greek manuscripts to the collection of letters by Paul. Although no author is mentioned (for there is no address), a reference to Timothy (Heb 13:23) suggested connections to the circle of Paul and his assistants. Yet the exact audience, the author, and even whether Hebrews is a letter have long been disputed.

The author saw the addressees in danger of apostasy from their Christian faith. This danger was due not to any persecution from outsiders but to a weariness with the demands of Christian life and a growing indifference to their calling (Heb 2:1; 4:14; 6:1–12; 10:23–32). The author's main theme, the priesthood and sacrifice of Jesus (Heb 3–10), is not developed for its own sake but as a means of restoring their lost fervor and strengthening them in their faith. Another important theme of the letter is that of the pilgrimage of the people of God to the heavenly Jerusalem (Heb 11:10; 12:1–3, 18–29; 13:14). This theme is intimately connected with that of Jesus' ministry in the heavenly sanctuary (Heb 9:11–10:22).

The author calls this work a "message of encouragement" (Heb 13:22), a designation that is given to a synagogue sermon in Acts 13:15. Hebrews is probably therefore a written homily, to which the author gave an epistolary ending (Heb 13:22–25).

The author begins with a reminder of the preexistence, incarnation, and exaltation of Jesus (Heb 1:3) that proclaimed him the climax of God's word to humanity (Heb 1:1–3). He dwells upon the dignity of the person of Christ, superior to the angels (Heb 1:4–2:2). Christ is God's final word of salvation communicated (in association with accredited witnesses to his teaching: cf. Heb 2:3–4) not merely by word but through his suffering in the humanity common to him and to all others (Heb 2:5–16). This enactment of salvation went beyond the pattern known to Moses, faithful prophet of God's word though he was, for Jesus as high priest expiated sin and was faithful to God with the faithfulness of God's own Son (Heb 2:17–3:6).

Just as the infidelity of the people thwarted Moses' efforts to save them, so the infidelity of any Christian may thwart God's plan in Christ (Heb 3:6–4:13). Christians are to reflect that it is their humanity that Jesus took upon himself, with all its defects save sinfulness, and that he bore the burden of it until death out of obedience to God. God declared this work of his Son to be the cause of salvation for all (Heb 4:14–5:10). Although Christians recognize this fundamental teaching, they may grow weary of it and of its implications, and therefore require other reflections to stimulate their faith (Heb 5:11–6:20).

Therefore, the author presents to the readers for their reflection the everlasting priesthood of Christ (Heb 7:1–28), a priesthood that fulfills the promise of the Old Testament (Heb 8:1–13). It also provides the meaning God ultimately intended in the sacrifices of the Old Testament (Heb 9:1–28): these pointed to the unique sacrifice of Christ, which alone obtains forgiveness of sins (Heb 10:1–18). The trial of faith experienced by the readers should resolve itself through their consideration of Christ's ministry in the heavenly sanctuary and his perpetual intercession there on their behalf (Heb 7:25; 8:1–13). They should also be strengthened by the assurance of his foreordained parousia, and by the fruits of faith that they have already enjoyed (Heb 10:19–39).

It is in the nature of faith to recognize the reality of what is not yet seen and is the object of hope, and the saints of the Old Testament give striking example of that faith (Heb 11:1–40). The perseverance to which the author exhorts the readers is shown forth in the early life of Jesus. Despite the afflictions of his ministry and the supreme trial of his suffering and death, he remained confident of the triumph that God would bring him (Heb 12:1–3). The difficulties of human life have meaning when they are accepted as God's discipline (Heb 12:4–13), and if Christians persevere in fidelity to the word in which they have believed, they are assured of possessing forever the unshakable kingdom of God (Heb 12:14–29).

The letter concludes with specific moral commandments (Heb 13:1–17), in the course of which the author recalls again his central theme of the sacrifice of Jesus and the courage needed to associate oneself with it in faith (Heb 13:9–16).

As early as the end of the second century, the church of Alexandria in Egypt accepted Hebrews as a letter of Paul, and that became the view commonly held in the East. Pauline authorship was contested in the West into the fourth century, but then accepted. In the sixteenth century, doubts about that position were again raised, and the modern consensus is that the letter was not written by Paul. There is, however, no widespread agreement on any of the other suggested authors, e.g., Barnabas, Apollos, or Prisc(ill)a and Aquila. The document itself has no statement about its author.

Among the reasons why Pauline authorship has been abandoned are the great difference of vocabulary and style between Hebrews and Paul's letters, the alternation of doctrinal teaching with moral exhortation, the different manner of citing the Old Testament, and the resemblance between the thought of Hebrews and that of Alexandrian Judaism. The Greek of the letter is in many ways the best in the New Testament.

Since the letter of Clement of Rome to the Corinthians, written about A.D. 96, most probably cites Hebrews, the upper limit for the date of composition is reasonably certain. While the letter's references in the present tense to the Old Testament sacrificial worship do not necessarily show that temple worship was still going on, many older commentators and a growing number of recent ones favor the view that it was and that the author wrote before the destruction of the temple of Jerusalem in A.D. 70. In that case, the argument of the letter is more easily explained as directed toward Jewish Christians rather than those of Gentile origin, and the persecutions they have suffered in the past (cf. Heb 10:32–34) may have been connected with the disturbances that preceded the expulsion of the Jews from Rome in A.D. 49 under the emperor Claudius. These were probably caused by disputes between Jews who accepted Jesus as the Messiah and those who did not.

The principal divisions of the Letter to the Hebrews are the following:

- I. Introduction (1:1–4)
- II. The Son Higher Than the Angels (1:5–2:18)
- III. Jesus, Faithful and Compassionate High Priest (3:1–5:10)

- IV. Jesus' Eternal Priesthood and Eternal Sacrifice (5:11–10:39)
V. Examples, Discipline, Disobedience (11:1–12:29)
VI. Final Exhortation, Blessing, Greetings (13:1–25)

I. INTRODUCTION

CHAPTER 1

See RG 546–47

<sup>1*</sup>In times past, God spoke in partial and various ways to our ancestors through the prophets; <sup>2a</sup>in these last days, he spoke to us through a son, whom he made heir of all things and through whom he created the universe,

<sup>3b</sup>who is the refulgence of his glory, the very imprint of his being,
and who sustains all things by his mighty word.

When he had accomplished purification from sins, he took his seat at the right hand of the Majesty on high,

<sup>4c</sup>as far superior to the angels as the name he has inherited is more excellent than theirs.

II. THE SON HIGHER THAN THE ANGELS

Messianic Enthronement. <sup>5d*</sup>For to which of the angels did God ever say:

“You are my son; this day I have begotten you”?

Or again:

“I will be a father to him, and he shall be a son to me”?

<sup>6e*</sup>And again, when he leads the first-born into the world, he says:

“Let all the angels of God worship him.”

<sup>7f</sup>Of the angels he says:

<sup>8g*</sup> but of the Son:

“Your throne, O God, stands forever and ever;
and a righteous scepter is the scepter of your kingdom.

<sup>9</sup>You loved justice and hated wickedness;
therefore God, your God, anointed you with the oil of gladness above your

“At the beginning, O Lord, you established the earth, and the heavens are the works of your hands.

<sup>11</sup>They will perish, but you remain; and they will all grow old like a garment.

<sup>12</sup>You will roll them up like a cloak, and like a garment they will be changed.
But you are the same, and your years will have no end.”

<sup>13i</sup> But to which of the angels has he ever said:

“Sit at my right hand until I make your enemies your footstool”?

<sup>14j</sup> Are they not all ministering spirits sent to serve, for the sake of those who are to inherit salvation?

CHAPTER 2

See RG 546–47

Exhortation to Faithfulness. <sup>1*</sup>Therefore, we must attend all the more to what we have heard, so that we may not be carried away. <sup>2k</sup>For if the word announced through angels proved firm, and every transgression and disobedience received its just recompense, <sup>3l</sup>how shall we escape if we ignore so great a salvation? Announced originally through the Lord, it was confirmed for us by those who had heard. <sup>4m</sup>God added his testimony by signs, wonders, various acts of power, and distribution of the gifts of the holy Spirit according to his will.

Exaltation Through Abasement. <sup>5*</sup>For it was not to angels that he subjected the world to come, of which we are speaking. <sup>6n</sup>Instead, someone has testified somewhere:

“What is man that you are mindful of him, or the son of man that you care for
him?

<sup>7</sup>You made him for a little while lower than the angels;

In “subjecting” all things [to him], he left nothing not “subject to him.” Yet at present we do not see “all things subject to him,” <sup>9p</sup>but we do see Jesus “crowned with glory and honor” because he suffered death, he who “for a little while” was made “lower than the angels,” that by the grace of God he might taste death for everyone.

<sup>10q</sup>For it was fitting that he, for whom and through whom all things exist, in bringing many children to glory, should make the leader to their salvation perfect through suffering. <sup>11</sup> He who consecrates and those who are being consecrated all have one origin. Therefore, he is not ashamed to call them “brothers,” <sup>12r</sup>saying:

“I will proclaim your name to my brothers, in the midst of the assembly I will

“I will put my trust in him”;
and again:

“Behold, I and the children God has given me.”

<sup>14t</sup>Now since the children share in blood and flesh, he likewise shared in them, that through death he might destroy the one who has the power of death, that is, the devil, <sup>15</sup>and free those who through fear of death had been subject to slavery all their life. <sup>16</sup>Surely he did not help angels but rather the descendants of Abraham; <sup>17u</sup>therefore, he had to become like his brothers in every way, that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest before God to expiate the sins of the people. <sup>18</sup>Because he himself was tested through what he suffered, he is able to help those who are being tested.

III. JESUS, FAITHFUL AND COMPASSIONATE HIGH PRIEST

CHAPTER 3

See RG 547–48

Jesus, Superior to Moses. <sup>1*</sup>Therefore, holy “brothers,” sharing in a heavenly calling, reflect on Jesus, the apostle and high priest of our confession, <sup>2v</sup>who was faithful to the one who appointed him, just as Moses was “faithful in [all] his house.” <sup>3w</sup>But he is worthy of more “glory” than Moses, as the founder of a house has more “honor” than the house itself. <sup>4</sup>Every house is founded by someone, but the founder of all is God. <sup>5</sup>Moses was “faithful in all his house” as a “servant” to testify to what would be spoken, <sup>6x*</sup>but Christ was faithful as a son placed over his house. We are his house, if [only] we hold fast to our confidence and pride in our hope.

Israel’s Infidelity a Warning. <sup>7y*</sup>Therefore, as the holy Spirit says:

voice,

<sup>8</sup>‘Harden not your hearts as at the rebellion
in the day of testing in the desert,

<sup>9z</sup>where your ancestors tested and tried

years.

Because of this I was provoked with that generation and I said, “They have always been of erring heart, and they do not know my ways.”

<sup>11</sup>As I swore in my wrath,
“They shall not enter into my rest.” ’ ”

<sup>12</sup>Take care, brothers, that none of you may have an evil and unfaithful heart, so as to forsake the living God. <sup>13</sup>Encourage yourselves daily while it is still “today,” so that none of you may grow hardened by the deceit of sin. <sup>14a</sup>We have become partners of Christ if only we hold the beginning of the reality firm until the end, <sup>15b</sup>for it is said:

“Oh, that today you would hear his voice:

'Harden not your hearts as at the rebellion.' ”

CHAPTER 4

The Sabbath Rest. <sup>1</sup>therefore, let us be on our guard while the promise of entering into his rest remains, that none of you seem to have failed. <sup>2</sup> For in fact we have received the good news just as they did. But the word that they heard did not profit them, for they were not united in faith with those who listened. <sup>3f</sup>For we who believed enter into [that] rest, just as he has said:

“As I swore in my wrath,
‘They shall not enter into my rest,’ ”

and yet his works were accomplished at the foundation of the world. <sup>4g</sup>For he has spoken somewhere about the seventh day in this manner, “And God rested on the seventh day from all his works”; <sup>5h</sup>and again, in the previously mentioned place, “They shall not enter into my rest.” <sup>6</sup>Therefore, since it remains that some will enter into it, and those who formerly received the good news did not enter because of disobedience, <sup>7i</sup>he once more set a day, “today,” when long afterwards he spoke through David, as already quoted:

“Oh, that today you would hear his voice:
‘Harden not your hearts.’ ”

<sup>8j</sup>Now if Joshua had given them rest, he would not have spoken afterwards of another day. <sup>9</sup>Therefore, a sabbath rest still remains for the people of God. <sup>10</sup>And whoever enters into God’s rest, rests from his own works as God did from his. <sup>11</sup> Therefore, let us strive to enter into that rest, so that no one may fall after the same example of disobedience.

<sup>12k</sup>Indeed, the word of God is living and effective, sharper than any two-edged sword, penetrating even between soul and spirit, joints and marrow, and able to discern reflections and thoughts of the heart. <sup>13 l</sup>No creature is concealed from him, but everything is naked and exposed to the eyes of him to whom we must render an account.

Jesus, Compassionate High Priest. <sup>14m*</sup>Therefore, since we have a great high priest who has passed through the heavens, Jesus, the Son of God, let us hold fast to our confession. <sup>15n</sup>For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but one who has similarly been tested in every way, yet without sin. <sup>16</sup>So let us confidently approach the throne of grace to receive mercy and to find grace for timely help.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1*</sup>Every high priest is taken from among men and made their representative before God, to offer gifts and sacrifices for sins. <sup>2*</sup>He is able to deal patiently with the ignorant and erring, for he himself is beset by weakness <sup>3p</sup>and so, for this reason, must make sin offerings for himself as well as for the people. <sup>4q</sup>No one takes this honor upon himself but only when called by God, just as Aaron was. <sup>5r</sup>In the same way, it was not Christ who glorified himself in becoming high priest, but rather the one who said to him:

“You are my son;
this day I have begotten you”;

<sup>6s*</sup>just as he says in another place:

according to the order of Melchizedek.”

<sup>7t*</sup>In the days when he was in the flesh, he offered prayers and supplications with loud cries and tears to the one who was able to save him from death, and he was heard because of his reverence. <sup>8u*</sup>Son though he was, he learned obedience from what he suffered; <sup>9v</sup>and when he was made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation for all who obey him, <sup>10w</sup>declared by God high priest according to the order of Melchizedek.

IV. JESUS’ ETERNAL PRIESTHOOD AND ETERNAL SACRIFICE

Exhortation to Spiritual Renewal.<sup>11 *</sup> About this we have much to say, and it is difficult to explain, for you have become sluggish in hearing. <sup>12x</sup>Although you should be teachers by this time, you need to have someone teach you again the basic elements of the utterances of God. You need milk, [and] not solid food. <sup>13</sup>Everyone who lives on milk lacks experience of the word of righteousness, for he is a child. <sup>14</sup>But solid food is for the mature, for those whose faculties are trained by practice to discern good and evil.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1y</sup>Therefore, let us leave behind the basic teaching about Christ and advance to maturity, without laying the foundation all over again: repentance from dead works and faith in God, <sup>2z*</sup>instruction about baptisms and laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead and eternal judgment. <sup>3</sup> And we shall do this, if only God permits. <sup>4a*</sup>For it is impossible in the case of those who have once been enlightened and tasted the heavenly gift and shared in the holy Spirit <sup>5*</sup>and tasted the good word of God and the powers of the age to come, <sup>6b*</sup>and then have fallen away, to bring them to repentance again, since they are recrucifying the Son of God for themselves and holding him up to contempt. <sup>7c</sup>Ground that has absorbed the rain falling upon it repeatedly and brings forth crops useful to those for whom it is cultivated receives a blessing from God. <sup>8d</sup>But if it produces thorns and thistles, it is rejected; it will soon be cursed and finally burned.

<sup>9</sup>But we are sure in your regard, beloved, of better things related to salvation, even though we speak in this way. <sup>10</sup>For God is not unjust so as to overlook your work and the love you have demonstrated for his name by having served and continuing to serve the holy ones. <sup>11 e</sup>We earnestly desire each of you to demonstrate the same eagerness for the fulfillment of hope until the end, <sup>12 f *</sup>so that you may not become sluggish, but imitators of those who, through faith and patience, are inheriting the promises.

God's Promise Immutable. <sup>13g*</sup>When God made the promise to Abraham, since he had no one greater by whom to swear, “he swore by himself,” <sup>14h</sup>and said, “I will indeed bless you and multiply” you. <sup>15i*</sup>And so, after patient waiting, he obtained the promise. <sup>16</sup>Human beings swear by someone greater than themselves; for them an oath serves as a guarantee and puts an end to all argument. <sup>17j</sup>So when God wanted to give the heirs of his promise an even clearer demonstration of the immutability of his purpose, he intervened with an oath, <sup>18k*</sup>so that by two immutable things, in which it was impossible for God to lie, we who have taken refuge might be strongly encouraged to hold fast to the hope that lies before us. <sup>19l*</sup>This we have as an anchor of the soul, sure and firm, which reaches into the interior behind the veil, <sup>20m</sup>where Jesus has entered on our behalf as forerunner, becoming high priest forever according to the order of Melchizedek.

CHAPTER 7

Melchizedek, a Type of Christ. <sup>1n*</sup>This “Melchizedek, king of Salem and priest of God Most High,” “met Abraham as he returned from his defeat of the kings” and “blessed him.” <sup>2*</sup>And Abraham apportioned to him “a tenth of everything.” His name first means righteous king, and he was also “king of Salem,” that is, king of peace. <sup>3o*</sup>Without father, mother, or ancestry, without beginning of days or end of life, thus made to resemble the Son of God, he remains a priest forever.

<sup>4p*</sup>See how great he is to whom the patriarch “Abraham [indeed] gave a tenth” of his spoils. <sup>5q</sup>The descendants of Levi who receive the office of priesthood have a commandment according to the law to exact tithes from the people, that is, from their brothers, although they also have come from the loins of Abraham. <sup>6</sup>But he who was not of their ancestry received tithes from Abraham and blessed him who had received the promises. <sup>7*</sup>Unquestionably, a lesser person is blessed by a greater. <sup>8</sup>In the one case, mortal men receive tithes; in the other, a man of whom it is testified that he lives on. <sup>9*</sup>One might even say that Levi himself, who receives tithes, was tithed through Abraham, <sup>10f</sup>for he was still in his father’s loins when Melchizedek met him.

<sup>11r*</sup>If, then, perfection came through the levitical priesthood, on the basis of which the people received the law, what need would there still have been for another priest to arise according to the order of Melchizedek, and not reckoned according to the order of Aaron? <sup>12</sup>When there is a change of priesthood, there is necessarily a change of law as well. <sup>13*</sup>Now he of whom these things are said belonged to a different tribe, of which no member ever officiated at the altar. <sup>14s*</sup>It is clear that our Lord arose from Judah, and in regard to that tribe Moses said nothing about priests. <sup>15*</sup>It is even more obvious if another priest is raised up after the likeness of Melchizedek, <sup>16*</sup>who has become so, not by a law expressed in a commandment concerning physical descent but by the power of a life that cannot be destroyed. <sup>17t</sup>For it is testified:

according to the order of Melchizedek.”

<sup>18u</sup>On the one hand, a former commandment is annulled because of its weakness and uselessness, <sup>19*</sup>for the law brought nothing to perfection; on the other hand, a better hope is introduced, through which we draw near to God. <sup>20*</sup>And to the degree that this happened not without the taking of an oath—for others became priests without an oath, <sup>21v</sup>but he with an oath, through the one who said to him:

“The Lord has sworn, and he will not repent:
‘You are a priest forever’ ”—

<sup>22w*</sup>to that same degree has Jesus [also] become the guarantee of an [even] better covenant. <sup>23</sup>Those priests were many because they were prevented by death from remaining in office, <sup>24x</sup>but he, because he remains forever, has a priesthood that does not pass away. <sup>25y*</sup>Therefore, he is always able to save those who approach God through him, since he lives forever to make intercession for them.

<sup>26z*</sup>It was fitting that we should have such a high priest: holy, innocent, undefiled, separated from sinners, higher than the heavens. <sup>27a*</sup>He has no need, as did the high priests, to offer sacrifice day after day, first for his own sins and then for those of the people; he did that once for all when he offered himself. <sup>28b</sup>For the law appoints men subject to weakness to be high priests, but the word of the oath, which was taken after the law, appoints a son, who has been made perfect forever.

CHAPTER 8

Heavenly Priesthood of Jesus. <sup>1c*</sup>The main point of what has been said is this: we have such a high priest, who has taken his seat at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in heaven, <sup>2d*</sup>a minister of the sanctuary and of the true tabernacle that the Lord, not man, set up. <sup>3e</sup>Now every high priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices; thus the necessity for this one also to have something to offer. <sup>4f</sup>If then he were on earth, he would not be a priest, since there are those who offer gifts according to the law. <sup>5g</sup>They worship in a copy and shadow of the heavenly sanctuary, as Moses was warned when he was about to erect the tabernacle. For he says, “See that you make everything according to the pattern shown you on the mountain.” <sup>6h</sup>Now he has obtained so much more excellent a ministry as he is mediator of a better covenant, enacted on better promises.

Old and New Covenants. <sup>7*</sup>For if that first covenant had been faultless, no place would have been sought for a second one. <sup>8i*</sup>But he finds fault with them and says:

“Behold, the days are coming, says the Lord,
when I will conclude a new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah.
<sup>9</sup>It will not be like the covenant I made with their fathers
the day I took them by the hand to lead them forth from the land of Egypt;
for they did not stand by my covenant and I ignored them, says the Lord.
<sup>10j</sup>But this is the covenant I will establish with the house of Israel
after those days, says the Lord:
I will put my laws in their minds and I will write them upon their hearts.
I will be their God, and they shall be my people.
<sup>11</sup>And they shall not teach, each one his

and kinsman, saying, 'Know the Lord,'
for all shall know me, from least to greatest.
<sup>12</sup>For I will forgive their evildoing

<sup>13</sup><sup>k*</sup>When he speaks of a "new" covenant, he declares the first one obsolete.
And what has become obsolete and has grown old is close to disappearing.

CHAPTER 9

See RG 548–49

The Worship of the First Covenant. <sup>1*</sup>Now [even] the first covenant had regulations for worship and an earthly sanctuary. <sup>2l*</sup>For a tabernacle was constructed, the outer one, in which were the lampstand, the table, and the bread of offering; this is called the Holy Place. <sup>3m*</sup>Behind the second veil was the tabernacle called the Holy of Holies, <sup>4n*</sup>in which were the gold altar of incense and the ark of the covenant entirely covered with gold. In it were the gold jar containing the manna, the staff of Aaron that had sprouted, and the tablets of the covenant. <sup>5o*</sup>Above it were the cherubim of glory overshadowing the place of expiation. Now is not the time to speak of these in detail.

<sup>6p*</sup>With these arrangements for worship, the priests, in performing their service, go into the outer tabernacle repeatedly, <sup>7q*</sup>but the high priest alone goes into the inner one once a year, not without blood that he offers for himself and for the sins of the people. <sup>8</sup>In this way the holy Spirit shows that the way into the sanctuary had not yet been revealed while the outer tabernacle still had its place. <sup>9*</sup>This is a symbol of the present time, in which gifts and sacrifices are offered that cannot perfect the worshiper in conscience <sup>10r</sup>but only in matters of food and drink and various ritual washings: regulations concerning the flesh, imposed until the time of the new order.

Sacrifice of Jesus. <sup>11s*</sup>But when Christ came as high priest of the good things that have come to be, passing through the greater and more perfect tabernacle not made by hands, that is, not belonging to this creation, <sup>12t</sup>he entered once for all into the sanctuary, not with the blood of goats and calves but with his own blood, thus obtaining eternal redemption. <sup>13u*</sup>For if the blood of goats and bulls and the sprinkling of a heifer's ashes can sanctify those who are defiled so that their flesh is cleansed, <sup>14v*</sup>how much more will the blood of Christ, who through the eternal spirit offered himself unblemished to God, cleanse our consciences from dead works to worship the living God.

<sup>15w*</sup>For this reason he is mediator of a new covenant: since a death has taken place for deliverance from transgressions under the first covenant, those who are called may receive the promised eternal inheritance. <sup>16*</sup>Now where there is a will, the death of the testator must be established. <sup>17</sup>For a will takes effect only at death; it has no force while the testator is alive. <sup>18</sup>Thus not even the first covenant was inaugurated without blood. <sup>19x*</sup>When every commandment had been proclaimed by Moses to all the people according to the law, he took the blood of calves [and goats], together with water and crimson wool and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book itself and all the people, <sup>20y</sup>saying, "This is 'the blood of the covenant which God has enjoined upon you.' " <sup>21z*</sup>In the same way, he sprinkled also the tabernacle and all the vessels of worship with blood. <sup>22a*</sup>According to the law almost everything is purified by blood, and without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness.

<sup>23b*</sup>Therefore, it was necessary for the copies of the heavenly things to be purified by these rites, but the heavenly things themselves by better sacrifices than these. <sup>24c</sup>For Christ did not enter into a sanctuary made by hands, a copy of the true one, but heaven itself, that he might now appear before God on our behalf. <sup>25</sup>Not that he might offer himself repeatedly, as the high priest enters each year into the sanctuary with blood that is not his own; <sup>26d*</sup>if that were so, he would have had to suffer repeatedly from the foundation of the world. But now once for all he has appeared at the end of the ages to take away sin by his sacrifice. <sup>27e</sup>Just as it is appointed that human beings die once, and after this the judgment, <sup>28* f</sup>so also Christ, offered once to take away the sins of many, will appear a second time, not to take away sin but to bring salvation to those who eagerly await him.

CHAPTER 10

See RG 548–49

One Sacrifice Instead of Many. <sup>1g*</sup> Since the law has only a shadow of the good things to come, and not the very image of them, it can never make perfect those who come to worship by the same sacrifices that they offer continually each year. <sup>2</sup> Otherwise, would not the sacrifices have ceased to be offered, since the worshipers, once cleansed, would no longer have had any consciousness of sins? <sup>3h</sup> But in those sacrifices there is only a yearly remembrance of sins, <sup>4i</sup> for it is impossible that the blood of bulls and goats take away sins. <sup>5j*</sup> For this reason, when he came into the world, he said:

“Sacrifice and offering you did not desire,
but a body you prepared for me;
<sup>6</sup> holocausts and sin offerings you took no delight in.
<sup>7</sup> Then I said, ‘As is written of me in the scroll, Behold, I come to do your will,
O God.’ ”

<sup>8k*</sup> First he says, “Sacrifices and offerings, holocausts and sin offerings, you neither desired nor delighted in.” These are offered according to the law. <sup>9l</sup> Then he says, “Behold, I come to do your will.” He takes away the first to establish the second. <sup>10m</sup> By this “will,” we have been consecrated through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

with them after those days, says
the Lord:

‘I will put my laws in their hearts, and I will write them upon their minds,’ ”

<sup>17r*</sup> he also says:

“Their sins and their evildoing
I will remember no more.”

<sup>18</sup>Where there is forgiveness of these, there is no longer offering for sin.

Recalling the Past. <sup>19s*</sup>Therefore, brothers, since through the blood of Jesus we have confidence of entrance into the sanctuary <sup>20t*</sup>by the new and living way he opened for us through the veil, that is, his flesh, <sup>21u*</sup>and since we have “a great priest over the house of God,” <sup>22v*</sup>let us approach with a sincere heart and in absolute trust, with our hearts sprinkled clean from an evil conscience and our bodies washed in pure water. <sup>23w</sup>Let us hold unwaveringly to our confession that gives us hope, for he who made the promise is trustworthy. <sup>24</sup>We must consider how to rouse one another to love and good works. <sup>25x*</sup>We should not stay away from our assembly, as is the custom of some, but encourage one another, and this all the more as you see the day drawing near.

<sup>26y*</sup>If we sin deliberately after receiving knowledge of the truth, there no longer remains sacrifice for sins <sup>27z</sup>but a fearful prospect of judgment and a flaming fire that is going to consume the adversaries. <sup>28a*</sup>Anyone who rejects the law of Moses is put to death without pity on the testimony of two or three witnesses. <sup>29b</sup>Do you not think that a much worse punishment is due the one who has contempt for the Son of God, considers unclean the covenant-blood by which he was consecrated, and insults the spirit of grace? <sup>30c</sup>We know the one who said:

and again:

“The Lord will judge his people.”

<sup>32e*</sup>Remember the days past when, after you had been enlightened, you endured a great contest of suffering. <sup>33f</sup>At times you were publicly exposed to abuse and affliction; at other times you associated yourselves with those so treated. <sup>34g</sup>You even joined in the sufferings of those in prison and joyfully accepted the confiscation of your property, knowing that you had a better and lasting possession. <sup>35h</sup>Therefore, do not throw away your confidence; it will have great recompense. <sup>36i</sup>You need endurance to do the will of God and receive what he has promised.

he who is to come shall come;
he shall not delay.

<sup>38k</sup>But my just one shall live by faith, and if he draws back I take no pleasure in him.”

<sup>39</sup>We are not among those who draw back and perish, but among those who have faith and will possess life.

V. EXAMPLES, DISCIPLINE, DISOBEDIENCE

CHAPTER 11

Faith of the Ancients. <sup>1l*</sup>Faith is the realization of what is hoped for and evidence of things not seen. <sup>2</sup>Because of it the ancients were well attested. <sup>3m*</sup>By faith we understand that the universe was ordered by the word of God, so that what is visible came into being through the invisible. <sup>4n*</sup>By faith Abel offered to God a sacrifice greater than Cain's. Through this he was attested to be righteous, God bearing witness to his gifts, and through this, though dead, he still speaks. <sup>5o</sup>By faith Enoch was taken up so that he should not see death, and "he was found no more because God had taken him." Before he was taken up, he was attested to have pleased God. <sup>6p*</sup>But without faith it is impossible to please him, for anyone who approaches God must believe that he exists and that he rewards those who seek him. <sup>7q</sup>By faith Noah, warned about what was not yet seen, with reverence built an ark for the salvation of his household. Through this he condemned the world and inherited the righteousness that comes through faith.

<sup>8r</sup>By faith Abraham obeyed when he was called to go out to a place that he was to receive as an inheritance; he went out, not knowing where he was to go. <sup>9s</sup>By faith he sojourned in the promised land as in a foreign country, dwelling in tents with Isaac and Jacob, heirs of the same promise; <sup>10t</sup>for he was looking forward to the city with foundations, whose architect and maker is God. <sup>11 u</sup> By faith he received power to generate, even though he was past the normal age—and Sarah herself was sterile—for he thought that the one who had made the promise was trustworthy. <sup>12v</sup>So it was that there came forth from one man, himself as good as dead, descendants as numerous as the stars in the sky and as countless as the sands on the seashore.

<sup>13w</sup> All these died in faith. They did not receive what had been promised but saw it and greeted it from afar and acknowledged themselves to be strangers and aliens on earth, <sup>14</sup>for those who speak thus show that they are seeking a homeland. <sup>15</sup>If they had been thinking of the land from which they had come, they would have had opportunity to return. <sup>16x</sup>But now they desire a better homeland, a heavenly one. Therefore, God is not ashamed to be called their God, for he has prepared a city for them.

<sup>17y</sup>By faith Abraham, when put to the test, offered up Isaac, and he who had received the promises was ready to offer his only son, <sup>18z</sup>of whom it was said, “Through Isaac descendants shall bear your name.” <sup>19a*</sup>He reasoned that God was able to raise even from the dead, and he received Isaac back as a symbol. <sup>20b*</sup>By faith regarding things still to come Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau. <sup>21c</sup>By faith Jacob, when dying, blessed each of the sons of Joseph and “bowed in worship, leaning on the top of his staff.” <sup>22d</sup>By faith Joseph, near the end of his life, spoke of the Exodus of the Israelites and gave instructions about his bones.

<sup>23e</sup>By faith Moses was hidden by his parents for three months after his birth, because they saw that he was a beautiful child, and they were not afraid of the king’s edict. <sup>24f*</sup>By faith Moses, when he had grown up, refused to be known as the son of Pharaoh’s daughter; <sup>25</sup>he chose to be ill-treated along with the people of God rather than enjoy the fleeting pleasure of sin. <sup>26</sup>He considered the reproach of the Anointed greater wealth than the treasures of Egypt, for he was looking to the recompense. <sup>27g</sup>By faith he left Egypt, not fearing the king’s fury, for he persevered as if seeing the one who is invisible. <sup>28h</sup>By faith he kept the Passover and sprinkled the blood, that the Destroyer of the firstborn might not touch them. <sup>29i</sup>By faith they crossed the Red Sea as if it were dry land, but when the Egyptians attempted it they were drowned. <sup>30j</sup>By faith the walls of Jericho fell after being encircled for seven days. <sup>31k</sup>By faith Rahab the harlot did not perish with the disobedient, for she had received the spies in peace.

<sup>32l</sup>What more shall I say? I have not time to tell of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, of David and Samuel and the prophets, <sup>33m</sup>who by faith conquered kingdoms, did what was righteous, obtained the promises; they closed the mouths of lions, <sup>34n</sup>put out raging fires, escaped the devouring sword; out of weakness they were made powerful, became strong in battle, and turned back foreign invaders. <sup>35o</sup>Women received back their dead through resurrection. Some were tortured and would not accept deliverance, in order to obtain a better resurrection. <sup>36 p</sup> Others endured mockery, scourging, even chains and imprisonment. <sup>37q</sup> They were stoned, sawed in two, put to death at sword’s point; they went about in skins of sheep or goats, needy, afflicted, tormented. <sup>38r</sup>The world was not worthy of them.

They wandered about in deserts and on mountains, in caves and in crevices in the earth.

<sup>39</sup>Yet all these, though approved because of their faith, did not receive what had been promised. <sup>40*</sup>God had foreseen something better for us, so that without us they should not be made perfect.

CHAPTER 12

See RG 549

God Our Father. <sup>1*</sup>Therefore, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, let us rid ourselves of every burden and sin that clings to us and persevere in running the race that lies before us <sup>2s</sup>while keeping our eyes fixed on Jesus, the leader and perfecter of faith. For the sake of the joy that lay before him he endured the cross, despising its shame, and has taken his seat at the right of the throne of God. <sup>3</sup> Consider how he endured such opposition from sinners, in order that you may not grow weary and lose heart. <sup>4</sup> In your struggle against sin you have not yet resisted to the point of shedding blood. <sup>5t</sup> You have also forgotten the exhortation addressed to you as sons:

“My son, do not disdain the discipline of the Lord
or lose heart when reproved by him; <sup>6</sup>for whom the Lord loves, he disciplines;
he scourges every son he acknowledges.”

<sup>7u</sup>Endure your trials as “discipline”; God treats you as sons. For what “son” is there whom his father does not discipline? <sup>8</sup>If you are without discipline, in which all have shared, you are not sons but bastards. <sup>9v</sup>Besides this, we have had our earthly fathers to discipline us, and we respected them. Should we not [then] submit all the more to the Father of spirits and live? <sup>10</sup>They disciplined us for a short time as seemed right to them, but he does so for our benefit, in order that we may share his holiness. <sup>11w</sup> At the time, all discipline seems a cause not for joy but for pain, yet later it brings the peaceful fruit of righteousness to those who are trained by it.

<sup>12x</sup>So strengthen your drooping hands and your weak knees. <sup>13y</sup>Make straight paths for your feet, that what is lame may not be dislocated but healed.

Penalties of Disobedience. <sup>14z</sup>Strive for peace with everyone, and for that holiness without which no one will see the Lord. <sup>15a*</sup>See to it that no one be deprived of the grace of God, that no bitter root spring up and cause trouble, through which many may become defiled, <sup>16b</sup>that no one be an immoral or profane person like Esau, who sold his birthright for a single meal. <sup>17c</sup>For you know that later, when he wanted to inherit his father's blessing, he was rejected because he found no opportunity to change his mind, even though he sought the blessing with tears.

<sup>18d*</sup>You have not approached that which could be touched and a blazing fire and gloomy darkness and storm <sup>19e</sup>and a trumpet blast and a voice speaking words such that those who heard begged that no message be further addressed to them, <sup>20f</sup>for they could not bear to hear the command: "If even an animal touches the mountain, it shall be stoned." <sup>21g</sup>Indeed, so fearful was the spectacle that Moses said, "I am terrified and trembling." <sup>22h</sup>No, you have approached Mount Zion and the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and countless angels in festal gathering, <sup>23i*</sup>and the assembly of the firstborn enrolled in heaven, and God the judge of all, and the spirits of the just made perfect, <sup>24j*</sup>and Jesus, the mediator of a new covenant, and the sprinkled blood that speaks more eloquently than that of Abel.

<sup>25k</sup>See that you do not reject the one who speaks. For if they did not escape when they refused the one who warned them on earth, how much more in our case if we turn away from the one who warns from heaven. <sup>26l</sup>His voice shook the earth at that time, but now he has promised, "I will once more shake not only earth but heaven." <sup>27m</sup>That phrase, "once more," points to [the] removal of shaken, created things, so that what is unshaken may remain. <sup>28n</sup>Therefore, we who are receiving the unshakable kingdom should have gratitude, with which we should offer worship pleasing to God in reverence and awe. <sup>29o</sup>For our God is a consuming fire.

CHAPTER 13

See RG 550

<sup>1*</sup>Let mutual love continue. <sup>2p</sup>Do not neglect hospitality, for through it some have unknowingly entertained angels. <sup>3q</sup>Be mindful of prisoners as if sharing their imprisonment, and of the ill-treated as of yourselves, for you also are in the body. <sup>4r</sup>Let marriage be honored among all and the marriage bed be kept undefiled, for God will judge the immoral and adulterers. <sup>5s</sup>Let your life be free from love of money but be content with what you have, for he has said, “I will never forsake you or abandon you.” <sup>6t</sup>Thus we may say with confidence:

“The Lord is my helper,
[and] I will not be afraid.
What can anyone do to me?”

<sup>7</sup>Remember your leaders who spoke the word of God to you. Consider the outcome of their way of life and imitate their faith. <sup>8u</sup>Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever.

<sup>9v*</sup>Do not be carried away by all kinds of strange teaching. It is good to have our hearts strengthened by grace and not by foods, which do not benefit those who live by them. <sup>10*</sup>We have an altar from which those who serve the tabernacle have no right to eat. <sup>11w</sup>The bodies of the animals whose blood the high priest brings into the sanctuary as a sin offering are burned outside the camp. <sup>12x</sup>Therefore, Jesus also suffered outside the gate, to consecrate the people by his own blood. <sup>13</sup>Let us then go to him outside the camp, bearing the reproach that he bore. <sup>14y</sup>For here we have no lasting city, but we seek the one that is to come. <sup>15z</sup>Through him [then] let us continually offer God a sacrifice of praise, that is, the fruit of lips that confess his name. <sup>16a</sup>Do not neglect to do good and to share what you have; God is pleased by sacrifices of that kind.

<sup>17*</sup>Obey your leaders and defer to them, for they keep watch over you and will have to give an account, that they may fulfill their task with joy and not with sorrow, for that would be of no advantage to you.

<sup>18</sup>Pray for us, for we are confident that we have a clear conscience, wishing to act rightly in every respect. <sup>19</sup>I especially ask for your prayers that I may be restored to you very soon.

<sup>20b*</sup>May the God of peace, who brought up from the dead the great shepherd of the sheep by the blood of the eternal covenant, Jesus our Lord, <sup>21</sup>furnish you with all that is good, that you may do his will. May he carry out in you what is pleasing to him through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory forever [and ever]. Amen.

<sup>22</sup>Brothers, I ask you to bear with this message of encouragement, for I have written to you rather briefly. <sup>23c</sup>I must let you know that our brother Timothy has been set free. If he comes soon, I shall see you together with him. <sup>24</sup>Greetings to all your leaders and to all the holy ones. Those from Italy send you greetings. <sup>25d</sup>Grace be with all of you.

1:1–4 The letter opens with an introduction consisting of a reflection on the climax of God's revelation to the human race in his Son. The divine communication was initiated and maintained during Old Testament times in fragmentary and varied ways through the prophets (Heb 1:1), including Abraham, Moses, and all through whom God spoke. But now in these last days (Heb 1:2) the final age, God's revelation of his saving purpose is achieved through a son, i.e., one who is Son, whose role is redeemer and mediator of creation. He was made heir of all things through his death and exaltation to glory, yet he existed before he appeared as man; through him God created the universe. Heb 1:3–4, which may be based upon a liturgical hymn, assimilate the Son to the personified Wisdom of the Old Testament as refulgence of God's glory and imprint of his being (Heb 1:3; cf. Wis 7:26). These same terms are used of the Logos in Philo. The author now turns from the cosmological role of the preexistent Son to the redemptive work of Jesus: he brought about purification from sins and has been exalted to the right hand of God (see Ps 110:1). The once-humiliated and crucified Jesus has been declared God's Son, and this name shows his superiority to the angels. The reason for the author's insistence on that superiority is, among other things, that in some Jewish traditions angels were mediators of the old covenant (see Acts 7:53; Gal 3:19). Finally, Jesus' superiority to the angels emphasizes the superiority of the new covenant to the old because of the heavenly priesthood of Jesus.

1:5–14 Jesus' superiority to the angels is now demonstrated by a series of seven Old Testament texts. Some scholars see in the stages of Jesus' exaltation an order corresponding to that of enthronement ceremonies in the ancient Near East, especially in Egypt, namely, elevation to divine status (Heb 1:5–6); presentation to the angels and proclamation of everlasting lordship (Heb 1:7–12); enthronement and conferral of royal power (Heb 1:13). The citations from the Psalms in Heb 1:5, 13 were traditionally used of Jesus' messianic sonship (cf. Acts 13:33) through his resurrection and exaltation (cf. Acts 2:33–35); those in Heb 1:8, 10–12 are concerned with his divine kingship and his creative function. The central quotation in Heb 1:7 serves to contrast the angels with the Son. The author quotes it according to the Septuagint translation, which is quite different in meaning from that of the Hebrew ("You make the winds your messengers, and flaming fire your ministers"). The angels are only sent to serve... those who are to inherit salvation (Heb 1:14).

1:6 And again, when he leads: the Greek could also be translated "And when he again leads" in reference to the parousia.

1:8–12 O God: the application of the name "God" to the Son derives from the preexistence mentioned in Heb 1:2–3; the psalmist had already used it of the Hebrew king in the court style of the original. See note on Ps 45:7. It is also important for the author's christology that in Heb 1:10–12 an Old Testament passage addressed to God is redirected to Jesus.

2:1–4 The author now makes a transition into exhortation, using an a fortiori argument (as at Heb 7:21–22; 9:13–14; 10:28–29; 12:25). The word announced through angels (Heb 2:2), the Mosaic law, is contrasted with the more powerful word that Christians have received (Heb 2:3–4). Christ's supremacy strengthens Christians against being carried away from their faith.

2:5–18 The humanity and the suffering of Jesus do not constitute a valid reason for relinquishing the Christian faith. Ps 8:6–7 is also applied to Jesus in 1 Cor 15:27; Eph 1:22; and probably 1 Pt 3:22. This christological interpretation, therefore, probably reflects a common early Christian tradition, which may have originated in the expression the son of man (Heb 2:6). The psalm contrasts God's greatness with man's relative insignificance but also stresses the superiority of man to the rest of creation, of which he is lord. Hebrews applies this christologically: Jesus lived a truly human existence, lower than the angels, in the days of his earthly life, particularly in his suffering and death; now, crowned with glory and honor, he is raised above all creation. The author considers all things as already subject to him because of his exaltation (Heb 2:8–9), though we do not see this yet. The reference to Jesus as leader (Heb 2:10) sounds the first note of an important leitmotif in Hebrews: the journey of the people of God to the sabbath rest (Heb 4:9), the heavenly sanctuary, following Jesus, their "forerunner" (Heb 6:20). It was fitting that God should make him perfect through suffering, consecrated by obedient suffering. Because he is perfected as high priest, Jesus is then able to consecrate his people (Heb 2:11); access to God is made possible by each of these two consecrations. If Jesus is able to help human beings, it is because he has become one of us; we are his "brothers." The author then cites three Old Testament texts as proofs of this unity between ourselves and the Son. Ps 22:23 is interpreted so as to make Jesus the singer of this lament, which ends with joyful praise of the Lord in the assembly of "brothers." The other two texts are from Is 8:17, 18. The first of these seems intended to display in Jesus an example of the trust in God that his followers should emulate. The second curiously calls these followers "children"; probably this is to be understood to mean children of Adam, but the point is our solidarity with Jesus. By sharing human nature, including the ban of death, Jesus broke the power of the devil over death (Heb 2:14); the author shares the view of Hellenistic Judaism that death was not intended by God and that it had been introduced into the world by the devil. The fear of death (Heb 2:15) is a religious fear based on the false conception that death marks the end of a person's relations with God (cf. Ps 115:17–18; Is 38:18). Jesus deliberately allied himself with the descendants of Abraham (Heb 2:16) in order to be a merciful and faithful high priest. This is the first appearance of the central theme of Hebrews, Jesus the great high priest expiating the sins of the people (Heb 2:17), as one who experienced the same tests as they (Heb 2:18).

3:1–6 The author now takes up the two qualities of Jesus mentioned in Heb 2:17, but in inverse order: faithfulness (Heb 3:1–4:13) and mercy (Heb 4:14–5:10). Christians are called holy "brothers" because of their common relation to him (Heb 2:11), the apostle, a designation for Jesus used only here in the New Testament (cf. Jn 13:16; 17:3), meaning one sent as God's final word to us (Heb 1:2). He is compared with Moses probably because he is seen as mediator of the new covenant (Heb 9:15) just as Moses was of the old (Heb 9:19–22, including his sacrifice). But when the author of Hebrews speaks of Jesus' sacrifice, he does not consider Moses as the Old Testament antitype, but rather the high priest on the Day of Atonement (Heb 9:6–15). Moses' faithfulness "in [all] his house" refers back to Nm 12:7, on which this section is a midrashic commentary. In Heb 3:3–6, the author does not indicate that he thinks of either Moses or Christ as the founder of the household. His house (Heb 3:2, 5, 6) means God's house, not that of Moses or Christ; in the case of Christ, compare Heb 3:6 with Heb 10:21. The house of Heb 3:6 is the Christian community; the author suggests its continuity with Israel by speaking not of two houses but of only one. Heb 3:6 brings out the reason why Jesus is superior to Moses: the latter was the faithful servant laboring in the house founded by God, but Jesus is God's son, placed over the house.

3:6 The majority of manuscripts add “firm to the end,” but these words are not found in the three earliest and best witnesses and are probably an interpolation derived from Heb 3:14.

3:7–4:13 The author appeals for steadfastness of faith in Jesus, basing his warning on the experience of Israel during the Exodus. In the Old Testament the Exodus had been invoked as a symbol of the return of Israel from the Babylonian exile (Is 42:9; 43:16–21; 51:9–11). In the New Testament the redemption was similarly understood as a new exodus, both in the experience of Jesus himself (Lk 9:31) and in that of his followers (1 Cor 10:1–4). The author cites Ps 95:7–11, a salutary example of hardness of heart, as a warning against the danger of growing weary and giving up the journey. To call God living (Heb 3:12) means that he reveals himself in his works (cf. Jos 3:10; Jer 10:11). The rest (Heb 3:11) into which Israel was to enter was only a foreshadowing of that rest to which Christians are called. They are to remember the example of Israel’s revolt in the desert that cost a whole generation the loss of the promised land (Heb 3:15–19; cf. Nm 14:20–29). In Heb 4:1–11, the symbol of rest is seen in deeper dimension: because the promise to the ancient Hebrews foreshadowed that given to Christians, it is good news; and because the promised land was the place of rest that God provided for his people, it was a share in his own rest, which he enjoyed after he had finished his creative work (Heb 3:3–4; cf. Gn 2:2). The author attempts to read this meaning of God’s rest into Ps 95:7–11 (Heb 3:6–9). The Greek form of the name of Joshua, who led Israel into the promised land, is Jesus (Heb 3:8). The author plays upon the name but stresses the superiority of Jesus, who leads his followers into heavenly rest. Heb 3:12, 13 are meant as a continuation of the warning, for the word of God brings judgment as well as salvation. Some would capitalize the word of God and see it as a personal title of Jesus, comparable to that of Jn 1:1–18.

4:14–16 These verses, which return to the theme first sounded in Heb 2:16–3:1, serve as an introduction to the section that follows. The author here alone calls Jesus a great high priest (Heb 4:14), a designation used by Philo for the Logos; perhaps he does so in order to emphasize Jesus’ superiority over the Jewish high priest. He has been tested in every way, yet without sin (Heb 4:15); this indicates an acquaintance with the tradition of Jesus’ temptations, not only at the beginning (as in Mk 1:13) but throughout his public life (cf. Lk 22:28). Although the reign of the exalted Jesus is a theme that occurs elsewhere in Hebrews, and Jesus’ throne is mentioned in Heb 1:8, the throne of grace (Heb 4:16) refers to the throne of God. The similarity of Heb 4:16 to Heb 10:19–22 indicates that the author is thinking of our confident access to God, made possible by the priestly work of Jesus.

5:1–10 The true humanity of Jesus (see note on Heb 2:5–18) makes him a more rather than a less effective high priest to the Christian community. In Old Testament tradition, the high priest was identified with the people, guilty of personal sin just as they were (Heb 5:1–3). Even so, the office was of divine appointment (Heb 5:4), as was also the case with the sinless Christ (Heb 5:5). For Heb 5:6, see note on Ps 110:4. Although Jesus was Son of God, he was destined as a human being to learn obedience by accepting the suffering he had to endure (Heb 5:8). Because of his perfection through this experience of human suffering, he is the cause of salvation for all (Heb 5:9), a high priest according to the order of Melchizedek (Heb 5:10; cf. Heb 5:6 and Heb 7:3).

5:1 To offer gifts and sacrifices for sins: the author is thinking principally of the Day of Atonement rite, as is clear from Heb 9:7. This ritual was celebrated to atone for “all the sins of the Israelites” (Lv 16:34).

5:2 Deal patiently: the Greek word metriopathein occurs only here in the Bible; this term was used by the Stoics to designate the golden mean between excess and defect of passion. Here it means rather the ability to sympathize.

5:6–8 The author of Hebrews is the only New Testament writer to cite Ps 110:4, here and in Heb 7:17, 21, to show that Jesus has been called by God to his role as priest. Heb 5:7–8 deal with his ability to sympathize with sinners, because of his own experience of the trials and weakness of human nature, especially fear of death. In his present exalted state, weakness is foreign to him, but he understands what we suffer because of his previous earthly experience.

5:7 He offered prayers ... to the one who was able to save him from death: at Gethsemane (cf. Mk 14:35), though some see a broader reference (see note on Jn 12:27).

5:8 Son though he was: two different though not incompatible views of Jesus' sonship coexist in Hebrews, one associating it with his exaltation, the other with his preexistence. The former view is the older one (cf. Rom 1:4).

5:11–6:20 The central section of Hebrews (5:11–10:39) opens with a reprimand and an appeal. Those to whom the author directs his teaching about Jesus' priesthood, which is difficult to explain, have become sluggish in hearing and forgetful of even the basic elements (Heb 5:12). But rather than treating of basic teachings, the author apparently believes that the challenge of more advanced ones may shake them out of their inertia (therefore, Heb 6:1). The six examples of basic teaching in Heb 6:1–3 are probably derived from a traditional catechetical list. No effort is made to address apostates, for their very hostility to the Christian message cuts them off completely from Christ (Heb 6:4–8). This harsh statement seems to rule out repentance after apostasy, but perhaps the author deliberately uses hyperbole in order to stress the seriousness of abandoning Christ. With Heb 6:9 a milder tone is introduced, and the criticism of the community (Heb 6:1–3, 9) is now balanced by an expression of confidence that its members are living truly Christian lives, and that God will justly reward their efforts (Heb 6:10). The author is concerned especially about their persevering (Heb 6:11–12), citing in this regard achievement of Abraham, who relied on God's promise and on God's oath (Heb 6:13–18; cf. Gn 22:16), and proposes to them as a firm anchor of Christian hope the high priesthood of Christ, who is now living with God (Heb 6:19–20).

6:2 Instruction about baptisms: not simply about Christian baptism but about the difference between it and similar Jewish rites, such as proselyte baptism, John's baptism, and the washings of the Qumran sectaries. Laying on of hands: in Acts 8:17; 19:6 this rite effects the infusion of the holy Spirit; in Acts 6:6; 13:3; 1 Tm 4:14; 5:22; 2 Tm 1:6 it is a means of conferring some ministry or mission in the early Christian community.

6:4 Enlightened and tasted the heavenly gift: this may refer to baptism and the Eucharist, respectively, but more probably means the neophytes' enlightenment by faith and their experience of salvation.

6:5 Tasted the good word of God and the powers of the age to come: the proclamation of the word of God was accompanied by signs of the Spirit's power (1 Thes 1:5; 1 Cor 2:4).

6:6 They are recrucifying the Son of God for themselves: a colorful description of the malice of apostasy, which is portrayed as again crucifying and deriding the Son of God.

6:12 Imitators of those... inheriting the promises: the author urges the addressees to imitate the faith of the holy people of the Old Testament, who now possess the promised goods of which they lived in hope. This theme will be treated fully in Heb 6:11.

6:13 He swore by himself: God's promise to Abraham, which he confirmed by an oath ("I swear by myself," Gn 22:16) was the basis for the hope of all Abraham's descendants.

6:15 He obtained the promise: this probably refers not to Abraham's temporary possession of the land but to the eschatological blessings that Abraham and the other patriarchs have now come to possess.

6:18 Two immutable things: the promise and the oath, both made by God.

6:19 Anchor... into the interior behind the veil: a mixed metaphor. The Holy of Holies, beyond the veil that separates it from the Holy Place (Ex 26:31–33), is seen as the earthly counterpart of the heavenly abode of God. This theme will be developed in Heb 9.

7:1–3 Recalling the meeting between Melchizedek and Abraham described in Gn 14:17–20, the author enhances the significance of this priest by providing the popular etymological meaning of his name and that of the city over which he ruled (Heb 7:2). Since Genesis gives no information on the parentage or the death of Melchizedek, he is seen here as a type of Christ, representing a priesthood that is unique and eternal (Heb 7:3).

7:1 The author here assumes that Melchizedek was a priest of the God of Israel (cf. Gn 14:22 and the note there).

7:2 In Gn 14, the Hebrew text does not state explicitly who gave tithes to whom. The author of Hebrews supplies Abraham as the subject, according to a contemporary interpretation of the passage. This supports the argument of the midrash and makes it possible to see in Melchizedek a type of Jesus. The messianic blessings of righteousness and peace are foreshadowed in the names “Melchizedek” and “Salem.”

7:3 Without father, mother, or ancestry, without beginning of days or end of life: this is perhaps a quotation from a hymn about Melchizedek. The rabbis maintained that anything not mentioned in the Torah does not exist. Consequently, since the Old Testament nowhere mentions Melchizedek’s ancestry, birth, or death, the conclusion can be drawn that he remains... forever.

7:4–10 The tithe that Abraham gave to Melchizedek (Heb 7:4), a practice later followed by the levitical priesthood (Heb 7:5), was a gift (Heb 7:6) acknowledging a certain superiority in Melchizedek, the foreign priest (Heb 7:7). This is further indicated by the fact that the institution of the levitical priesthood was sustained by hereditary succession in the tribe of Levi, whereas the absence of any mention of Melchizedek’s death in Genesis implies that his personal priesthood is permanent (Heb 7:8). The levitical priesthood itself, through Abraham, its ancestor, paid tithes to Melchizedek, thus acknowledging the superiority of his priesthood over its own (Heb 7:9–10).

7:7 A lesser person is blessed by a greater: though this sounds like a principle, there are some examples in the Old Testament that do not support it (cf. 2 Sm 14:22; Jb 31:20). The author may intend it as a statement of a liturgical rule.

7:9 Levi: for the author this name designates not only the son of Jacob mentioned in Genesis but the priestly tribe that was thought to be descended from him.

7:11–14 The levitical priesthood was not typified by the priesthood of Melchizedek, for Ps 110:4 speaks of a priesthood of a new order, the order of Melchizedek, to arise in messianic times (Heb 7:11). Since the levitical priesthood served the Mosaic law, a new priesthood (Heb 7:12) would not come into being without a change in the law itself. Thus Jesus was not associated with the Old Testament priesthood, for he was a descendant of the tribe of Judah, which had never exercised the priesthood (Heb 7:13–14).

7:13 He of whom these things are said: Jesus, the priest “according to the order of Melchizedek.” According to the author’s interpretation, Ps 110 spoke prophetically of Jesus.

7:14 Judah: the author accepts the early Christian tradition that Jesus was descended from the family of David (cf. Mt 1:1–2, 16, 20; Lk 1:27; 2:4; Rom 1:3). The Qumran community expected two Messiahs, one descended from Aaron and one from David; Hebrews shows no awareness of this view or at least does not accept it. Our author’s view is not attested in contemporaneous Judaism.

7:15–19 Jesus does not exercise a priesthood through family lineage but through his immortal existence (Heb 7:15–16), fulfilling Ps 110:4 (Heb 7:17; cf. Heb 7:3). Thus he abolishes forever both the levitical priesthood and the law it serves, because neither could effectively sanctify people (Heb 7:18) by leading them into direct communication with God (Heb 7:19).

7:16 A life that cannot be destroyed: the life to which Jesus has attained by virtue of his resurrection; it is his exaltation rather than his divine nature that makes him priest. The Old Testament speaks of the Aaronic priesthood as eternal (see Ex 40:15); our author does not explicitly consider this possible objection to his argument but implicitly refutes it in Heb 7:23–24.

7:19 A better hope: this hope depends upon the sacrifice of the Son of God; through it we “approach the throne of grace” (Heb 4:16); cf. Heb 6:19, 20.

7:20–25 As was the case with the promise to Abraham (Heb 6:13), though not with the levitical priesthood, the eternal priesthood of the order of Melchizedek was confirmed by God’s oath (Heb 7:20–21); cf. Ps 110:4. Thus Jesus becomes the guarantee of a permanent covenant (Heb 7:22) that does not require a succession of priests as did the levitical priesthood (Heb 7:23) because his high priesthood is eternal and unchangeable (Heb 7:24). Consequently, Jesus is able to save all who draw near to God through him since he is their ever-living intercessor (Heb 7:25).

7:20 An oath: God's oath in Ps 110:4.

7:22 An [even] better covenant: better than the Mosaic covenant because it will be eternal, like the priesthood of Jesus upon which it is based. Heb 7:12 argued that a change of priesthood involves a change of law; since "law" and "covenant" are used correlatively, a new covenant is likewise instituted.

7:25 To make intercession: the intercession of the exalted Jesus, not the sequel to his completed sacrifice but its eternal presence in heaven; cf. Rom 8:34.

7:26 This verse with its list of attributes is reminiscent of Heb 7:3 and is perhaps a hymnic counterpart to it, contrasting the exalted Jesus with Melchizedek.

7:26–28 Jesus is precisely the high priest whom the human race requires, holy and sinless, installed far above humanity (Heb 7:26); one having no need to offer sacrifice daily for sins but making a single offering of himself (Heb 7:27) once for all. The law could only appoint high priests with human limitations, but the fulfillment of God's oath regarding the priesthood of Melchizedek (Ps 110:4) makes the Son of God the perfect priest forever (Heb 7:28).

7:27 Such daily sacrifice is nowhere mentioned in the Mosaic law; only on the Day of Atonement is it prescribed that the high priest must offer sacrifice... for his own sins and then for those of the people (Lv 16:11–19). Once for all: this translates the Greek words ephapax/hapax that occur eleven times in Hebrews.

8:1–6 The Christian community has in Jesus the kind of high priest described in Heb 7:26–28. In virtue of his ascension Jesus has taken his place at God's right hand in accordance with Ps 110:1 (Heb 8:1), where he presides over the heavenly sanctuary established by God himself (Heb 8:2). Like every high priest, he has his offering to make (Heb 8:3; cf. Heb 9:12, 14), but it differs from that of the levitical priesthood in which he had no share (Heb 8:4) and which was in any case but a shadowy reflection of the true offering in the heavenly sanctuary (Heb 8:5). But Jesus' ministry in the heavenly sanctuary is that of mediator of a superior covenant that accomplishes what it signifies (Heb 8:6).

8:2 The sanctuary: the Greek term could also mean "holy things" but bears the meaning "sanctuary" elsewhere in Hebrews (Heb 9:8, 12, 24, 25; 10:19; 13:11). The true tabernacle: the heavenly tabernacle that the Lord... set up is contrasted with the earthly tabernacle that Moses set up in the desert. True means "real" in contradistinction to a mere "copy and shadow" (Heb 8:5); compare the Johannine usage (e.g., Jn 1:9; 6:32; 15:1). The idea that the earthly sanctuary is a reflection of a heavenly model may be based upon Ex 25:9, but probably also derives from the Platonic concept of a real world of which our observable world is merely a shadow.

8:7–13 Since the first covenant was deficient in accomplishing what it signified, it had to be replaced (Heb 8:7), as Jeremiah (Jer 31:31–34) had prophesied (Heb 8:8–12). Even in the time of Jeremiah, the first covenant was antiquated (Heb 8:13). In Heb 7:22–24, the superiority of the new covenant was seen in the permanence of its priesthood; here the superiority is based on better promises, made explicit in the citation of Jer 31:31–34 (LXX: 38), namely, in the immediacy of the people's knowledge of God (Heb 8:11) and in the forgiveness of sin (Heb 8:12).

8:8–12 In citing Jeremiah the author follows the Septuagint; some apparent departures from it may be the result of a different Septuagintal text rather than changes deliberately introduced.

8:13 Close to disappearing: from the prophet's perspective, not that of the author of Hebrews.

9:1–10 The regulations for worship under the old covenant permitted all the priests to enter the Holy Place (Heb 2:6), but only the high priest to enter the Holy of Holies and then only once a year (Heb 9:3–5, 7). The description of the sanctuary and its furnishings is taken essentially from Ex 25–26. This exclusion of the people from the Holy of Holies signified that they were not allowed to stand in God's presence (Heb 9:8) because their offerings and sacrifices, which were merely symbols of their need of spiritual renewal (Heb 9:10), could not obtain forgiveness of sins (Heb 9:9).

9:2 The outer one: the author speaks of the outer tabernacle (Heb 9:6) and the inner one (Heb 9:7) rather than of one Mosaic tabernacle divided into two parts or sections.

9:3 The second veil: what is meant is the veil that divided the Holy Place from the Holy of Holies. It is here called the second, because there was another veil at the entrance to the Holy Place, or "outer tabernacle" (Ex 26:36).

9:4 The gold altar of incense: Ex 30:6 locates this altar in the Holy Place, i.e., the first tabernacle, rather than in the Holy of Holies. Neither is there any Old Testament support for the assertion that the jar of manna and the staff of Aaron were in the ark of the covenant. For the tablets of the covenant, see Ex 25:16.

9:5 The place of expiation: the gold "mercy seat" (Greek hilasterion, as in Rom 3:25), where the blood of the sacrificial animals was sprinkled on the Day of Atonement (Lv 16:14–15). This rite achieved "expiation" or atonement for the sins of the preceding year.

9:6 In performing their service: the priestly services that had to be performed regularly in the Holy Place or outer tabernacle included burning incense on the incense altar twice each day (Ex 30:7), replacing the loaves on the table of the bread of offering once each week (Lv 24:8), and constantly caring for the lamps on the lampstand (Ex 27:21).

9:7 Not without blood: blood was essential to Old Testament sacrifice because it was believed that life was located in the blood. Hence blood was especially sacred, and its outpouring functioned as a meaningful symbol of cleansing from sin and reconciliation with God. Unlike Hebrews, the Old Testament never says that the blood is "offered." The author is perhaps retrojecting into his description of Mosaic ritual a concept that belongs to the New Testament antitype, as Paul does when he speaks of the Israelites' passage through the sea as a "baptism" (1 Cor 10:2).

9:9 The present time: this expression is equivalent to the "present age," used in contradistinction to the "age to come."

9:11–14 Christ, the high priest of the spiritual blessings foreshadowed in the Old Testament sanctuary, has actually entered the true sanctuary of heaven that is not of human making (Heb 9:11). His place there is permanent, and his offering is his own blood that won eternal redemption (Heb 9:12). If the sacrifice of animals could bestow legal purification (Heb 9:13), how much more effective is the blood of the sinless, divine Christ who spontaneously offered himself to purge the human race of sin and render it fit for the service of God (Heb 9:14).

9:11 The good things that have come to be: the majority of later manuscripts here read "the good things to come"; cf. Heb 10:1.

9:13 A heifer's ashes: ashes from a red heifer that had been burned were mixed with water and used for the cleansing of those who had become ritually defiled by touching a corpse; see Nm 19:9, 14–21.

9:14 Through the eternal spirit: this expression does not refer either to the holy Spirit or to the divine nature of Jesus but to the life of the risen Christ, "a life that cannot be destroyed" (Heb 7:16).

9:15–22 Jesus' role as mediator of the new covenant is based upon his sacrificial death (cf. Heb 8:6). His death has effected deliverance from transgressions, i.e., deliverance from sins committed under the old covenant, which the Mosaic sacrifices were incapable of effacing. Until this happened, the eternal inheritance promised by God could not be obtained (Heb 9:15). This effect of his work follows the human pattern by which a last will and testament becomes effective only with the death of the testator (Heb 9:16–17). The Mosaic covenant was also associated with death, for Moses made use of blood to seal the pact between God and the people (Heb 9:18–21). In Old Testament tradition, guilt could normally not be remitted without the use of blood (Heb 9:22; cf. Lv 17:11).

9:16–17 A will... death of the testator: the same Greek word diathēkē, meaning "covenant" in Heb 9:15, 18, is used here with the meaning will. The new covenant, unlike the old, is at the same time a will that requires the death of the testator. Jesus as eternal Son is the one who established the new covenant together with his Father, author of both covenants; at the same time he is the testator whose death puts his will into effect.

9:19–20 A number of details here are different from the description of this covenant rite in Ex 24:5–8. Exodus mentions only calves (“young bulls,” NAB), not goats (but this addition in Hebrews is of doubtful authenticity), says nothing of the use of water and crimson wool and hyssop (these features probably came from a different rite; cf. Lv 14:3–7; Nm 19:6–18), and describes Moses as splashing blood on the altar, whereas Hebrews says he sprinkled it on the book (but both book and altar are meant to symbolize the agreement of God). The words of Moses are also slightly different from those in Exodus and are closer to the words of Jesus at the Last Supper in Mk 14:24 //Mt 26:28.

9:21 According to Exodus, the tabernacle did not yet exist at the time of the covenant rite. Moreover, nothing is said of sprinkling it with blood at its subsequent dedication (Ex 40:9–11).

9:22 Without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness: in fact, ancient Israel did envisage other means of obtaining forgiveness; the Old Testament mentions contrition of heart (Ps 51:17), fasting (Jl 2:12), and almsgiving (Sir 3:29). The author is limiting his horizon to the sacrificial cult, which did always involve the shedding of blood for its expiatory and unitive value.

9:23–28 Since the blood of animals became a cleansing symbol among Old Testament prefigurements, it was necessary that the realities foreshadowed be brought into being by a shedding of blood that was infinitely more effective by reason of its worth (Heb 9:23). Christ did not simply prefigure the heavenly realities (Heb 9:24) by performing an annual sacrifice with a blood not his own (Heb 9:25); he offered the single sacrifice of himself as the final annulment of sin (Heb 9:26). Just as death is the unrepeatable act that ends a person’s life, so Christ’s offering of himself for all is the unrepeatable sacrifice that has once for all achieved redemption (Heb 9:27–28).

9:26 At the end of the ages: the use of expressions such as this shows that the author of Hebrews, despite his interest in the Platonic concept of an eternal world above superior to temporal reality here below, nevertheless still clings to the Jewish Christian eschatology with its sequence of “the present age” and “the age to come.”

9:28 To take away the sins of many: the reference is to Is 53:12. Since the Greek verb anapherō can mean both “to take away” and “to bear,” the author no doubt intended to play upon both senses: Jesus took away sin by bearing it himself. See the similar wordplay in Jn 1:29. Many is used in the Semitic meaning of “all” in the inclusive sense, as in Mk 14:24. To those who eagerly await him: Jesus will appear a second time at the parousia, as the high priest reappeared on the Day of Atonement, emerging from the Holy of Holies, which he had entered to take away sin. This dramatic scene is described in Sir 50:5–11.

10:1–10 Christian faith now realizes that the Old Testament sacrifices did not effect the spiritual benefits to come but only prefigured them (Heb 10:1). For if the sacrifices had actually effected the forgiveness of sin, there would have been no reason for their constant repetition (Heb 10:2). They were rather a continual reminder of the people’s sins (Heb 10:3). It is not reasonable to suppose that human sins could be removed by the blood of animal sacrifices (Heb 10:4). Christ, therefore, is here shown to understand his mission in terms of Ps 40:6–8, cited according to the Septuagint (Heb 10:5–7). Jesus acknowledged that the Old Testament sacrifices did not remit the sins of the people and so, perceiving the will of God, offered his own body for this purpose (Heb 10:8–10).

10:1 A shadow of the good things to come: the term shadow was used in Heb 8:5 to signify the earthly counterpart of the Platonic heavenly reality. But here it means a pre-figuration of what is to come in Christ, as it is used in the Pauline literature; cf. Col 2:17.

10:5–7 A passage from Ps 40:7–9 is placed in the mouth of the Son at his incarnation. As usual, the author follows the Septuagint text. There is a notable difference in Heb 10:5 (Ps 40:6), where the Masoretic text reads “ears you have dug for me” (“ears open to obedience you gave me,” NAB), but most Septuagint manuscripts have “a body you prepared for me,” a reading obviously more suited to the interpretation of Hebrews.

10:8 Sacrifices and offerings, holocausts and sin offerings: these four terms taken from the preceding passage of Ps 40 (with the first two changed to plural forms) are probably intended as equivalents to the four principal types of Old Testament sacrifices: peace offerings (Lv 3, here called sacrifices); cereal offerings (Lv 2, here called offerings); holocausts (Lv 1); and sin offerings (Lv 4–5). This last category includes the guilt offerings of Lv 5:14–19.

10:11–18 Whereas the levitical priesthood offered daily sacrifices that were ineffectual in remitting sin (Heb 10:11), Jesus offered a single sacrifice that won him a permanent place at God’s right hand. There he has only to await the final outcome of his work (Heb 10:12–13; cf. Ps 110:1). Thus he has brought into being in his own person the new covenant prophesied by Jeremiah (Jer 31:33–34) that has rendered meaningless all other offerings for sin (Heb 10:14–18).

10:13 Until his enemies are made his footstool: Ps 110:1 is again used; the reference here is to the period of time between the enthronement of Jesus and his second coming. The identity of the enemies is not specified; cf. 1 Cor 15:25–27.

10:15–17 The testimony of the scriptures is now invoked to support what has just preceded. The passage cited is a portion of the new covenant prophecy of Jer 31:31–34, which the author previously used in Heb 8:8–12.

10:17 He also says: these words are not in the Greek text, which has only kai, “also,” but the expression “after saying” in Heb 10:15 seems to require such a phrase to divide the Jeremiah text into two sayings. Others understand “the Lord says” of Heb 10:16 (here rendered says the Lord) as outside the quotation and consider Heb 10:16b as part of the second saying. Two ancient versions and a number of minuscules introduce the words “then he said” or a similar expression at the beginning of Heb 10:17.

10:19–39 Practical consequences from these reflections on the priesthood and the sacrifice of Christ should make it clear that Christians may now have direct and confident access God through the person of Jesus (Heb 10:19–20), who rules God’s house as high priest (Heb 10:21). They should approach God with sincerity and faith, in the knowledge that through baptism their sins have been remitted (Heb 10:22), reminding themselves of the hope they expressed in Christ at that event (Heb 10:23). They are to encourage one another to Christian love and activity (Heb 10:24), not refusing, no matter what the reason, to participate in the community’s assembly, especially in view of the parousia (Heb 10:25; cf. 1 Thes 4:13–18). If refusal to participate in the assembly indicates rejection of Christ, no sacrifice exists to obtain forgiveness for so great a sin (Heb 10:26); only the dreadful judgment of God remains (Heb 10:27). For if violation of the Mosaic law could be punished by death, how much worse will be the punishment of those who have turned their backs on Christ by despising his sacrifice and disregarding the gifts of the holy Spirit (Heb 10:28–29). Judgment belongs to the Lord, and he enacts it by his living presence (Heb 10:30–31). There was a time when the spirit of their community caused them to welcome and share their sufferings (Heb 10:32–34). To revitalize that spirit is to share in the courage of the Old Testament prophets (cf. Is 26:20; Heb 2:3–4), the kind of courage that must distinguish the faith of the Christian (Heb 10:35–39).

10:20 Through the veil, that is, his flesh: the term flesh is used pejoratively. As the temple veil kept people from entering the Holy of Holies (it was rent at Christ’s death, Mk 15:38), so the flesh of Jesus constituted an obstacle to approaching God.

10:21 The house of God: this refers back to Heb 3:6, “we are his house.”

10:22 With our hearts sprinkled clean from an evil conscience: as in Heb 9:13 (see note there), the sprinkling motif refers to the Mosaic rite of cleansing from ritual impurity. This could produce only an external purification, whereas sprinkling with the blood of Christ (Heb 9:14) cleanses the conscience. Washed in pure water: baptism is elsewhere referred to as a washing; cf. 1 Cor 6:11; Eph 5:26.

10:25 Our assembly: the liturgical assembly of the Christian community, probably for the celebration of the Eucharist. The day: this designation for the parousia also occurs in the Pauline letters, e.g., Rom 2:16; 1 Cor 3:13; 1 Thes 5:2.

10:26 If we sin deliberately: verse 29 indicates that the author is here thinking of apostasy; cf. Heb 3:12; 6:4–8.

10:28 Rejects the law of Moses: evidently not any sin against the law, but idolatry. Dt 17:2–7 prescribed capital punishment for idolaters who were convicted on the testimony of two or three witnesses.

10:32 After you had been enlightened: “enlightenment” is an ancient metaphor for baptism (cf. Eph 5:14; Jn 9:11), but see Heb 6:4 and the note there.

10:37–38 In support of his argument, the author uses Hb 2:3–4 in a wording almost identical with the text of the Codex Alexandrinus of the Septuagint but with the first and second lines of Heb 10:4 inverted. He introduces it with a few words from Is 26:20: after just a brief moment. Note the Pauline usage of Hb 2:4 in Rom 1:17; Gal 3:11.

11:1–40 This chapter draws upon the people and events of the Old Testament to paint an inspiring portrait of religious faith, firm and unyielding in the face of any obstacles that confront it. These pages rank among the most eloquent and lofty to be found in the Bible. They expand the theme announced in Heb 6:12, to which the author now returns (Heb 10:39). The material of this chapter is developed chronologically. Heb 11:3–7 draw upon the first nine chapters of Genesis (Gn 1–9); Heb 11:8–22, upon the period of the patriarchs; Heb 11:23–31, upon the time of Moses; Heb 11:32–38, upon the history of the judges, the prophets, and the Maccabean martyrs. The author gives the most extensive description of faith provided in the New Testament, though his interest does not lie in a technical, theological definition. In view of the needs of his audience he describes what authentic faith does, not what it is in itself. Through faith God guarantees the blessings to be hoped for from him, providing evidence in the gift of faith that what he promises will eventually come to pass (Heb 11:1). Because they accepted in faith God’s guarantee of the future, the biblical personages discussed in Heb 11:3–38 were themselves commended by God (Heb 11:2). Christians have even greater reason to remain firm in faith since they, unlike the Old Testament men and women of faith, have perceived the beginning of God’s fulfillment of his messianic promises (Heb 11:39–40).

11:1 Faith is the realization... evidence: the author is not attempting a precise definition. There is dispute about the meaning of the Greek words hypostasis and elenchos, here translated realization and evidence, respectively. Hypostasis usually means “substance,” “being” (as translated in Heb 1:3), or “reality” (as translated in Heb 3:14); here it connotes something more subjective, and so realization has been chosen rather than “assurance” (RSV). Elenchos, usually “proof,” is used here in an objective sense and so translated evidence rather than the transferred sense of “(inner) conviction” (RSV).

11:3 By faith... God: this verse does not speak of the faith of the Old Testament men and women but is in the first person plural. Hence it seems out of place in the sequence of thought.

11:4 The “Praise of the Ancestors” in Sir 44:1–50:21 gives a similar list of heroes. The Cain and Abel narrative in Gn 4:1–16 does not mention Abel’s faith. It says, however, that God “looked with favor on Abel and his offering” (Gn 4:4); in view of Heb 11:6 the author probably understood God’s favor to have been activated by Abel’s faith. Though dead, he still speaks: possibly because his blood “cries out to me from the soil” (Gn 4:10), but more probably a way of saying that the repeated story of Abel provides ongoing witness to faith.

11:6 One must believe not only that God exists but that he is concerned about human conduct; the Old Testament defines folly as the denial of this truth; cf. Ps 52:2.

11:19 As a symbol: Isaac’s “return from death” is seen as a symbol of Christ’s resurrection. Others understand the words en parabolē to mean “in figure,” i.e., the word dead is used figuratively of Isaac, since he did not really die. But in the one other place that parabolē occurs in Hebrews, it means symbol (Heb 9:9).

11:20–22 Each of these three patriarchs, Isaac, Jacob, and Joseph, had faith in the future fulfillment of God's promise and renewed this faith when near death.

11:24–27 The reason given for Moses' departure from Egypt differs from the account in Ex 2:11–15. The author also gives a christological interpretation of his decision to share the trials of his people.

11:40 So that without us they should not be made perfect: the heroes of the Old Testament obtained their recompense only after the saving work of Christ had been accomplished. Thus they already enjoy what Christians who are still struggling do not yet possess in its fullness.

12:1–13 Christian life is to be inspired not only by the Old Testament men and women of faith (Heb 12:1) but above all by Jesus. As the architect of Christian faith, he had himself to endure the cross before receiving the glory of his triumph (Heb 12:2). Reflection on his sufferings should give his followers courage to continue the struggle, if necessary even to the shedding of blood (Heb 12:3–4). Christians should regard their own sufferings as the affectionate correction of the Lord, who loves them as a father loves his children.

12:1 That clings to us: the meaning is uncertain, since the Greek word euperistatos, translated cling, occurs only here. The papyrus P<sup>46</sup> and one minuscule read euperispastos, "easily distracting," which also makes good sense.

12:15–17 Esau serves as an example in two ways: his profane attitude illustrates the danger of apostasy, and his inability to secure a blessing afterward illustrates the impossibility of repenting after falling away (see Heb 6:4–6).

12:18–29 As a final appeal for adherence to Christian teaching, the two covenants, of Moses and of Christ, are compared. The Mosaic covenant, the author argues, is shown to have originated in fear of God and threats of divine punishment (Heb 12:18–21). The covenant in Christ gives us direct access to God (Heb 12:22), makes us members of the Christian community, God's children, a sanctified people (Heb 12:23), who have Jesus as mediator to speak for us (Heb 12:24). Not to heed the voice of the risen Christ is a graver sin than the rejection of the word of Moses (Heb 12:25–26). Though Christians fall away, God's kingdom in Christ will remain and his justice will punish those guilty of deserting it (Heb 12:28–29).

12:18 This remarkably beautiful passage contrasts two great assemblies of people: that of the Israelites gathered at Mount Sinai for the sealing of the old covenant and the promulgation of the Mosaic law, and that of the followers of Jesus gathered at Mount Zion, the heavenly Jerusalem, the assembly of the new covenant. This latter scene, marked by the presence of countless angels and of Jesus with his redeeming blood, is reminiscent of the celestial liturgies of the Book of Revelation.

12:23 The assembly of the firstborn enrolled in heaven: this expression may refer to the angels of Heb 12:22, or to the heroes of the Old Testament (see Heb 11), or to the entire assembly of the new covenant.

12:24 Speaks more eloquently: the blood of Abel, the first human blood to be shed, is contrasted with that of Jesus. Abel's blood cried out from the earth for vengeance, but the blood of Jesus has opened the way for everyone, providing cleansing and access to God (Heb 10:19).

13:1–16 After recommendations on social and moral matters (Heb 13:1–6), the letter turns to doctrinal issues. The fact that the original leaders are dead should not cause the recipients of this letter to lose their faith (Heb 13:7), for Christ still lives and he remains always the same (Heb 13:8). They must not rely for their personal sanctification on regulations concerning foods (Heb 13:9), nor should they entertain the notion that Judaism and Christianity can be intermingled (Heb 13:10; cf. notes on Gal 2:11–14; 2:15–21). As Jesus died separated from his own people, so must the Christian community remain apart from the religious doctrines of Judaism (Heb 13:11–14). Christ must be the heart and center of the community (Heb 13:15–16).

13:9 Strange teaching: this doctrine about foods probably refers to the Jewish food laws; in view of Heb 13:10, however, the author may be thinking of the Mosaic sacrificial banquets.

13:10 We have an altar: this does not refer to the Eucharist, which is never clearly mentioned in Hebrews, but to the sacrifice of Christ.

13:17–25 Recommending obedience to the leaders of the community, the author asks for prayers (Heb 13:17–19). The letter concludes with a blessing (Heb 13:20–21), a final request for the acceptance of its message (Heb 13:22), information regarding Timothy (Heb 13:23), and general greetings (Heb 13:24–25).

13:20–21 These verses constitute one of the most beautiful blessings in the New Testament. The resurrection of Jesus is presupposed throughout Hebrews, since it is included in the author's frequently expressed idea of his exaltation, but this is the only place where it is explicitly mentioned.

THE CATHOLIC LETTERS

See RG 550–69

In addition to the thirteen letters attributed to Paul and the Letter to the Hebrews, the New Testament contains seven other letters. Three of these are attributed to John, two to Peter, and one each to James and Jude, all personages of the apostolic age. The term “catholic letter” first appears, with reference only to 1 John, in the writings of Apollonius of Ephesus, a second-century apologist, known only from a citation in Eusebius’s Ecclesiastical History. Eusebius himself (A.D. 260–340) used the term to refer to all seven letters.

The reason for the term “catholic,” which means “universal,” was the perception that these letters, unlike those of Paul, which were directed to a particular local church, were apparently addressed more generally to the universal church. This designation is not entirely accurate, however. On the one hand, Hebrews has no specifically identified addressees, and originally this was probably true of Ephesians as well. On the other hand, 3 John is addressed to a named individual, 2 John to a specific, though unnamed, community, and 1 Peter to a number of churches that are specified as being located in Asia Minor.

While all seven of these writings begin with an epistolary formula, several of them do not appear to be real letters in the modern sense of the term. In the ancient world it was not unusual to cast an exhortation in the form of a letter for literary effect, a phenomenon comparable to the “open letter” that is sometimes used today.

With the exception of 1 Peter and 1 John, the ancient church showed reluctance to include the catholic letters in the New Testament canon. The reason for this was widespread doubt whether they had actually been written by the apostolic figures to whom they are attributed. The early Christians saw the New Testament as the depository of apostolic faith; therefore, they wished to include only the testimony of apostles. Today we distinguish more clearly between the authorship of a work and its canonicity: even though written by other, later witnesses than those whose names they bear, these writings nevertheless testify to the apostolic faith and constitute canonical scripture. By the late fourth or early fifth centuries, most objections had been overcome in both the Greek and Latin churches (though not in the Syriac), and all seven of the catholic letters have since been acknowledged as canonical.

The Letter of James

1 2 3 4 5

See RG 550–55

The person to whom this letter is ascribed can scarcely be one of the two members of the Twelve who bore the name James (see Mt 10:2–3; Mk 3:17–18; Lk 6:14–15), for he is not identified as an apostle but only as “slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ” (Jas 1:1). This designation most probably refers to the third New Testament personage named James, a relative of Jesus who is usually called “brother of the Lord” (see Mt 13:55; Mk 6:3). He was the leader of the Jewish Christian community in Jerusalem whom Paul acknowledged as one of the “pillars” (Gal 2:9). In Acts he appears as the authorized spokesman for the Jewish Christian position in the early Church (Acts 12:17; 15:13–21). According to the Jewish historian Josephus (Antiquities 20: 201–203), he was stoned to death by the Jews under the high priest Ananus II in A.D. 62.

The letter is addressed to “the twelve tribes in the dispersion.” In Old Testament terminology the term “twelve tribes” designates the people of Israel; the “dispersion” or “diaspora” refers to the non-Palestinian Jews who had settled throughout the Greco-Roman world (see Jn 7:35). Since in Christian thought the church is the new Israel, the address probably designates the Jewish Christian churches located in Palestine, Syria, and elsewhere. Or perhaps the letter is meant more generally for all Christian communities, and the “dispersion” has the symbolic meaning of exile from our true home, as it has in the address of 1 Peter (1 Pt 1:1). The letter is so markedly Jewish in character that some scholars have regarded it as a Jewish document subsequently “baptized” by a few Christian insertions, but such an origin is scarcely tenable in view of the numerous contacts discernible between the Letter of James and other New Testament literature.

From the viewpoint of its literary form, James is a letter only in the most conventional sense; it has none of the characteristic features of a real letter except the address. It belongs rather to the genre of parenesis or exhortation and is concerned almost exclusively with ethical conduct. It therefore falls within the tradition of Jewish wisdom literature, such as can be found in the Old Testament (Proverbs, Sirach) and in the extracanonical Jewish literature (Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs, the Books of Enoch, the Manual of Discipline found at Qumran). More specifically, it consists of sequences of didactic proverbs, comparable to Tb 4:5–19, to many passages in Sirach, and to sequences of sayings in the synoptic gospels. Numerous passages in James treat of subjects that also appear in the synoptic sayings of Jesus, especially in Matthew's Sermon on the Mount, but the correspondences are too general to establish any literary dependence. James represents a type of early Christianity that emphasized sound teaching and responsible moral behavior. Ethical norms are derived not primarily from christology, as in Paul, but from a concept of salvation that involves conversion, baptism, forgiveness of sin, and expectation of judgment (Jas 1:17; 4:12).

Paradoxically, this very Jewish work is written in an excellent Greek style, which ranks among the best in the New Testament and appears to be the work of a trained Hellenistic writer. Those who continue to regard James of Jerusalem as its author are therefore obliged to suppose that a secretary must have put the letter into its present literary form. This assumption is not implausible in the light of ancient practice. Some regard the letter as one of the earliest writings in the New Testament and feel that its content accurately reflects what we would expect of the leader of Jewish Christianity. Moreover, they argue that the type of Jewish Christianity reflected in the letter cannot be situated historically after the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 70.

Others, however, believe it more likely that James is a pseudonymous work of a later period. In addition to its Greek style, they observe further that (a) the prestige that the writer is assumed to enjoy points to the later legendary reputation of James; (b) the discussion of the importance of good works seems to presuppose a debate subsequent to that in Paul's own day; (c) the author does not rely upon prescriptions of the Mosaic law, as we would expect from the historical James; (d) the letter contains no allusions to James's own history and to his relationship with Jesus or to the early Christian community of Jerusalem. For these reasons, many recent interpreters assign James to the period A.D. 90–100.

The principal divisions of the Letter of James are the following:

- I. Address (1:1)
- II. The Value of Trials and Temptation (1:2–18)
- III. Exhortations and Warnings (1:19–5:12)
- IV. The Power of Prayer (5:13–20)

I. ADDRESS

CHAPTER 1

See RG 551

<sup>1a*</sup>James, a slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes in the dispersion, greetings.

II. THE VALUE OF TRIALS AND TEMPTATION

Perseverance in Trial. <sup>2b*</sup>Consider it all joy, my brothers, when you encounter various trials, <sup>3*</sup>for you know that the testing of your faith produces perseverance. <sup>4</sup>And let perseverance be perfect, so that you may be perfect and complete, lacking in nothing. <sup>5c*</sup>But if any of you lacks wisdom, he should ask God who gives to all generously and ungrudgingly, and he will be given it. <sup>6d</sup>But he should ask in faith, not doubting, for the one who doubts is like a wave of the sea that is driven and tossed about by the wind. <sup>7</sup>For that person must not suppose that he will receive anything from the Lord, <sup>8</sup>since he is a man of two minds, unstable in all his ways.

Temptation. <sup>12g*</sup>Blessed is the man who perseveres in temptation, for when he has been proved he will receive the crown of life that he promised to those who love him. <sup>13h*</sup>No one experiencing temptation should say, “I am being tempted by God”; for God is not subject to temptation to evil, and he himself tempts no one. <sup>14</sup>Rather, each person is tempted when he is lured and enticed by his own desire. <sup>15</sup>Then desire conceives and brings forth sin, and when sin reaches maturity it gives birth to death.

<sup>16*</sup>Do not be deceived, my beloved brothers: <sup>17*</sup>all good giving and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights, with whom there is no alteration or shadow caused by change. <sup>18i*</sup>He willed to give us birth by the word of truth that we may be a kind of firstfruits of his creatures.

III. EXHORTATIONS AND WARNINGS

Doers of the Word. <sup>19j*</sup>Know this, my dear brothers: everyone should be quick to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath, <sup>20k</sup>for the wrath of a man does not accomplish the righteousness of God. <sup>21 l</sup>Therefore, put away all filth and evil excess and humbly welcome the word that has been planted in you and is able to save your souls.

<sup>26o*</sup>If anyone thinks he is religious and does not bridle his tongue but deceives his heart, his religion is vain. <sup>27p*</sup>Religion that is pure and undefiled before God and the Father is this: to care for orphans and widows in their affliction and to keep oneself unstained by the world.

CHAPTER 2

Sin of Partiality. <sup>1*</sup>My brothers, show no partiality as you adhere to the faith in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>2</sup>For if a man with gold rings on his fingers and in fine clothes comes into your assembly, and a poor person in shabby clothes also comes in, <sup>3</sup>and you pay attention to the one wearing the fine clothes and say, “Sit here, please,” while you say to the poor one, “Stand there,” or “Sit at my feet,” <sup>4*</sup>have you not made distinctions among yourselves and become judges with evil designs?

<sup>5q*</sup>Listen, my beloved brothers. Did not God choose those who are poor in the world to be rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom that he promised to those who love him? <sup>6</sup>But you dishonored the poor person. Are not the rich oppressing you? And do they themselves not haul you off to court? <sup>7r</sup>Is it not they who blaspheme the noble name that was invoked over you? <sup>8s*</sup>However, if you fulfill the royal law according to the scripture, “You shall love your neighbor as yourself,” you are doing well. <sup>9t</sup>But if you show partiality, you commit sin, and are convicted by the law as transgressors. <sup>10u</sup>For whoever keeps the whole law, but falls short in one particular, has become guilty in respect to all of it. <sup>11v</sup>For he who said, “You shall not commit adultery,” also said, “You shall not kill.” Even if you do not commit adultery but kill, you have become a transgressor of the law. <sup>12w*</sup>So speak and so act as people who will be judged by the law of freedom. <sup>13x</sup>For the judgment is merciless to one who has not shown mercy; mercy triumphs over judgment.

Faith and Works. <sup>14y*</sup>What good is it, my brothers, if someone says he has faith but does not have works? Can that faith save him? <sup>15</sup>If a brother or sister has nothing to wear and has no food for the day, <sup>16z</sup>and one of you says to them, “Go in peace, keep warm, and eat well,” but you do not give them the necessities of the body, what good is it? <sup>17</sup>So also faith of itself, if it does not have works, is dead.

<sup>18</sup>Indeed someone may say, “You have faith and I have works.” Demonstrate your faith to me without works, and I will demonstrate my faith to you from my works. <sup>19</sup>You believe that God is one. You do well. Even the demons believe that and tremble. <sup>20</sup>Do you want proof, you ignoramus, that faith without works is useless? <sup>21</sup> <sup>a</sup> Was not Abraham our father justified by works when he offered his son Isaac upon the altar? <sup>22</sup> You see that faith was active along with his works, and faith was completed by the works. <sup>23</sup> <sup>b</sup> Thus the scripture was fulfilled that says, “Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him as righteousness,” and he was called “the friend of God.” <sup>24</sup> See how a person is justified by works and not by faith alone. <sup>25</sup> <sup>c</sup> And in the same way, was not Rahab the harlot also justified by works when she welcomed the messengers and sent them out by a different route? <sup>26</sup> For just as a body without a spirit is dead, so also faith without works is dead.

CHAPTER 3

Power of the Tongue. <sup>1*</sup>Not many of you should become teachers, my brothers, for you realize that we will be judged more strictly, <sup>2d</sup>for we all fall short in many respects. If anyone does not fall short in speech, he is a perfect man, able to bridle his whole body also. <sup>3</sup>If we put bits into the mouths of horses to make them obey us, we also guide their whole bodies. <sup>4</sup>It is the same with ships: even though they are so large and driven by fierce winds, they are steered by a very small rudder wherever the pilot's inclination wishes. <sup>5</sup>In the same way the tongue is a small member and yet has great pretensions.

Consider how small a fire can set a huge forest ablaze. <sup>6</sup>The tongue is also a fire. It exists among our members as a world of malice, defiling the whole body and setting the entire course of our lives on fire, itself set on fire by Gehenna. <sup>7</sup>For every kind of beast and bird, of reptile and sea creature, can be tamed and has been tamed by the human species, <sup>8e</sup>but no human being can tame the tongue. It is a restless evil, full of deadly poison. <sup>9</sup>With it we bless the Lord and Father, and with it we curse human beings who are made in the likeness of God. <sup>10</sup>From the same mouth come blessing and cursing. This need not be so, my brothers. <sup>11</sup> Does a spring gush forth from the same opening both pure and brackish water? <sup>12f</sup> Can a fig tree, my brothers, produce olives, or a grapevine figs? Neither can salt water yield fresh.

True Wisdom. <sup>13g*</sup>Who among you is wise and understanding? Let him show his works by a good life in the humility that comes from wisdom. <sup>14</sup>But if you have bitter jealousy and selfish ambition in your hearts, do not boast and be false to the truth. <sup>15</sup>Wisdom of this kind does not come down from above but is earthly, unspiritual, demonic. <sup>16</sup>For where jealousy and selfish ambition exist, there is disorder and every foul practice. <sup>17h</sup>But the wisdom from above is first of all pure, then peaceable, gentle, compliant, full of mercy and good fruits, without inconstancy or insincerity. <sup>18i</sup>And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace for those who cultivate peace.

CHAPTER 4

See RG 553–54

Causes of Division. <sup>1j*</sup>Where do the wars and where do the conflicts among you come from? Is it not from your passions that make war within your members? <sup>2</sup> You covet but do not possess. You kill and envy but you cannot obtain; you fight and wage war. You do not possess because you do not ask. <sup>3</sup> You ask but do not receive, because you ask wrongly, to spend it on your passions. <sup>4k*</sup>Adulterers! Do you not know that to be a lover of the world means enmity with God? Therefore, whoever wants to be a lover of the world makes himself an enemy of God. <sup>5*</sup>Or do you suppose that the scripture speaks without meaning when it says, “The spirit that he has made to dwell in us tends toward jealousy”? <sup>6l*</sup>But he bestows a greater grace; therefore, it says:

“God resists the proud, but gives grace to the humble.”

<sup>7m</sup>So submit yourselves to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. <sup>8n</sup>Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners, and purify your hearts, you of two minds. <sup>9</sup> Begin to lament, to mourn, to weep. Let your laughter be turned into mourning and your joy into dejection. <sup>10o</sup> Humble yourselves before the Lord and he will exalt you.

<sup>11*</sup>Do not speak evil of one another, brothers. Whoever speaks evil of a brother or judges his brother speaks evil of the law and judges the law. If you judge the law, you are not a doer of the law but a judge. <sup>12 p</sup>There is one lawgiver and judge who is able to save or to destroy. Who then are you to judge your neighbor?

Warning Against Presumption. <sup>13*</sup>Come now, you who say, “Today or tomorrow we shall go into such and such a town, spend a year there doing business, and make a profit”—<sup>14q*</sup>you have no idea what your life will be like tomorrow. You are a puff of smoke that appears briefly and then disappears. <sup>15*</sup>Instead you should say, “If the Lord wills it, we shall live to do this or that.” <sup>16</sup>But now you are boasting in your arrogance. All such boasting is evil. <sup>17r*</sup>So for one who knows the right thing to do and does not do it, it is a sin.

CHAPTER 5

Warning to the Rich. <sup>1s*</sup>Come now, you rich, weep and wail over your impending miseries. <sup>2t</sup>Your wealth has rotted away, your clothes have become moth-eaten, <sup>3u</sup>your gold and silver have corroded, and that corrosion will be a testimony against you; it will devour your flesh like a fire. You have stored up treasure for the last days. <sup>4v</sup>Behold, the wages you withheld from the workers who harvested your fields are crying aloud, and the cries of the harvesters have reached the ears of the Lord of hosts. <sup>5w</sup>You have lived on earth in luxury and pleasure; you have fattened your hearts for the day of slaughter. <sup>6x*</sup>You have condemned; you have murdered the righteous one; he offers you no resistance.

Patience and Oaths. <sup>7*</sup>Be patient, therefore, brothers, until the coming of the Lord. See how the farmer waits for the precious fruit of the earth, being patient with it until it receives the early and the late rains. <sup>8y</sup>You too must be patient. Make your hearts firm, because the coming of the Lord is at hand. <sup>9</sup>Do not complain, brothers, about one another that you may not be judged. Behold, the Judge is standing before the gates. <sup>10</sup>Take as an example of hardship and patience, brothers, the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord. <sup>11z</sup>Indeed we call blessed those who have persevered. You have heard of the perseverance of Job, and you have seen the purpose of the Lord, because “the Lord is compassionate and merciful.”

<sup>12a*</sup>But above all, my brothers, do not swear, either by heaven or by earth or with any other oath, but let your “Yes” mean “Yes” and your “No” mean “No,” that you may not incur condemnation.

IV. THE POWER OF PRAYER

Anointing of the Sick. <sup>13</sup>Is anyone among you suffering? He should pray. Is anyone in good spirits? He should sing praise. <sup>14b*</sup>Is anyone among you sick? He should summon the presbyters of the church, and they should pray over him and anoint [him] with oil in the name of the Lord, <sup>15*</sup>and the prayer of faith will save the sick person, and the Lord will raise him up. If he has committed any sins, he will be forgiven.

Confession and Intercession. <sup>16</sup>Therefore, confess your sins to one another and pray for one another, that you may be healed. The fervent prayer of a righteous person is very powerful. <sup>17c</sup>Elijah was a human being like us; yet he prayed earnestly that it might not rain, and for three years and six months it did not rain upon the land. <sup>18d</sup>Then he prayed again, and the sky gave rain and the earth produced its fruit.

Conversion of Sinners. <sup>19e</sup>My brothers, if anyone among you should stray from the truth and someone bring him back, <sup>20f*</sup>he should know that whoever brings back a sinner from the error of his way will save his soul from death and will cover a multitude of sins.

1:1 James, a slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ: a declaration of the writer's authority for instructing the Christian communities; cf. Rom 1:1. Regarding the identity of the author, see Introduction. Dispersion: see Introduction.

1:2 Consider it all joy ... various trials: a frequent teaching of the New Testament derived from the words and sufferings of Jesus (Mt 5:10–12; Jn 10:11; Acts 5:41).

1:3–8 The sequence of testing, perseverance, and being perfect and complete indicates the manner of attaining spiritual maturity and full preparedness for the coming of Christ (Jas 5:7–12; cf. 1 Pt 1:6–7; Rom 5:3–5). These steps require wisdom (Jas 1:5).

1:5 Wisdom: a gift that God readily grants to all who ask in faith and that sustains the Christian in times of trial. It is a kind of knowledge or understanding not accessible to the unbeliever or those who doubt, which gives the recipient an understanding of the real importance of events. In this way a Christian can deal with adversity with great calm and hope (cf. 1 Cor 2:6–12).

1:9–11 Throughout his letter (see Jas 2:5; 4:10, 13–16; 5:1–6), the author reaffirms the teaching of Jesus that worldly prosperity is not necessarily a sign of God's favor but can even be a hindrance to proper humility before God (cf. Lk 6:20–25; 12:16–21; 16:19–31).

1:12 Temptation: the Greek word used here is the same one used for "trials" in Jas 1:2. The crown of life: in ancient Palestine, crowns or wreaths of flowers were worn at festive occasions as signs of joy and honor. In the Hellenistic world, wreaths were given as a reward to great statesmen, soldiers, athletes. Life: here means eternal life. He promised: some manuscripts read "God" or "the Lord," while the best witnesses do not specify the subject of "promised."

1:13–15 It is contrary to what we know of God for God to be the author of human temptation (Jas 1:13). In the commission of a sinful act, one is first beguiled by passion (Jas 1:14), then consent is given, which in turn causes the sinful act. When sin permeates the entire person, it incurs the ultimate penalty of death (Jas 1:15).

1:16–18 The author here stresses that God is the source of all good and of good alone, and the evil of temptation does not come from him.

1:17 All good giving and every perfect gift may be a proverb written in hexameter. Father of lights: God is here called the Father of the heavenly luminaries, i.e., the stars, sun, and moon that he created (Gn 1:14–18). Unlike orbs moving from nadir to zenith, he never changes or diminishes in brightness.

1:18 Acceptance of the gospel message, the word of truth, constitutes new birth (Jn 3:5–6) and makes the recipient the firstfruits (i.e., the cultic offering of the earliest grains, symbolizing the beginning of an abundant harvest) of a new creation; cf. 1 Cor 15:20; Rom 8:23.

1:19–25 To be quick to hear the gospel is to accept it readily and to act in conformity with it, removing from one's soul whatever is opposed to it, so that it may take root and effect salvation (Jas 1:19–21). To listen to the gospel message but not practice it is failure to improve oneself (Jas 1:22–24). Only conformity of life to the perfect law of true freedom brings happiness (Jas 1:25).

1:25 Peers into the perfect law: the image of a person doing this is paralleled to that of hearing God's word. The perfect law applies the Old Testament description of the Mosaic law to the gospel of Jesus Christ that brings freedom.

1:26–27 A practical application of Jas 1:22 is now made.

1:26 For control of the tongue, see note on Jas 3:1–12.

1:27 In the Old Testament, orphans and widows are classical examples of the defenseless and oppressed.

2:1–13 In the Christian community there must be no discrimination or favoritism based on status or wealth (Jas 2:2–4; cf. Mt 5:3; 11:5; 23:6; 1 Cor 1:27–29). Divine favor rather consists in God's election and promises (Jas 2:5). The rich who oppress the poor blaspheme the name of Christ (Jas 2:6–7). By violating one law of love of neighbor, they offend against the whole law (Jas 2:8–11). On the other hand, conscious awareness of the final judgment helps the faithful to fulfill the whole law (Jas 2:12).

2:4 When Christians show favoritism to the rich they are guilty of the worst kind of prejudice and discrimination. The author says that such Christians set themselves up as judges who judge not by divine law but by the basest, self-serving motives.

2:5 The poor, "God's poor" of the Old Testament, were seen by Jesus as particularly open to God for belief in and reliance on him alone (Lk 6:20). God's law cannot tolerate their oppression in any way (Jas 2:9).

2:8 Royal: literally, "kingly"; because the Mosaic law came from God, the universal king. There may be an allusion to Jesus' uses of this commandment in his preaching of the kingdom of God (Mt 22:39; Mk 12:31; Lk 10:27).

2:12–13 The law upon which the last judgment will be based is the law of freedom. As Jesus taught, mercy (which participates in God's own loving mercy) includes forgiveness of those who wrong us (see Mt 6:12, 14–15).

2:14–26 The theme of these verses is the relationship of faith and works (deeds). It has been argued that the teaching here contradicts that of Paul (see especially Rom 4:5–6). The problem can only be understood if the different viewpoints of the two authors are seen. Paul argues against those who claim to participate in God's salvation because of their good deeds as well as because they have committed themselves to trust in God through Jesus Christ (Paul's concept of faith). Paul certainly understands, however, the implications of true faith for a life of love and generosity (see Gal 5:6, 13–15). The author of James is well aware that proper conduct can only come about with an authentic commitment to God in faith (Jas 2:18, 26). Many think he was seeking to correct a misunderstanding of Paul's view.

3:1–12 The use and abuse of the important role of teaching in the church (Jas 3:1) are here related to the good and bad use of the tongue (Jas 3:9–12), the instrument through which teaching was chiefly conveyed (see Sir 5:11–6:1; 28:12–26).

3:13–18 This discussion of true wisdom is related to the previous reflection on the role of the teacher as one who is in control of his speech. The qualities of the wise man endowed from above are detailed (Jas 3:17–18; cf. Gal 5:22–23), in contrast to the qualities of earthbound wisdom (Jas 3:14–16; cf. 2 Cor 12:20).

4:1–12 The concern here is with the origin of conflicts in the Christian community. These are occasioned by love of the world, which means enmity with God (Jas 4:4). Further, the conflicts are bound up with failure to pray properly (cf. Mt 7:7–11; Jn 14:13; 15:7; 16:23), that is, not asking God at all or using God's kindness only for one's pleasure (Jas 4:2–3). In contrast, the proper dispositions are submission to God, repentance, humility, and resistance to evil (Jas 4:7–10).

4:1–3 Passions: the Greek word here (literally, “pleasures”) does not indicate that pleasure is evil. Rather, as the text points out (Jas 4:2–3), it is the manner in which one deals with needs and desires that determines good or bad. The motivation for any action can be wrong, especially if one does not pray properly but seeks only selfish enjoyment (Jas 4:3).

4:4 Adulterers: a common biblical image for the covenant between God and his people is the marriage bond. In this image, breaking the covenant with God is likened to the unfaithfulness of adultery.

4:5 The meaning of this saying is difficult because the author of James cites, probably from memory, a passage that is not in any extant manuscript of the Bible. Other translations of the text with a completely different meaning are possible: “The Spirit that he (God) made to dwell in us yearns (for us) jealously,” or, “He (God) yearns jealously for the spirit that he has made to dwell in us.” If this last translation is correct, the author perhaps had in mind an apocryphal religious text that echoes the idea that God is zealous for his creatures; cf. Ex 20:5; Dt 4:24; Zec 8:2.

4:6 The point of this whole argument is that God wants the happiness of all, but that selfishness and pride can make that impossible. We must work with him in humility (Jas 4:10).

4:11 Slander of a fellow Christian does not break just one commandment but makes mockery of the authority of law in general and therefore of God.

4:13–17 The uncertainty of life (Jas 4:14), its complete dependence on God, and the necessity of submitting to God's will (Jas 4:15) all help one know and do what is right (Jas 4:17). To disregard this is to live in pride and arrogance (Jas 4:16); failure to do what is right is a sin (Jas 4:17).

4:14 Some important Greek manuscripts here have, “You who have no idea what tomorrow will bring. Why, what is your life?”

4:15 If the Lord wills it: often in piety referred to as the “conditio Jacobaea,” the condition James says we should employ to qualify all our plans.

4:17 It is a sin: those who live arrogantly, forgetting the contingency of life and our dependence on God (Jas 4:13–16), are guilty of sin.

5:1–6 Continuing with the theme of the transitory character of life on earth, the author points out the impending ruin of the godless. He denounces the unjust rich, whose victims cry to heaven for judgment on their exploiters (Jas 5:4–6). The decay and corrosion of the costly garments and metals, which symbolize wealth, prove them worthless and portend the destruction of their possessors (Jas 5:2–3).

5:6 The author does not have in mind any specific crime in his readers' communities but rather echoes the Old Testament theme of the harsh oppression of the righteous poor (see Prv 1:11; Wis 2:10, 12, 20).

5:7–11 Those oppressed by the unjust rich are reminded of the need for patience, both in bearing the sufferings of human life (Jas 5:9) and in their expectation of the coming of the Lord. It is then that they will receive their reward (Jas 5:7–8, 10–11; cf. Heb 10:25; 1 Jn 2:18).

5:7 The early and the late rains: an expression related to the agricultural season in ancient Palestine (see Dt 11:14; Jer 5:24; Jl 2:23).

5:12 This is the threat of condemnation for the abuse of swearing oaths (cf. Mt 5:33–37). By heaven or by earth: these words were substitutes for the original form of an oath, to circumvent its binding force and to avoid pronouncing the holy name of God (see Ex 22:10).

5:14 In case of sickness a Christian should ask for the presbyters of the church, i.e., those who have authority in the church (cf. Acts 15:2, 22–23; 1 Tm 5:17; Ti 1:5). They are to pray over the person and anoint with oil; oil was used for medicinal purposes in the ancient world (see Is 1:6; Lk 10:34). In Mk 6:13, the Twelve anoint the sick with oil on their missionary journey. In the name of the Lord: by the power of Jesus Christ.

5:15 The results of the prayer and anointing are physical health and forgiveness of sins. The Roman Catholic Church (Council of Trent, Session 14) declared that this anointing of the sick is a sacrament “instituted by Christ and promulgated by blessed James the apostle.”

5:20 When a Christian is instrumental in the conversion of a sinner, the result is forgiveness of sins and a reinstatement of the sinner to the life of grace.

The First Letter of Peter

1 2 3 4 5

See RG 555–59

This letter begins with an address by Peter to Christian communities located in five provinces of Asia Minor (1 Pt 1:1), including areas evangelized by Paul (Acts 16:6–7; 18:23). Christians there are encouraged to remain faithful to their standards of belief and conduct in spite of threats of persecution. Numerous allusions in the letter suggest that the churches addressed were largely of Gentile composition (1 Pt 1:14, 18; 2:9–10; 4:3–4), though considerable use is made of the Old Testament (1 Pt 1:24; 2:6–7, 9–10, 22; 3:10–12).

The contents following the address both inspire and admonish these “chosen sojourners” (1 Pt 1:1) who, in seeking to live as God’s people, feel an alienation from their previous religious roots and the society around them. Appeal is made to Christ’s resurrection and the future hope it provides (1 Pt 1:3–5) and to the experience of baptism as new birth (1 Pt 1:3, 23–25; 3:21). The suffering and death of Christ serve as both source of salvation and example (1 Pt 1:19; 2:21–25; 3:18). What Christians are in Christ, as a people who have received mercy and are to proclaim and live according to God’s call (1 Pt 2:9–10), is repeatedly spelled out for all sorts of situations in society (1 Pt 2:11–17), work (even as slaves, 1 Pt 2:18–20), the home (1 Pt 3:1–7), and general conduct (1 Pt 3:8–12; 4:1–11). But over all hangs the possibility of suffering as a Christian (1 Pt 3:13–17). In 1 Pt 4:12–19 persecution is described as already occurring, so that some have supposed the letter was addressed both to places where such a “trial by fire” was already present and to places where it might break out.

The letter constantly mingles moral exhortation (paraklēsis) with its catechetical summaries of mercies in Christ. Encouragement to fidelity in spite of suffering is based upon a vision of the meaning of Christian existence. The emphasis on baptism and allusions to various features of the baptismal liturgy suggest that the author has incorporated into his exposition numerous homiletic, credal, hymnic, and sacramental elements of the baptismal rite that had become traditional at an early date.

From Irenaeus in the late second century until modern times, Christian tradition regarded Peter the apostle as author of this document. Since he was martyred at Rome during the persecution of Nero between A.D. 64 and 67, it was supposed that the letter was written from Rome shortly before his death. This is supported by its reference to “Babylon” (1 Pt 5:13), a code name for Rome in the early church.

Some modern scholars, however, on the basis of a number of features that they consider incompatible with Petrine authenticity, regard the letter as the work of a later Christian writer. Such features include the cultivated Greek in which it is written, difficult to attribute to a Galilean fisherman, together with its use of the Greek Septuagint translation when citing the Old Testament; the similarity in both thought and expression to the Pauline literature; and the allusions to widespread persecution of Christians, which did not occur until at least the reign of Domitian (A.D. 81–96). In this view the letter would date from the end of the first century or even the beginning of the second, when there is evidence for persecution of Christians in Asia Minor (the letter of Pliny the Younger to Trajan, A.D. 111–12).

Other scholars believe, however, that these objections can be met by appeal to use of a secretary, Silvanus, mentioned in 1 Pt 5:12. Such secretaries often gave literary expression to the author’s thoughts in their own style and language. The persecutions may refer to local harassment rather than to systematic repression by the state. Hence there is nothing in the document incompatible with Petrine authorship in the 60s.

Still other scholars take a middle position. The many literary contacts with the Pauline literature, James, and 1 John suggest a common fund of traditional formulations rather than direct dependence upon Paul. Such liturgical and catechetical traditions must have been very ancient and in some cases of Palestinian origin.

Yet it is unlikely that Peter addressed a letter to the Gentile churches of Asia Minor while Paul was still alive. This suggests a period after the death of the two apostles, perhaps A.D. 70–90. The author would be a disciple of Peter in Rome, representing a Petrine group that served as a bridge between the Palestinian origins of Christianity and its flowering in the Gentile world. The problem addressed would not be official persecution but the difficulty of living the Christian life in a hostile, secular environment that espoused different values and subjected the Christian minority to ridicule and oppression.

The principal divisions of the First Letter of Peter are the following:

- I. Address (1:1–2)
- II. The Gift and Call of God in Baptism (1:3–2:10)
- III. The Christian in a Hostile World (2:11–4:11)
- IV. Advice to the Persecuted (4:12–5:11)

I. ADDRESS

CHAPTER 1

See RG 556–57

Greeting. <sup>1a*</sup>Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the chosen sojourners of the dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, <sup>2b</sup> in the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification by the Spirit, for obedience and sprinkling with the blood of Jesus Christ: may grace and peace be yours in abundance.

II. THE GIFT AND CALL OF GOD IN BAPTISM

Blessing. <sup>3c*</sup>Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who in his great mercy gave us a new birth to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, <sup>4d</sup>to an inheritance that is imperishable, undefiled, and unfading, kept in heaven for you <sup>5</sup> who by the power of God are safeguarded through faith, to a salvation that is ready to be revealed in the final time. <sup>6e*</sup>In this you rejoice, although now for a little while you may have to suffer through various trials, <sup>7f</sup> so that the genuineness of your faith, more precious than gold that is perishable even though tested by fire, may prove to be for praise, glory, and honor at the revelation of Jesus Christ. <sup>8g</sup> Although you have not seen him you love him; even though you do not see him now yet believe in him, you rejoice with an indescribable and glorious joy, <sup>9</sup>as you attain the goal of [your] faith, the salvation of your souls.

<sup>10*</sup>Concerning this salvation, prophets who prophesied about the grace that was to be yours searched and investigated it, <sup>11h</sup> investigating the time and circumstances that the Spirit of Christ within them indicated when it testified in advance to the sufferings destined for Christ and the glories to follow them. <sup>12</sup>It was revealed to them that they were serving not themselves but you with regard to the things that have now been announced to you by those who preached the good news to you [through] the holy Spirit sent from heaven, things into which angels longed to look.

Obedience. <sup>13*</sup>Therefore, gird up the loins of your mind, live soberly, and set your hopes completely on the grace to be brought to you at the revelation of Jesus Christ. <sup>14*</sup>Like obedient children, do not act in compliance with the desires of your former ignorance <sup>15i</sup>but, as he who called you is holy, be holy yourselves in every aspect of your conduct, <sup>16j</sup>for it is written, “Be holy because I [am] holy.”

Reverence. <sup>17k</sup>Now if you invoke as Father him who judges impartially according to each one’s works, conduct yourselves with reverence during the time of your sojourning, <sup>18l</sup>realizing that you were ransomed from your futile conduct, handed on by your ancestors, not with perishable things like silver or gold <sup>19m*</sup>but with the precious blood of Christ as of a spotless unblemished lamb. <sup>20</sup>He was known before the foundation of the world but revealed in the final time for you, <sup>21</sup>who through him believe in God who raised him from the dead and gave him glory, so that your faith and hope are in God.

Mutual Love. <sup>22n*</sup>Since you have purified yourselves by obedience to the truth for sincere mutual love, love one another intensely from a [pure] heart. <sup>23o*</sup>You have been born anew, not from perishable but from imperishable seed, through the living and abiding word of God, <sup>24 p</sup>for:

“All flesh is like grass, and all its glory like the flower of the field;
the grass withers,
and the flower wilts;
<sup>25</sup>but the word of the Lord remains forever.”

This is the word that has been proclaimed to you.

CHAPTER 2

See RG 556–58

God's House and People. <sup>1q*</sup>Rid yourselves of all malice and all deceit, insincerity, envy, and all slander; <sup>2</sup> like newborn infants, long for pure spiritual milk so that through it you may grow into salvation, <sup>3r*</sup> for you have tasted that the Lord is good. <sup>4s*</sup> Come to him, a living stone, rejected by human beings but chosen and precious in the sight of God, <sup>5t*</sup> and, like living stones, let yourselves be built into a spiritual house to be a holy priesthood to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. <sup>6u</sup> For it says in scripture:

“Behold, I am laying a stone in Zion, a cornerstone, chosen and precious, and whoever believes in it shall not be put to shame.”

<sup>7v</sup> Therefore, its value is for you who have faith, but for those without faith:

“The stone which the builders rejected has become the cornerstone,”

<sup>8w</sup> and

“A stone that will make people stumble, and a rock that will make them fall.”

They stumble by disobeying the word, as is their destiny.

<sup>9x*</sup> But you are “a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people of his own, so that you may announce the praises” of him who called you out of darkness into his wonderful light.

<sup>10y</sup> Once you were “no people” but now you are God's people;
you “had not received mercy”
but now you have received mercy.

III. THE CHRISTIAN IN A HOSTILE WORLD

Christian Examples. <sup>11z*</sup>Beloved, I urge you as aliens and sojourners to keep away from worldly desires that wage war against the soul. <sup>12</sup>Maintain good conduct among the Gentiles, so that if they speak of you as evildoers, they may observe your good works and glorify God on the day of visitation.

Christian Citizens. <sup>13a*</sup>Be subject to every human institution for the Lord's sake, whether it be to the king as supreme <sup>14</sup> or to governors as sent by him for the punishment of evildoers and the approval of those who do good. <sup>15</sup>For it is the will of God that by doing good you may silence the ignorance of foolish people. <sup>16b</sup>Be free, yet without using freedom as a pretext for evil, but as slaves of God. <sup>17c</sup>Give honor to all, love the community, fear God, honor the king.

Christian Slaves. <sup>18d*</sup>Slaves, be subject to your masters with all reverence, not only to those who are good and equitable but also to those who are perverse. <sup>19</sup>For whenever anyone bears the pain of unjust suffering because of consciousness of God, that is a grace. <sup>20</sup>But what credit is there if you are patient when beaten for doing wrong? But if you are patient when you suffer for doing what is good, this is a grace before God. <sup>21e*</sup>For to this you have been called, because Christ also suffered for you, leaving you an example that you should follow in his footsteps.

<sup>23g</sup>When he was insulted, he returned no insult; when he suffered, he did not threaten; instead, he handed himself over to the one who judges justly.

<sup>24h</sup>He himself bore our sins in his body upon the cross, so that, free from sin, we might live for righteousness. By his wounds you have been healed.

<sup>25i*</sup>For you had gone astray like sheep, but you have now returned to the shepherd and guardian of your souls.

CHAPTER 3

See RG 557–58

Christian Spouses. <sup>1*</sup>Likewise, you wives should be subordinate to your husbands so that, even if some disobey the word, they may be won over without a word by their wives' conduct <sup>2j</sup>when they observe your reverent and chaste behavior. <sup>3k</sup>Your adornment should not be an external one: braiding the hair, wearing gold jewelry, or dressing in fine clothes, <sup>4</sup>but rather the hidden character of the heart, expressed in the imperishable beauty of a gentle and calm disposition, which is precious in the sight of God. <sup>5</sup>For this is also how the holy women who hoped in God once used to adorn themselves and were subordinate to their husbands; <sup>6</sup>thus Sarah obeyed Abraham, calling him "lord." You are her children when you do what is good and fear no intimidation.

<sup>7l*</sup>Likewise, you husbands should live with your wives in understanding, showing honor to the weaker female sex, since we are joint heirs of the gift of life, so that your prayers may not be hindered.

Christian Conduct. <sup>8*</sup>Finally, all of you, be of one mind, sympathetic, loving toward one another, compassionate, humble. <sup>9m</sup>Do not return evil for evil, or insult for insult; but, on the contrary, a blessing, because to this you were called, that you might inherit a blessing. <sup>10n</sup>For:

“Whoever would love life and see good days must keep the tongue from evil and the lips from speaking deceit, <sup>11</sup>must turn from evil and do good, seek peace and follow after it.
<sup>12</sup>For the eyes of the Lord are on the righteous and his ears turned to their prayer, but the face of the Lord is against evildoers.”

Christian Suffering. <sup>13*</sup>Now who is going to harm you if you are enthusiastic for what is good? <sup>14</sup>But even if you should suffer because of righteousness, blessed are you. Do not be afraid or terrified with fear of them, <sup>15o</sup>but sanctify Christ as Lord in your hearts. Always be ready to give an explanation to anyone who asks you for a reason for your hope, <sup>16b</sup>but do it with gentleness and reverence, keeping your conscience clear, so that, when you are maligned, those who defame your good conduct in Christ may themselves be put to shame. <sup>17f</sup>For it is better to suffer for doing good, if that be the will of God, than for doing evil.

<sup>18p*</sup>For Christ also suffered for sins once, the righteous for the sake of the unrighteous, that he might lead you to God. Put to death in the flesh, he was brought to life in the spirit. <sup>19*</sup>In it he also went to preach to the spirits in prison, <sup>20q</sup>who had once been disobedient while God patiently waited in the days of Noah during the building of the ark, in which a few persons, eight in all, were saved through water. <sup>21r*</sup>This prefigured baptism, which saves you now. It is not a removal of dirt from the body but an appeal to God for a clear conscience, through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, <sup>22s</sup>who has gone into heaven and is at the right hand of God, with angels, authorities, and powers subject to him.

CHAPTER 4

Christian Restraint. <sup>1*</sup>Therefore, since Christ suffered in the flesh, arm yourselves also with the same attitude (for whoever suffers in the flesh has broken with sin), <sup>2</sup> so as not to spend what remains of one's life in the flesh on human desires, but on the will of God. <sup>3t</sup>For the time that has passed is sufficient for doing what the Gentiles like to do: living in debauchery, evil desires, drunkenness, orgies, carousing, and wanton idolatry. <sup>4</sup>They are surprised that you do not plunge into the same swamp of profligacy, and they vilify you; <sup>5u</sup>but they will give an account to him who stands ready to judge the living and the dead. <sup>6*</sup>For this is why the gospel was preached even to the dead that, though condemned in the flesh in human estimation, they might live in the spirit in the estimation of God.

Christian Charity. <sup>7*</sup>The end of all things is at hand. Therefore, be serious and sober for prayers. <sup>8v*</sup>Above all, let your love for one another be intense, because love covers a multitude of sins. <sup>9w</sup>Be hospitable to one another without complaining. <sup>10x</sup>As each one has received a gift, use it to serve one another as good stewards of God's varied grace. <sup>11y*</sup>Whoever preaches, let it be with the words of God; whoever serves, let it be with the strength that God supplies, so that in all things God may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom belong glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen.

IV. ADVICE TO THE PERSECUTED

Trial of Persecution. <sup>12z*</sup>Beloved, do not be surprised that a trial by fire is occurring among you, as if something strange were happening to you. <sup>13a</sup>But rejoice to the extent that you share in the sufferings of Christ, so that when his glory is revealed you may also rejoice exultantly. <sup>14b</sup>If you are insulted for the name of Christ, blessed are you, for the Spirit of glory and of God rests upon you. <sup>15</sup>But let no one among you be made to suffer as a murderer, a thief, an evildoer, or as an intriguer. <sup>16</sup>But whoever is made to suffer as a Christian should not be ashamed but glorify God because of the name. <sup>17c</sup>For it is time for the judgment to begin with the household of God; if it begins with us, how will it end for those who fail to obey the gospel of God?

<sup>18d</sup> “And if the righteous one is barely saved,
where will the godless and the sinner appear?”

<sup>19</sup>As a result, those who suffer in accord with God’s will hand their souls over to a faithful creator as they do good.

CHAPTER 5

See RG 558–59

Advice to Presbyters. <sup>1*</sup> So I exhort the presbyters among you, as a fellow presbyter and witness to the sufferings of Christ and one who has a share in the glory to be revealed. <sup>2e</sup> Tend the flock of God in your midst, [overseeing] not by constraint but willingly, as God would have it, not for shameful profit but eagerly. <sup>3</sup> Do not lord it over those assigned to you, but be examples to the flock. <sup>4f*</sup> And when the chief Shepherd is revealed, you will receive the unfading crown of glory.

Advice to the Community. <sup>5g*</sup> Likewise, you younger members, be subject to the presbyters. And all of you, clothe yourselves with humility in your dealings with one another, for:

“God opposes the proud but bestows favor on the humble.”

<sup>6h</sup> So humble yourselves under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time. <sup>7i</sup> Cast all your worries upon him because he cares for you.

<sup>8j</sup> Be sober and vigilant. Your opponent the devil is prowling around like a roaring lion looking for [someone] to devour. <sup>9</sup> Resist him, steadfast in faith, knowing that your fellow believers throughout the world undergo the same sufferings. <sup>10k</sup> The God of all grace who called you to his eternal glory through Christ [Jesus] will himself restore, confirm, strengthen, and establish you after you have suffered a little. <sup>11</sup> To him be dominion forever. Amen.

V. CONCLUSION

<sup>12*</sup> I write you this briefly through Silvanus, whom I consider a faithful brother, exhorting you and testifying that this is the true grace of God. Remain firm in it. <sup>13*</sup> The chosen one at Babylon sends you greeting, as does Mark, my son. <sup>14l</sup> Greet one another with a loving kiss. Peace to all of you who are in Christ.

1:1–2 The introductory formula names Peter as the writer (but see Introduction). In his comments to the presbyters (1 Pt 5:1), the author calls himself a “fellow presbyter.” He addresses himself to the Gentile converts of Asia Minor. Their privileged status as a chosen and sanctified people makes them worthy of God’s grace and peace. In contrast is their actual existence as aliens and sojourners, scattered among pagans, far from their true country.

1:1 Dispersion: literally, diaspora; see Jas 1:1 and Introduction to that letter. Pontus ... Bithynia: five provinces in Asia Minor, listed in clockwise order from the north, perhaps in the sequence in which a messenger might deliver the letter.

1:3–5 A prayer of praise and thanksgiving to God who bestows the gift of new life and hope in baptism (new birth, 1 Pt 1:3) through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. The new birth is a sign of an imperishable inheritance (1 Pt 1:4), of salvation that is still in the future (to be revealed in the final time, 1 Pt 1:5).

1:6–9 As the glory of Christ’s resurrection was preceded by his sufferings and death, the new life of faith that it bestows is to be subjected to many trials (1 Pt 1:6) while achieving its goal: the glory of the fullness of salvation (1 Pt 1:9) at the coming of Christ (1 Pt 1:7).

1:10–12 The Spirit of Christ (1 Pt 1:11) is here shown to have been present in the prophets, moving them to search, investigate, and prophesy about the grace of salvation that was to come (1 Pt 1:10), and in the apostles impelling them to preach the fulfillment of salvation in the message of Christ’s sufferings and glory (1 Pt 1:12).

1:13–25 These verses are concerned with the call of God’s people to holiness and to mutual love by reason of their redemption through the blood of Christ (1 Pt 1:18–21).

1:13 Gird up the loins of your mind: a figure reminiscent of the rite of Passover when the Israelites were in flight from their oppressors (Ex 12:11), and also suggesting the vigilance of the Christian people in expectation of the parousia of Christ (Lk 12:35).

1:14–16 The ignorance here referred to (1 Pt 1:14) was their former lack of knowledge of God, leading inevitably to godless conduct. Holiness (1 Pt 1:15–16), on the contrary, is the result of their call to the knowledge and love of God.

1:19 Christians have received the redemption prophesied by Isaiah (Is 52:3), through the blood (Jewish symbol of life) of the spotless lamb (Is 53:7, 10; Jn 1:29; Rom 3:24–25; cf. 1 Cor 6:20).

1:22–25 The new birth of Christians (1 Pt 1:23) derives from Christ, the imperishable seed or sowing that produces a new and lasting existence in those who accept the gospel (1 Pt 1:24–25), with the consequent duty of loving one another (1 Pt 1:22).

1:23 The living and abiding word of God: or, “the word of the living and abiding God.”

2:1–3 Growth toward salvation is seen here as two steps: first, stripping away all that is contrary to the new life in Christ; second, the nourishment (pure spiritual milk) that the newly baptized have received.

2:3 Tasted that the Lord is good: cf. Ps 34:9.

2:4–8 Christ is the cornerstone (cf. Is 28:16) that is the foundation of the spiritual edifice of the Christian community (1 Pt 2:5). To unbelievers, Christ is an obstacle and a stumbling block on which they are destined to fall (1 Pt 2:8); cf. Rom 11:11.

2:5 Let yourselves be built: the form of the Greek word could also be indicative passive, “you are being built” (cf. 1 Pt 2:9).

2:9–10 The prerogatives of ancient Israel mentioned here are now more fully and fittingly applied to the Christian people: “a chosen race” (cf. Is 43:20–21) indicates their divine election (Eph 1:4–6); “a royal priesthood” (cf. Ex 19:6) to serve and worship God in Christ, thus continuing the priestly functions of his life, passion, and resurrection; “a holy nation” (Ex 19:6) reserved for God, a people he claims for his own (cf. Mal 3:17) in virtue of their baptism into his death and resurrection. This transcends all natural and national divisions and unites the people into one community to glorify the one who led them from the darkness of paganism to the light of faith in Christ. From being “no people” deprived of all mercy, they have become the very people of God, the chosen recipients of his mercy (cf. Hos 1:9; 2:25).

2:11–3:12 After explaining the doctrinal basis for the Christian community, the author makes practical applications in terms of the virtues that should prevail in all the social relationships of the members of the community: good example to Gentile neighbors (1 Pt 2:11–12); respect for human authority (1 Pt 2:13–17); obedience, patience, and endurance of hardship in domestic relations (1 Pt 2:18–25); Christian behavior of husbands and wives (1 Pt 3:1–7); mutual charity (1 Pt 3:8–12).

2:11 Aliens and sojourners: no longer signifying absence from one’s native land (Gn 23:4), this image denotes rather their estrangement from the world during their earthly pilgrimage (see also 1 Pt 1:1, 17).

2:13–17 True Christian freedom is the result of being servants of God (1 Pt 2:16; see note on 1 Pt 2:18–23). It includes reverence for God, esteem for every individual, and committed love for fellow Christians (1 Pt 2:17). Although persecution may threaten, subjection to human government is urged (1 Pt 2:13, 17) and concern for the impact of Christians’ conduct on those who are not Christians (1 Pt 2:12, 15).

2:18–21 Most of the labor in the commercial cities of first-century Asia Minor was performed by a working class of slaves. The sense of freedom contained in the gospel undoubtedly caused great tension among Christian slaves: witness the special advice given concerning them here and in 1 Cor 7:21–24; Eph 6:5–8; Col 3:22–25; Phlm. The point made here does not have so much to do with the institution of slavery, which the author does not challenge, but with the nonviolent reaction (1 Pt 2:20) of slaves to unjust treatment. Their patient suffering is compared to that of Jesus (1 Pt 2:21), which won righteousness for all humanity.

2:21 Suffered: some ancient manuscripts and versions read “died” (cf. 1 Pt 3:18).

2:22–25 After the quotation of Is 53:9b, the passage describes Jesus’ passion with phrases concerning the Suffering Servant from Is 53:4–12, perhaps as employed in an early Christian confession of faith; cf. 1 Pt 1:18–21 and 1 Pt 3:18–22.

2:25 The shepherd and guardian of your souls: the familiar shepherd and flock figures express the care, vigilance, and love of God for his people in the Old Testament (Ps 23; Is 40:11; Jer 23:4–5; Ez 34:11–16) and of Jesus for all humanity in the New Testament (Mt 18:10–14; Lk 15:4–7; Jn 10:1–16; Heb 13:20).

3:1–6 The typical marital virtues of women of the ancient world, obedience, reverence, and chastity (1 Pt 3:1–2), are outlined here by the author, who gives them an entirely new motivation: Christian wives are to be virtuous so that they may be instrumental in the conversion of their husbands. In imitation of holy women in the past (1 Pt 3:5) they are to cultivate the interior life (1 Pt 3:4) instead of excessive concern with their appearance (1 Pt 3:3).

3:7 Husbands who do not respect their wives will have as little success in prayer as those who, according to Paul, have no love: their prayers will be “a resounding gong or a clashing cymbal” (1 Cor 13:1). Consideration for others is shown as a prerequisite for effective prayer also in Mt 5:23–24; 1 Cor 11:20–22; Jas 4:3. After all, whatever the social position of women in the world and in the family, they are equal recipients of the gift of God’s salvation. Paul is very clear on this point, too (see 1 Cor 11:11–12; Gal 3:28).

3:8–12 For the proper ordering of Christian life in its various aspects as described in 1 Pt 2:11–3:9, there is promised the blessing expressed in Ps 34:13–17. In the Old Testament this refers to longevity and prosperity; here, it also refers to eternal life.

3:13–22 This exposition, centering on 1 Pt 3:17, runs as follows: by his suffering and death Christ the righteous one saved the unrighteous (1 Pt 3:18); by his resurrection he received new life in the spirit, which he communicates to believers through the baptismal bath that cleanses their consciences from sin. As Noah’s family was saved through water, so Christians are saved through the waters of baptism (1 Pt 3:19–22). Hence they need not share the fear of sinners; they should rather rejoice in suffering because of their hope in Christ. Thus their innocence disappoints their accusers (1 Pt 3:13–16; cf. Mt 10:28; Rom 8:35–39).

3:18 Suffered: very many ancient manuscripts and versions read “died.” Put to death in the flesh: affirms that Jesus truly died as a human being. Brought to life in the spirit: that is, in the new and transformed existence freed from the limitations and weaknesses of natural human life (cf. 1 Cor 15:45).

3:19 The spirits in prison: it is not clear just who these spirits are. They may be the spirits of the sinners who died in the flood, or angelic powers, hostile to God, who have been overcome by Christ (cf. 1 Pt 3:22; Gn 6:4; Enoch 6–36, especially 21:6; 2 Enoch 7:1–5).

3:21 Appeal to God: this could also be translated “pledge,” that is, a promise on the part of Christians to live with a good conscience before God, or a pledge from God of forgiveness and therefore a good conscience for us.

4:1–6 Willingness to suffer with Christ equips the Christian with the power to conquer sin (1 Pt 4:1). Christ is here portrayed as the judge to whom those guilty of pagan vices must render an account (1 Pt 4:5; cf. Jn 5:22–27; Acts 10:42; 2 Tm 4:1).

4:6 The dead: these may be the sinners of the flood generation who are possibly referred to in 1 Pt 3:19. But many scholars think that there is no connection between these two verses, and that the dead here are Christians who have died since hearing the preaching of the gospel.

4:7–11 The inner life of the eschatological community is outlined as the end (the parousia of Christ) and the judgment draws near in terms of seriousness, sobriety, prayer, and love expressed through hospitality and the use of one’s gifts for the glory of God and of Christ.

4:8 Love covers a multitude of sins: a maxim based on Prv 10:12; see also Ps 32:1; Jas 5:20.

4:11 Some scholars feel that this doxology concludes the part of the homily addressed specifically to the newly baptized, begun in 1 Pt 1:3; others that it concludes a baptismal liturgy. Such doxologies do occur within a New Testament letter, e.g., Rom 9:5. Some propose that 1 Pt 4:11 was an alternate ending, with 1 Pt 4:12–5:14 being read in places where persecution was more pressing. But such doxologies usually do not occur at the end of letters (the only examples are 2 Pt 3:18, Jude 25, and Rom 16:27, the last probably a liturgical insertion).

4:12–19 The suffering to which the author has already frequently referred is presented in more severe terms. This has led some scholars to see these verses as referring to an actual persecution. Others see the heightening of the language as only a rhetorical device used at the end of the letter to emphasize the suffering motif.

5:1–4 In imitation of Christ, the chief shepherd, those entrusted with a pastoral office are to tend the flock by their care and example.

5:1 Presbyters: the officially appointed leaders and teachers of the Christian community (cf. 1 Tm 5:17–18; Ti 1:5–8; Jas 5:14).

5:4 See note on 1 Pt 2:25.

5:5–11 The community is to be subject to the presbyters and to show humility toward one another and trust in God’s love and care (1 Pt 5:5–7). With sobriety, alertness, and steadfast faith they must resist the evil one; their sufferings are shared with Christians everywhere (1 Pt 5:8–9). They will be strengthened and called to eternal glory (1 Pt 5:10–11).

5:5 Younger members: this may be a designation for office-holders of lesser rank.

5:12 Silvanus: the companion of Paul (see 2 Cor 1:19; 1 Thes 1:1; 2 Thes 1:1). Jews and Jewish Christians, like Paul, often had a Hebrew name (Saoul, Silas) and a Greek or Latin name (Paul, Silvanus). On Silvanus’s possible role as amanuensis, see Introduction.

5:13 The chosen one: feminine, referring to the Christian community (ekklēsia) at Babylon, the code name for Rome in Rev 14:8; 17:5; 18:2. Mark, my son: traditionally a prominent disciple of Peter and co-worker at the church in Rome, perhaps the John Mark referred to in Acts 12:12, 25;

13:5, 13; and in Acts 15:37–39, a companion of Barnabas. Perhaps this is the same Mark mentioned as Barnabas’s cousin in Col 4:10, a co-worker with Paul in Phlm 24 (see also 2 Tm 4:11).

The Second Letter of Peter

1 2 3

This letter can be appreciated both for its positive teachings and for its earnest warnings. It seeks to strengthen readers in faith (2 Pt 1:1), hope for the future (2 Pt 3:1–10), knowledge (2 Pt 1:2, 6, 8), love (2 Pt 1:7), and other virtues (2 Pt 1:5–6). This aim is carried out especially by warning against false teachers, the condemnation of whom occupies the long central section of the letter (2 Pt 2:1–22). A particular crisis is the claim by “scoffers” that there will be no second coming of Jesus, a doctrine that the author vigorously affirms (2 Pt 3:1–10). The concept of God’s “promises” is particularly precious in the theology of 2 Peter (2 Pt 1:4; 3:4, 9, 13). Closing comments at 2 Pt 3:17–18 well sum up the twin concerns: that you not “be led into” error and “fall” but instead “grow in grace” and “knowledge” of Jesus Christ.

Second Peter is clearly structured in its presentation of these points. It reminds its readers of the divine authenticity of Christ’s teaching (2 Pt 1:3–4), continues with reflections on Christian conduct (2 Pt 1:5–15), then returns to the exalted dignity of Jesus by incorporating into the text the apostolic witness to his transfiguration (2 Pt 1:16–18). It takes up the question of the interpretation of scripture by pointing out that it is possible to misunderstand the sacred writings (2 Pt 1:19–21) and that divine punishment will overtake false teachers (2 Pt 2:1–22). It proclaims that the parousia is the teaching of the Lord and of the apostles and is therefore an eventual certainty (2 Pt 3:1–13). At the same time, it warns that the meaning of Paul’s writings on this question should not be distorted (2 Pt 3:14–18).

In both content and style this letter is very different from 1 Peter, which immediately precedes it in the canon. The opening verse attributes it to “Symeon Peter, a slave and apostle of Jesus Christ.” Moreover, the author in 2 Pt 3:1 calls his work a “second letter,” referring probably to 1 Peter as his first, and in 2 Pt 1:18 counts himself among those present at the transfiguration of Jesus.

Nevertheless, acceptance of 2 Peter into the New Testament canon met with great resistance in the early church. The oldest certain reference to it comes from Origen in the early third century. While he himself accepted both Petrine letters as canonical, he testifies that others rejected 2 Peter. As late as the fifth century some local churches still excluded it from the canon, but eventually it was universally adopted. The principal reason for the long delay was the persistent doubt that the letter stemmed from the apostle Peter.

Among modern scholars there is wide agreement that 2 Peter is a pseudonymous work, i.e., one written by a later author who attributed it to Peter according to a literary convention popular at the time. It gives the impression of being more remote in time from the apostolic period than 1 Peter; indeed, many think it is the latest work in the New Testament and assign it to the first or even the second quarter of the second century.

The principal reasons for this view are the following. The author refers to the apostles and “our ancestors” as belonging to a previous generation, now dead (2 Pt 3:2–4). A collection of Paul’s letters exists and appears to be well known, but disputes have arisen about the interpretation of them (2 Pt 3:14–16). The passage about false teachers (2 Pt 2:1–18) contains a number of literary contacts with Jude 4–16, and it is generally agreed that 2 Peter depends upon Jude, not vice versa. Finally, the principal problem exercising the author is the false teaching of “scoffers” who have concluded from the delay of the parousia that the Lord is not going to return. This could scarcely have been an issue during the lifetime of Simon Peter.

The Christians to whom the letter is addressed are not identified, though it may be the intent of 2 Pt 3:1 to identify them with the churches of Asia Minor to which 1 Peter was sent. Except for the epistolary greeting in 2 Pt 1:1–2, 2 Peter does not have the features of a genuine letter at all, but is rather a general exhortation cast in the form of a letter. The author must have been a Jewish Christian of the dispersion for, while his Jewish heritage is evident in various features of his thought and style, he writes in the rather stilted literary Greek of the Hellenistic period. He appeals to tradition against the twin threat of doctrinal error and moral laxity, which appear to reflect an early stage of what later developed into full-blown gnosticism. Thus he forms a link between the apostolic period and the church of subsequent ages.

The principal divisions of the Second Letter of Peter are the following:

- I. Address (1:1–2)
- II. Exhortation to Christian Virtue (1:3–21)
- III. Condemnation of the False Teachers (2:1–22)
- IV. The Delay of the Second Coming (3:1–16)
- V. Final Exhortation and Doxology (3:17–18)

I. ADDRESS

CHAPTER 1

See RG 560

Greeting. <sup>1*</sup>Symeon Peter, a slave and apostle of Jesus Christ, to those who have received a faith of equal value to ours through the righteousness of our God and savior Jesus Christ: <sup>2*</sup>may grace and peace be yours in abundance through knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord.

II. EXHORTATION TO CHRISTIAN VIRTUE

The Power of God's Promise. <sup>3a*</sup>His divine power has bestowed on us everything that makes for life and devotion, through the knowledge of him who called us by his own glory and power. <sup>4b</sup>Through these, he has bestowed on us the precious and very great promises, so that through them you may come to share in the divine nature, after escaping from the corruption that is in the world because of evil desire. <sup>5c*</sup>For this very reason, make every effort to supplement your faith with virtue, virtue with knowledge, <sup>6</sup>knowledge with self-control, self-control with endurance, endurance with devotion, <sup>7</sup>devotion with mutual affection, mutual affection with love. <sup>8</sup>If these are yours and increase in abundance, they will keep you from being idle or unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. <sup>9d</sup>Anyone who lacks them is blind and shortsighted, forgetful of the cleansing of his past sins. <sup>10*</sup>Therefore, brothers, be all the more eager to make your call and election firm, for, in doing so, you will never stumble. <sup>11</sup> For, in this way, entry into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and savior Jesus Christ will be richly provided for you.

Apostolic Witness. <sup>12*</sup>Therefore, I will always remind you of these things, even though you already know them and are established in the truth you have. <sup>13 *</sup>I think it right, as long as I am in this "tent," to stir you up by a reminder, <sup>14e</sup>since I know that I will soon have to put it aside, as indeed our Lord Jesus Christ has shown me. <sup>15</sup>I shall also make every effort to enable you always to remember these things after my departure.

<sup>16f*</sup>We did not follow cleverly devised myths when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we had been eyewitnesses of his majesty. <sup>17g*</sup>For he received honor and glory from God the Father when that unique declaration came to him from the majestic glory, “This is my Son, my beloved, with whom I am well pleased.” <sup>18*</sup>We ourselves heard this voice come from heaven while we were with him on the holy mountain. <sup>19h</sup>Moreover, we possess the prophetic message that is altogether reliable. You will do well to be attentive to it, as to a lamp shining in a dark place, until day dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts. <sup>20*</sup>Know this first of all, that there is no prophecy of scripture that is a matter of personal interpretation, <sup>21f</sup>for no prophecy ever came through human will; but rather human beings moved by the holy Spirit spoke under the influence of God.

III. CONDEMNATION OF THE FALSE TEACHERS

CHAPTER 2

False Teachers. <sup>1i*</sup>There were also false prophets among the people, just as there will be false teachers among you, who will introduce destructive heresies and even deny the Master who ransomed them, bringing swift destruction on themselves. <sup>2j</sup>Many will follow their licentious ways, and because of them the way of truth will be reviled. <sup>3k</sup>In their greed they will exploit you with fabrications, but from of old their condemnation has not been idle and their destruction does not sleep.

Lessons from the Past. <sup>4l*</sup>For if God did not spare the angels when they sinned, but condemned them to the chains of Tartarus and handed them over to be kept for judgment; <sup>5m*</sup>and if he did not spare the ancient world, even though he preserved Noah, a herald of righteousness, together with seven others, when he brought a flood upon the godless world; <sup>6n</sup>and if he condemned the cities of Sodom and Gommorah [to destruction], reducing them to ashes, making them an example for the godless [people] of what is coming; <sup>7</sup>and if he rescued Lot, a righteous man oppressed by the licentious conduct of unprincipled people <sup>8</sup> (for day after day that righteous man living among them was tormented in his righteous soul at the lawless deeds that he saw and heard), <sup>9o</sup>then the Lord knows how to rescue the devout from trial and to keep the unrighteous under punishment for the day of judgment, <sup>10p*</sup>and especially those who follow the flesh with its depraved desire and show contempt for lordship.

False Teachers Denounced. Bold and arrogant, they are not afraid to revile glorious beings, <sup>11q*</sup>whereas angels, despite their superior strength and power, do not bring a reviling judgment against them from the Lord. <sup>12r</sup>But these people, like irrational animals born by nature for capture and destruction, revile things that they do not understand, and in their destruction they will also be destroyed, <sup>13s*</sup>suffering wrong as payment for wrongdoing. Thinking daytime revelry a delight, they are stains and defilements as they revel in their deceits while carousing with you. <sup>14</sup>Their eyes are full of adultery and insatiable for sin. They seduce unstable people, and their hearts are trained in greed. Accursed children! <sup>15t*</sup>Abandoning the straight road, they have gone astray, following the road of Balaam, the son of Bosor, who loved payment for wrongdoing, <sup>16u</sup>but he received a rebuke for his own crime: a mute beast spoke with a human voice and restrained the prophet's madness.

IV. THE DELAY OF THE SECOND COMING

CHAPTER 3

Denial of the Parousia. <sup>1*</sup>This is now, beloved, the second letter I am writing to you; through them by way of reminder I am trying to stir up your sincere disposition, <sup>2b</sup>to recall the words previously spoken by the holy prophets and the commandment of the Lord and savior through your apostles. <sup>3c*</sup>Know this first of all, that in the last days scoffers will come [to] scoff, living according to their own desires <sup>4d*</sup>and saying, “Where is the promise of his coming? From the time when our ancestors fell asleep, everything has remained as it was from the beginning of creation.” <sup>5e*</sup>They deliberately ignore the fact that the heavens existed of old and earth was formed out of water and through water by the word of God; <sup>6f*</sup>through these the world that then existed was destroyed, deluged with water. <sup>7g</sup>The present heavens and earth have been reserved by the same word for fire, kept for the day of judgment and of destruction of the godless.

<sup>8h*</sup>But do not ignore this one fact, beloved, that with the Lord one day is like a thousand years and a thousand years like one day. <sup>9i</sup>The Lord does not delay his promise, as some regard “delay,” but he is patient with you, not wishing that any should perish but that all should come to repentance. <sup>10j*</sup>But the day of the Lord will come like a thief, and then the heavens will pass away with a mighty roar and the elements will be dissolved by fire, and the earth and everything done on it will be found out.

Exhortation to Preparedness. <sup>11 k*</sup>Since everything is to be dissolved in this way, what sort of persons ought [you] to be, conducting yourselves in holiness and devotion, <sup>12l*</sup>waiting for and hastening the coming of the day of God, because of which the heavens will be dissolved in flames and the elements melted by fire. <sup>13m*</sup>But according to his promise we await new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells.

<sup>14</sup>Therefore, beloved, since you await these things, be eager to be found without spot or blemish before him, at peace. <sup>15n</sup>And consider the patience of our Lord as salvation, as our beloved brother Paul, according to the wisdom given to him, also wrote to you, <sup>16*</sup>speaking of these things as he does in all his letters. In them there are some things hard to understand that the ignorant and unstable distort to their own destruction, just as they do the other scriptures.

V. FINAL EXHORTATION AND DOXOLOGY

<sup>17o*</sup>Therefore, beloved, since you are forewarned, be on your guard not to be led into the error of the unprincipled and to fall from your own stability.

<sup>18p</sup>But grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and savior Jesus Christ. To him be glory now and to the day of eternity. [Amen.]

1:1 Symeon Peter: on the authorship of 2 Peter, see Introduction; on the spelling here of the Hebrew name Šim ʿōn, cf. Acts 15:14. The greeting is especially similar to those in 1 Peter and Jude. The words translated our God and savior Jesus Christ could also be rendered “our God and the savior Jesus Christ”; cf. 2 Pt 1:11; 2:20; 3:2, 18.

1:2 Knowledge: a key term in the letter (2 Pt 1:3, 8; 2:20; 3:18), perhaps used as a Christian emphasis against gnostic claims.

1:3–4 Christian life in its fullness is a gift of divine power effecting a knowledge of Christ and the bestowal of divine promises (2 Pt 3:4, 9). To share in the divine nature, escaping from a corrupt world, is a thought found elsewhere in the Bible but expressed only here in such Hellenistic terms, since it is said to be accomplished through knowledge (2 Pt 1:3); cf. 2 Pt 1:2; 2:20; but see also Jn 15:4; 17:22–23; Rom 8:14–17; Heb 3:14; 1 Jn 1:3; 3:2.

1:3 By his own glory and power: the most ancient papyrus and the best codex read “through glory and power.”

1:5–9 Note the climactic gradation of qualities (2 Pt 1:5–7), beginning with faith and leading to the fullness of Christian life, which is love; cf. Rom 5:3–4; Gal 5:6, 22 for a similar series of “virtues,” though the program and sense here are different than in Paul. The fruit of these is knowledge of Christ (2 Pt 1:8) referred to in 2 Pt 1:3; their absence is spiritual blindness (2 Pt 1:9).

1:10–11 Perseverance in the Christian vocation is the best preventative against losing it and the safest provision for attaining its goal, the kingdom. Kingdom of ... Christ, instead of “God,” is unusual; cf. Col 1:13 and Mt 13:41, as well as the righteousness of ... Christ (2 Pt 1:1).

1:12–19 The purpose in writing is to call to mind the apostle’s witness to the truth, even as he faces the end of his life (2 Pt 1:12–15), his eyewitness testimony to Christ (1 Pt 1:16–18), and the true prophetic message (2 Pt 1:19) through the Spirit in scripture (2 Pt 1:20–21), in contrast to what false teachers are setting forth (2 Pt 2).

1:13 Tent: a biblical image for transitory human life (Is 38:12), here combined with a verb that suggests not folding or packing up a tent but its being discarded in death (cf. 2 Cor 5:1–4).

1:16 Coming: in Greek parousia, used at 2 Pt 3:4, 12 of the second coming of Christ. The word was used in the extrabiblical writings for the visitation of someone in authority; in Greek cult and Hellenistic Judaism it was used for the manifestation of the divine presence. That the apostles made known has been interpreted to refer to Jesus’ transfiguration (2 Pt 1:17) or to his entire first coming or to his future coming in power (2 Pt 3).

1:17 The author assures the readers of the reliability of the apostolic message (including Jesus' power, glory, and coming; cf. note on 2 Pt 1:16) by appeal to the transfiguration of Jesus in glory (cf. Mt 17:1–8 and parallels) and by appeal to the prophetic message (2 Pt 1:19; perhaps Nm 24:17). Here, as elsewhere, the New Testament insists on continued reminders as necessary to preserve the historical facts about Jesus and the truths of the faith; cf. 2 Pt 3:1–2; 1 Cor 11:2; 15:1–3. My Son, my beloved: or, “my beloved Son.”

1:18 We: at Jesus' transfiguration, referring to Peter, James, and John (Mt 17:1).

1:20–21 Often cited, along with 2 Tm 3:16, on the “inspiration” of scripture or against private interpretation, these verses in context are directed against the false teachers of 2 Pt 2 and clever tales (2 Pt 1:16). The prophetic word in scripture comes admittedly through human beings (2 Pt 1:21), but moved by the holy Spirit, not from their own interpretation, and is a matter of what the author and Spirit intended, not the personal interpretation of false teachers. Instead of under the influence of God, some manuscripts read “holy ones of God.”

2:1–3 The pattern of false prophets among the Old Testament people of God will recur through false teachers in the church. Such destructive opinions of heretical sects bring loss of faith in Christ, contempt for the way of salvation (cf. 2 Pt 2:21), and immorality.

2:4–6 The false teachers will be punished just as surely and as severely as were the fallen angels (2 Pt 2:4; cf. Jude 6; Gn 6:1–4), the sinners of Noah's day (2 Pt 2:5; Gn 7:21–23), and the inhabitants of the cities of the Plain (2 Pt 2:6; Jude 7; Gn 19:25). Whereas there are three examples in Jude 5–7 (Exodus and wilderness; rebellious angels; Sodom and Gomorrah), 2 Peter omitted the first of these, has inserted a new illustration about Noah (2 Pt 2:5) between Jude's second and third examples, and listed the resulting three examples in their Old Testament order (Gn 6; 7; 19).

2:4 Chains of Tartarus: cf. Jude 6; other manuscripts in 2 Peter read “pits of Tartarus.” Tartarus: a term borrowed from Greek mythology to indicate the infernal regions.

2:5–10a Although God did not spare the sinful, he kept and saved the righteous, such as Noah (2 Pt 2:5) and Lot (2 Pt 2:7), and he knows how to rescue the devout (2 Pt 2:9), who are contrasted with the false teachers of the author's day. On Noah, cf. Gn 5:32–9:29, especially 7:1. On Lot, cf. Gn 13 and 19.

2:10b–22 Some take 2 Pt 2:10b, 11 with the preceding paragraph. Others begin the new paragraph with 2 Pt 2:10a, supplying from 2 Pt 2:9 The Lord knows how ... to keep ... under punishment, with reference to God and probably specifically Christ (2 Pt 2:1). The conduct of the false teachers is described and condemned in language similar to that of Jude 8–16. This arrogance knows no bounds; animal-like, they are due to be caught and destroyed. They seduce even those who have knowledge of Christ (2 Pt 2:20).

2:10b Glorious beings: literally, “glories”; cf. Jude 8. While some think that illustrious personages are meant or even political officials behind whom (fallen) angels stand, it is more likely that the reference is to glorious angelic beings (cf. Jude 9).

2:11 From the Lord: some manuscripts read “before the Lord”; cf. Jude 9.

2:13 Suffering wrong: some manuscripts read “receiving a reward.” In their deceits: some manuscripts read “in their love feasts” (Jude 12).

2:15 Balaam, the son of Bosor: in Nm 22:5, Balaam is said to be the son of Beor, and it is this name that turns up in a few ancient Greek manuscripts by way of “correction” of the text. Balaam is not portrayed in such a bad light in Nm 22. His evil reputation and his madness (2 Pt 2:16), and possibly his surname Bosor, may have come from a Jewish tradition about him in the first/second century, of which we no longer have any knowledge.

2:18 Barely escaped: some manuscripts read “really escaped.”

2:22 The second proverb is of unknown origin, while the first appears in Prv 26:11.

3:1–4 The false teachers not only flout Christian morality (cf. Jude 8–19); they also deny the second coming of Christ and the judgment (2 Pt 3:4; cf. 2 Pt 3:7). They seek to justify their licentiousness by arguing that the promised return of Christ has not been realized and the world is the same, no better than it was before (2 Pt 3:3–4). The author wishes to strengthen the faithful against such errors by reminding them in this second letter of the instruction in 1 Peter and of the teaching of the prophets and of Christ, conveyed through the apostles (2 Pt 3:1–2; cf. Jude 17); cf. 1 Pt 1:10–12, 16–21, especially 16–21; Eph 2:20.

3:3 Scoffers: cf. Jude 18, where, however, only the passions of the scoffers are mentioned, not a denial on their part of Jesus' parousia.

3:4–7 The false teachers tried to justify their immorality by pointing out that the promised coming (parousia) of the Lord has not yet occurred, even though early Christians expected it in their day. They thus insinuate that God is not guiding the world's history anymore, since nothing has changed and the first generation of Christians, our ancestors (2 Pt 3:4), has all died by this time. The author replies that, just as God destroyed the earth by water in the flood (2 Pt 3:5–6, cf. 2 Pt 2:5), so he will destroy it along with the false teachers on judgment day (2 Pt 3:7). The word of God, which called the world into being (Gn 1; Ps 33:6) and destroyed it by the waters of a flood, will destroy it again by fire on the day of judgment (2 Pt 3:5–7).

3:5 Formed out of water and through water: Gn 1:2, 6–8 is reflected as well as Greek views that water was the basic element from which all is derived.

3:6 Destroyed, deluged with water: cf. 2 Pt 2:5; Gn 7:11–8:2.

3:8–10 The scoffers' objection (2 Pt 3:4) is refuted also by showing that delay of the Lord's second coming is not a failure to fulfill his word but rather a sign of his patience: God is giving time for repentance before the final judgment (cf. Wis 11:23–26; Ez 18:23; 33:11).

3:8 Cf. Ps 90:4.

3:10 Like a thief: Mt 24:43; 1 Thes 5:2; Rev 3:3. Will be found out: cf. 1 Cor 3:13–15. Some few versions read, as the sense may demand, "will not be found out"; many manuscripts read "will be burned up"; there are further variants in other manuscripts, versions, and Fathers. Total destruction is assumed (2 Pt 3:11).

3:11–16 The second coming of Christ and the judgment of the world are the doctrinal bases for the moral exhortation to readiness through vigilance and a virtuous life; cf. Mt 24:42, 50–51; Lk 12:40; 1 Thes 5:1–11; Jude 20–21.

3:12 Flames ... fire: although this is the only New Testament passage about a final conflagration, the idea was common in apocalyptic and Greco-Roman thought. Hastening: eschatology is here used to motivate ethics (2 Pt 3:11), as elsewhere in the New Testament. Jewish sources and Acts 3:19–20 assume that proper ethical conduct can help bring the promised day of the Lord; cf. 2 Pt 3:9. Some render the phrase, however, "desiring it earnestly."

3:13 New heavens and a new earth: cf. Is 65:17; 66:22. The divine promises will be fulfilled after the day of judgment will have passed. The universe will be transformed by the reign of God's righteousness or justice; cf. Is 65:17–18; Acts 3:21; Rom 8:18–25; Rev 21:1.

3:16 These things: the teachings of this letter find parallels in Paul, e.g., God's will to save (Rom 2:4; 9:22–23; 1 Cor 1:7–8), the coming of Christ (1 Thes 4:16–17; 1 Cor 15:23–52), and preparedness for the judgment (Col 1:22–23; Eph 1:4–14; 4:30; 5:5–14). Other scriptures: used to guide the faith and life of the Christian community. The letters of Paul are thus here placed on the same level as books of the Old Testament. Possibly other New Testament writings could also be included.

3:17–18 To avoid the dangers of error and loss of stability, Christians are forewarned to be on guard and to grow in grace and knowledge (2 Pt 1:2) of Christ. The doxology (2 Pt 3:18) recalls 1 Pt 4:11. Some manuscripts add Amen.

The First Letter of John

1 2 3 4 5

See RG 562–65

Early Christian tradition identified this work as a letter of John the apostle. Because of its resemblance to the fourth gospel in style, vocabulary, and ideas, it is generally agreed that both works are the product of the same school of Johannine Christianity. The terminology and the presence or absence of certain theological ideas in 1 John suggest that it was written after the gospel; it may have been composed as a short treatise on ideas that were developed more fully in the fourth gospel. To others, the evidence suggests that 1 John was written after the fourth gospel as part of a debate on the proper interpretation of that gospel. Whatever its relation to the gospel, 1 John may be dated toward the end of the first century. Unlike 2 and 3 John, it lacks in form the salutation and epistolary conclusion of a letter. These features, its prologue, and its emphasis on doctrinal teaching make it more akin to a theological treatise than to most other New Testament letters.

The purpose of the letter is to combat certain false ideas, especially about Jesus, and to deepen the spiritual and social awareness of the Christian community (1 Jn 3:17). Some former members (1 Jn 2:19) of the community refused to acknowledge Jesus as the Christ (1 Jn 2:22) and denied that he was a true man (1 Jn 4:2). The specific heresy described in this letter cannot be identified exactly, but it is a form of docetism or gnosticism; the former doctrine denied the humanity of Christ to insure that his divinity was untainted, and the latter viewed the appearance of Christ as a mere stepping-stone to higher knowledge of God. These theological errors are rejected by an appeal to the reality and continuity of the apostolic witness to Jesus. The author affirms that authentic Christian love, ethics, and faith take place only within the historical revelation and sacrifice of Jesus Christ. The fullness of Christian life as fellowship with the Father must be based on true belief and result in charitable living; knowledge of God and love for one another are inseparable, and error in one area inevitably affects the other. Although the author recognizes that Christian doctrine presents intangible mysteries of faith about Christ, he insists that the concrete Christian life brings to light the deeper realities of the gospel.

The structure and language of the letter are straightforward yet repetitious. The author sets forth the striking contrasts between light and darkness, Christians and the world, and truth and error to illustrate the threats and responsibilities of Christian life. The result is not one of theological argument but one of intense religious conviction expressed in simple truths. The letter is of particular value for its declaration of the humanity and divinity of Christ as an apostolic teaching and for its development of the intrinsic connection between Christian moral conduct and Christian doctrine.

The principal divisions of the First Letter of John are the following:

- I. Prologue (1:1–4)
  - II. God as Light (1:5–3:10)
  - III. Love for One Another (3:11–5:12)
  - IV. Epilogue (5:13–21)

I. PROLOGUE

CHAPTER 1

See RG 563

The Word of Life

- <sup>1a*</sup>What was from the beginning, what we have heard,
what we have seen with our eyes, what we looked upon and touched with our hands concerns the Word of life—
- <sup>2b</sup>for the life was made visible;
we have seen it and testify to it and proclaim to you the eternal life that was with the Father and was made visible to us—
- <sup>3c</sup>what we have seen and heard we proclaim now to you, so that you too may have fellowship with us;
for our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son, Jesus Christ.
- <sup>4d</sup>We are writing this so that our joy may be complete.

II. GOD AS LIGHT

God Is Light. <sup>5*</sup>Now this is the message that we have heard from him and proclaim to you: God is light, and in him there is no darkness at all. <sup>6e</sup>If we say, “We have fellowship with him,” while we continue to walk in darkness, we lie and do not act in truth. <sup>7f</sup>But if we walk in the light as he is in the light, then we have fellowship with one another, and the blood of his Son Jesus cleanses us from all sin. <sup>8g*</sup>If we say, “We are without sin,” we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. <sup>9h</sup>If we acknowledge our sins, he is faithful and just and will forgive our sins and cleanse us from every wrongdoing. <sup>10</sup>*i*If we say, “We have not sinned,” we make him a liar, and his word is not in us.

CHAPTER 2

See RG 563–64

Christ and His Commandments. <sup>1j*</sup>My children, I am writing this to you so that you may not commit sin. But if anyone does sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous one. <sup>2k</sup>He is expiation for our sins, and not for our sins only but for those of the whole world. <sup>3l*</sup>The way we may be sure that we know him is to keep his commandments. <sup>4m</sup>Whoever says, “I know him,” but does not keep his commandments is a liar, and the truth is not in him. <sup>5n</sup>But whoever keeps his word, the love of God is truly perfected in him. This is the way we may know that we are in union with him: <sup>6</sup> whoever claims to abide in him ought to live [just] as he lived.

The New Commandment. <sup>7o*</sup>Beloved, I am writing no new commandment to you but an old commandment that you had from the beginning. The old commandment is the word that you have heard. <sup>8p*</sup>And yet I do write a new commandment to you, which holds true in him and among you, for the darkness is passing away, and the true light is already shining. <sup>9q</sup>Whoever says he is in the light, yet hates his brother, is still in the darkness. <sup>10r</sup>Whoever loves his brother remains in the light, and there is nothing in him to cause a fall. <sup>11</sup>Whoever hates his brother is in darkness; he walks in darkness and does not know where he is going because the darkness has blinded his eyes.

<sup>13t</sup>I am writing to you, fathers, because you know him who is from the beginning.

I am writing to you, young men, because you have conquered the evil one.

<sup>14</sup>I write to you, children, because you know the Father.

I write to you, fathers, because you know him who is from the beginning.

I write to you, young men, because you are strong and the word of God remains in you, and you have conquered the evil one.

<sup>15u*</sup>Do not love the world or the things of the world. If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him. <sup>16*</sup>For all that is in the world, sensual lust, enticement for the eyes, and a pretentious life, is not from the Father but is from the world. <sup>17v</sup>Yet the world and its enticement are passing away. But whoever does the will of God remains forever.

Antichrists. <sup>18w*</sup>Children, it is the last hour; and just as you heard that the antichrist was coming, so now many antichrists have appeared. Thus we know this is the last hour. <sup>19*</sup>They went out from us, but they were not really of our number; if they had been, they would have remained with us. Their desertion shows that none of them was of our number. <sup>20x*</sup>But you have the anointing that comes from the holy one, and you all have knowledge. <sup>21y</sup>I write to you not because you do not know the truth but because you do, and because every lie is alien to the truth. <sup>22z*</sup>Who is the liar? Whoever denies that Jesus is the Christ. Whoever denies the Father and the Son, this is the antichrist. <sup>23a</sup>No one who denies the Son has the Father, but whoever confesses the Son has the Father as well.

Life from God's Anointing. <sup>24b*</sup>Let what you heard from the beginning remain in you. If what you heard from the beginning remains in you, then you will remain in the Son and in the Father. <sup>25c</sup>And this is the promise that he made us: eternal life. <sup>26</sup>I write you these things about those who would deceive you. <sup>27</sup>As for you, the anointing that you received from him remains in you, so that you do not need anyone to teach you. But his anointing teaches you about everything and is true and not false; just as it taught you, remain in him.

Children of God. <sup>28*</sup>And now, children, remain in him, so that when he appears we may have confidence and not be put to shame by him at his coming. <sup>29</sup>If you consider that he is righteous, you also know that everyone who acts in righteousness is begotten by him.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1d*</sup>See what love the Father has bestowed on us that we may be called the children of God. Yet so we are. The reason the world does not know us is that it did not know him. <sup>2e*</sup>Beloved, we are God's children now; what we shall be has not yet been revealed. We do know that when it is revealed we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. <sup>3f</sup>Everyone who has this hope based on him makes himself pure, as he is pure.

Avoiding Sin. <sup>4*</sup>Everyone who commits sin commits lawlessness, for sin is lawlessness. <sup>5g</sup>You know that he was revealed to take away sins, and in him there is no sin. <sup>6</sup>No one who remains in him sins; no one who sins has seen him or known him. <sup>7</sup>Children, let no one deceive you. The person who acts in righteousness is righteous, just as he is righteous. <sup>8h</sup>Whoever sins belongs to the devil, because the devil has sinned from the beginning. Indeed, the Son of God was revealed to destroy the works of the devil. <sup>9*</sup>No one who is begotten by God commits sin, because God's seed remains in him; he cannot sin because he is begotten by God. <sup>10</sup>In this way, the children of God and the children of the devil are made plain; no one who fails to act in righteousness belongs to God, nor anyone who does not love his brother.

III. LOVE FOR ONE ANOTHER

<sup>11i*</sup>For this is the message you have heard from the beginning: we should love one another, <sup>12 j</sup>unlike Cain who belonged to the evil one and slaughtered his brother. Why did he slaughter him? Because his own works were evil, and those of his brother righteous. <sup>13k</sup>Do not be amazed, [then,] brothers, if the world hates you. <sup>14l</sup>We know that we have passed from death to life because we love our brothers. Whoever does not love remains in death. <sup>15m</sup>Everyone who hates his brother is a murderer, and you know that no murderer has eternal life remaining in him. <sup>16n</sup>The way we came to know love was that he laid down his life for us; so we ought to lay down our lives for our brothers. <sup>17o</sup>If someone who has worldly means sees a brother in need and refuses him compassion, how can the love of God remain in him? <sup>18p</sup>Children, let us love not in word or speech but in deed and truth.

Confidence Before God. <sup>19*</sup>[Now] this is how we shall know that we belong to the truth and reassure our hearts before him <sup>20i</sup>in whatever our hearts condemn, for God is greater than our hearts and knows everything. <sup>21</sup>Beloved, if [our] hearts do not condemn us, we have confidence in God <sup>22q</sup>and receive from him whatever we ask, because we keep his commandments and do what pleases him. <sup>23r</sup> And his commandment is this: we should believe in the name of his Son, Jesus Christ, and love one another just as he commanded us. <sup>24s</sup>Those who keep his commandments remain in him, and he in them, and the way we know that he remains in us is from the Spirit that he gave us.

CHAPTER 4

Testing the Spirits. <sup>1t*</sup>Beloved, do not trust every spirit but test the spirits to see whether they belong to God, because many false prophets have gone out into the world. <sup>2u</sup>This is how you can know the Spirit of God: every spirit that acknowledges Jesus Christ come in the flesh belongs to God, <sup>3v*</sup>and every spirit that does not acknowledge Jesus does not belong to God. This is the spirit of the antichrist that, as you heard, is to come, but in fact is already in the world. <sup>4</sup>You belong to God, children, and you have conquered them, for the one who is in you is greater than the one who is in the world. <sup>5w</sup>They belong to the world; accordingly, their teaching belongs to the world, and the world listens to them. <sup>6x</sup>We belong to God, and anyone who knows God listens to us, while anyone who does not belong to God refuses to hear us. This is how we know the spirit of truth and the spirit of deceit.

God's Love and Christian Life. <sup>7*</sup>Beloved, let us love one another, because love is of God; everyone who loves is begotten by God and knows God. <sup>8</sup>Whoever is without love does not know God, for God is love. <sup>9y</sup>In this way the love of God was revealed to us: God sent his only Son into the world so that we might have life through him. <sup>10z</sup>In this is love: not that we have loved God, but that he loved us and sent his Son as expiation for our sins. <sup>11</sup> Beloved, if God so loved us, we also must love one another. <sup>12a</sup>No one has ever seen God. Yet, if we love one another, God remains in us, and his love is brought to perfection in us.

<sup>13*</sup>This is how we know that we remain in him and he in us, that he has given us of his Spirit. <sup>14</sup> Moreover, we have seen and testify that the Father sent his Son as savior of the world. <sup>15</sup>Whoever acknowledges that Jesus is the Son of God, God remains in him and he in God. <sup>16</sup> We have come to know and to believe in the love God has for us.

God is love, and whoever remains in love remains in God and God in him. <sup>17b</sup>In this is love brought to perfection among us, that we have confidence on the day of judgment because as he is, so are we in this world. <sup>18</sup>There is no fear in love, but perfect love drives out fear because fear has to do with punishment, and so one who fears is not yet perfect in love. <sup>19</sup>We love because he first loved us. <sup>20c*</sup>If anyone says, "I love God," but hates his brother, he is a liar; for whoever does not love a brother whom he has seen cannot love God whom he has not seen. <sup>21d</sup>This is the commandment we have from him: whoever loves God must also love his brother.

CHAPTER 5

Faith Is Victory over the World. <sup>1e*</sup>Everyone who believes that Jesus is the Christ is begotten by God, and everyone who loves the father loves [also] the one begotten by him. <sup>2</sup> In this way we know that we love the children of God when we love God and obey his commandments. <sup>3f</sup>For the love of God is this, that we keep his commandments. And his commandments are not burdensome, <sup>4g</sup>for whoever is begotten by God conquers the world. And the victory that conquers the world is our faith. <sup>5h</sup>Who [indeed] is the victor over the world but the one who believes that Jesus is the Son of God?

<sup>6i*</sup>This is the one who came through water and blood, Jesus Christ, not by water alone, but by water and blood. The Spirit is the one that testifies, and the Spirit is truth. <sup>7</sup>So there are three that testify, <sup>8j</sup>the Spirit, the water, and the blood, and the three are of one accord. <sup>9k</sup>If we accept human testimony, the testimony of God is surely greater. Now the testimony of God is this, that he has testified on behalf of his Son. <sup>10 l</sup>Whoever believes in the Son of God has this testimony within himself. Whoever does not believe God has made him a liar by not believing the testimony God has given about his Son. <sup>11m</sup>And this is the testimony: God gave us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. <sup>12</sup>Whoever possesses the Son has life; whoever does not possess the Son of God does not have life.

IV. EPILOGUE

Prayer for Sinners. <sup>13n*</sup>I write these things to you so that you may know that you have eternal life, you who believe in the name of the Son of God. <sup>14o</sup>And we have this confidence in him, that if we ask anything according to his will, he hears us. <sup>15</sup>And if we know that he hears us in regard to whatever we ask, we know that what we have asked him for is ours. <sup>16p</sup>If anyone sees his brother sinning, if the sin is not deadly, he should pray to God and he will give him life. This is only for those whose sin is not deadly. There is such a thing as deadly sin, about which I do not say that you should pray. <sup>17</sup>All wrongdoing is sin, but there is sin that is not deadly.

<sup>18</sup>We know that no one begotten by God sins; but the one begotten by God he protects, and the evil one cannot touch him. <sup>19</sup>We know that we belong to God, and the whole world is under the power of the evil one. <sup>20q</sup>We also know that the Son of God has come and has given us discernment to know the one who is true. And we are in the one who is true, in his Son Jesus Christ. He is the true God and eternal life. <sup>21</sup> Children, be on your guard against idols.

1:1–4 There is a striking parallel to the prologue of the gospel of John (Jn 1:1–18), but the emphasis here is not on the preexistent Word but rather on the apostles' witness to the incarnation of life by their experience of the historical Jesus. He is the Word of life (1 Jn 1:1; cf. Jn 1:4), the eternal life that was with the Father and was made visible (1 Jn 1:2; cf. Jn 1:14), and was heard, seen, looked upon, and touched by the apostles. The purpose of their teaching is to share that life, called fellowship ... with the Father and with his Son, Jesus Christ, with those who receive their witness (1 Jn 1:3; Jn 1:14, 16).

1:5–7 Light is to be understood here as truth and goodness; darkness here is error and depravity (cf. Jn 3:19–21; 17:17; Eph 5:8). To walk in light or darkness is to live according to truth or error, not merely intellectual but moral as well. Fellowship with God and with one another consists in a life according to the truth as found in God and in Christ.

1:8–10 Denial of the condition of sin is self-deception and even contradictory of divine revelation; there is also the continual possibility of sin's recurrence. Forgiveness and deliverance from sin through Christ are assured through acknowledgment of them and repentance.

2:1 Children: like the term "beloved," this is an expression of pastoral love (cf. Jn 13:33; 21:5; 1 Cor 4:14). Advocate: for the use of the term, see Jn 14:16. Forgiveness of sin is assured through Christ's intercession and expiation or "offering"; the death of Christ effected the removal of sin.

2:3–6 The way we may be sure: to those who claim, "I have known Christ and therefore I know him," our author insists on not mere intellectual knowledge but obedience to God's commandments in a life conformed to the example of Christ; this confirms our knowledge of him and is the love of God ... perfected. Disparity between moral life and the commandments proves improper belief.

2:7–11 The author expresses the continuity and freshness of mutual charity in Christian experience. Through Christ the commandment of love has become the light defeating the darkness of evil in a new age. All hatred as darkness is incompatible with the light and Christian life. Note also the characteristic Johannine polemic in which a positive assertion is emphasized by the negative statement of its opposite.

2:8 Which holds true in him and among you: literally, “a thing that holds true in him and in you.”

2:12–17 The Christian community that has experienced the grace of God through forgiveness of sin and knowledge of Christ is armed against the evil one.

2:12 For his name’s sake: because of Christ our sins are forgiven.

2:15 The world: all that is hostile toward God and alienated from him. Love of the world and love of God are thus mutually exclusive; cf. Jas 4:4.

2:16 Sensual lust: literally, “the lust of the flesh,” inordinate desire for physical gratification. Enticement for the eyes: literally, “the lust of the eyes,” avarice or covetousness; the eyes are regarded as the windows of the soul. Pretentious life: literally, “pride of life,” arrogance or ostentation in one’s earthly style of life that reflects a willful independence from God and others.

2:18 It is the last hour: literally, “a last hour,” the period between the death and resurrection of Christ and his second coming. The antichrist: opponent or adversary of Christ; the term appears only in 1 John–2 John, but “pseudochrists” (translated “false messiahs”) in Mt 24:24 and Mk 13:22, and Paul’s “lawless one” in 2 Thes 2:3, are similar figures. Many antichrists: Matthew, Mark, and Revelation seem to indicate a collectivity of persons, here related to the false teachers.

2:19 Not really of our number: the apostate teachers only proved their lack of faith by leaving the community.

2:20 The anointing that comes from the holy one: this anointing is in the Old Testament sense of receiving the Spirit of God. The holy one probably refers to Christ. True knowledge is the gift of the Spirit (cf. Is 11:2), and the function of the Spirit is to lead Christians to the truth (Jn 14:17, 26; 16:13).

2:22–23 Certain gnostics denied that the earthly Jesus was the Christ; to deny knowledge of the Son is to deny the Father, since only through the Son has God been fully revealed (Jn 1:18; 14:8–9).

2:24 Continuity with the apostolic witness as proclaimed in the prologue is the safeguard of right belief.

2:28–29 Our confidence at his judgment is based on the daily assurance of salvation. Our actions reflect our true relation to him.

3:1–3 The greatest sign of God’s love is the gift of his Son (Jn 3:16) that has made Christians true children of God. This relationship is a present reality and also part of the life to come; true knowledge of God will ultimately be gained, and Christians prepare themselves now by virtuous lives in imitation of the Son.

3:2 When it is revealed: or “when he is revealed” (the subject of the verb could be Christ).

3:4 Lawlessness: a reference to the activity of the antichrist, so it is expressed as hostility toward God and a rejection of Christ. The author goes on to contrast the states of sin and righteousness. Christians do not escape sin but realize that when they sin they cease to have fellowship with God. Virtue and sin distinguish the children of God from the children of the devil.

3:9 A habitual sinner is a child of the devil, while a child of God, who by definition is in fellowship with God, cannot sin. Seed: Christ or the Spirit who shares the nature of God with the Christian.

3:11–18 Love, even to the point of self-sacrifice, is the point of the commandment. The story of Cain and Abel (1 Jn 3:12–15; Gn 4:1–16) presents the rivalry of two brothers, in a contrast of evil and righteousness, where envy led to murder. For Christians, proof of deliverance is love toward others, after the example of Christ. This includes concrete acts of charity, out of our material abundance.

3:19–24 Living a life of faith in Jesus and of Christian love assures us of abiding in God no matter what our feelings may at times tell us. Our obedience gives us confidence in prayer and trust in God's judgment. This obedience includes our belief in Christ and love for one another.

3:19b–20 This difficult passage may also be translated "we shall be at peace before him in whatever our hearts condemn, for ..." or "and before God we shall convince our hearts, if our hearts condemn us, that God is greater than our hearts."

4:1–6 Deception is possible in spiritual phenomena and may be tested by its relation to Christian doctrine (cf. 1 Cor 12:3): those who fail to acknowledge Jesus Christ in the flesh are false prophets and belong to the antichrist. Even though these false prophets are well received in the world, the Christian who belongs to God has a greater power in the truth.

4:3 Does not acknowledge Jesus: some ancient manuscripts add "Christ" and/or "to have come in the flesh" (cf. 1 Jn 4:2), and others read "every spirit that annuls (or severs) Jesus."

4:7–12 Love as we share in it testifies to the nature of God and to his presence in our lives. One who loves shows that one is a child of God and knows God, for God's very being is love; one without love is without God. The revelation of the nature of God's love is found in the free gift of his Son to us, so that we may share life with God and be delivered from our sins. The love we have for one another must be of the same sort: authentic, merciful; this unique Christian love is our proof that we know God and can "see" the invisible God.

4:13–21 The testimony of the Spirit and that of faith join the testimony of love to confirm our knowledge of God. Our love is grounded in the confession of Jesus as the Son of God and the example of God's love for us. Christian life is founded on the knowledge of God as love and on his continuing presence that relieves us from fear of judgment (1 Jn 4:16–18). What Christ is gives us confidence, even as we live and love in this world. Yet Christian love is not abstract but lived in the concrete manner of love for one another.

4:20 Cannot love God: some ancient manuscripts read "how can he love ... ?"

5:1–5 Children of God are identified not only by their love for others (1 Jn 4:7–9) and for God (1 Jn 5:1–2) but by their belief in the divine sonship of Jesus Christ. Faith, the acceptance of Jesus in his true character and the obedience in love to God's commands (1 Jn 5:3), is the source of the Christian's power in the world and conquers the world of evil (1 Jn 5:4–5), even as Christ overcame the world (Jn 16:33).

5:6–12 Water and blood (1 Jn 5:6) refers to Christ's baptism (Mt 3:16–17) and to the shedding of his blood on the cross (Jn 19:34). The Spirit was present at the baptism (Mt 3:16; Mk 1:10; Lk 3:22; Jn 1:32, 34). The testimony to Christ as the Son of God is confirmed by divine witness (1 Jn 5:7–9), greater by far than the two legally required human witnesses (Dt 17:6). To deny this is to deny God's truth; cf. Jn 8:17–18. The gist of the divine witness or testimony is that eternal life (1 Jn 5:11–12) is given in Christ and nowhere else. To possess the Son is not acceptance of a doctrine but of a person who lives now and provides life.

5:13–21 As children of God we have confidence in prayer because of our intimate relationship with him (1 Jn 5:14–15). In love, we pray (1 Jn 5:16–17) for those who are in sin, but not in deadly sin (literally, "sin unto death"), probably referring to apostasy or activities brought on under the antichrist; cf. Mk 3:29; Heb 6:4–6; 10:26–31. Even in the latter case, however, prayer, while not enjoined, is not forbidden. The letter concludes with a summary of the themes of the letter (1 Jn 5:18–20). There is a sharp antithesis between the children of God and those belonging to the world and to the evil one. The Son reveals the God of truth; Christians dwell in the true God, in his Son, and have eternal life. The final verse (1 Jn 5:21) voices a perennial warning about idols, any type of rival to God.

The Second Letter of John

See RG 565–66

Written in response to similar problems, the Second and Third Letters of John are of the same length, perhaps determined by the practical consideration of the writing space on one piece of papyrus. In each letter the writer calls himself “the Presbyter,” and their common authorship is further evidenced by internal similarities in style and wording, especially in the introductions and conclusions. The literary considerations that link 2 John and 3 John also link them with the First Letter and the Gospel of John. The concern with “truth,” christology, mutual love, the new commandment, antichrist, and the integrity of witness to the earthly Jesus mark these works as products of the Johannine school. The identity of the Presbyter is problematic. The use of the title implies more than age, and refers to his position of leadership in the early church. The absence of a proper name indicates that he was well known and acknowledged in authority by the communities to which he writes. Although traditionally attributed to John the apostle, these letters were probably written by a disciple or scribe of an apostle. The traditional place and date of composition, Ephesus at the end of the first century, are plausible for both letters.

The Second Letter is addressed to “the chosen Lady” and “to her children.” This literary image of a particular Christian community reflects the specific destination and purpose of the letter. Unlike 1 John, this brief letter is not a theological treatise but a reply to problems within the church. The Johannine themes of love and truth are used to support practical advice on Christian living. The Presbyter encourages community members to show their Christianity by adhering to the great commandment of mutual love and to the historical truth about Jesus. The false teaching present among them is a spiritualizing christology that may tempt some members to discount teachings about the incarnation and death of Jesus the Christ; cf. 1 Jn 4:2. For their protection the Presbyter forbids hospitality toward unknown or “progressive” Christians to prevent their infiltration of the community. The Second Letter preserves the Johannine concerns of doctrinal purity and active love in the form of pastoral advice to a threatened community.

See RG 565–66

<sup>1a*</sup>The Presbyter to the chosen Lady and to her children whom I love in truth—and not only I but also all who know the truth—<sup>2</sup>because of the truth that dwells in us and will be with us forever. <sup>3*</sup>Grace, mercy, and peace will be with us from God the Father and from Jesus Christ the Father’s Son in truth and love.

<sup>4b*</sup>I rejoiced greatly to find some of your children walking in the truth just as we were commanded by the Father. <sup>5c</sup>But now, Lady, I ask you, not as though I were writing a new commandment but the one we have had from the beginning: let us love one another. <sup>6d*</sup>For this is love, that we walk according to his commandments; this is the commandment, as you heard from the beginning, in which you should walk.

<sup>7e*</sup>Many deceivers have gone out into the world, those who do not acknowledge Jesus Christ as coming in the flesh; such is the deceitful one and the antichrist. <sup>8*</sup>Look to yourselves that you do not lose what we worked for but may receive a full recompense. <sup>9f*</sup>Anyone who is so “progressive” as not to remain in the teaching of the Christ does not have God; whoever remains in the teaching has the Father and the Son. <sup>10g*</sup>If anyone comes to you and does not bring this doctrine, do not receive him in your house or even greet him; <sup>11</sup> for whoever greets him shares in his evil works.

<sup>12h*</sup>Although I have much to write to you, I do not intend to use paper and ink. Instead, I hope to visit you and to speak face to face so that our joy may be complete. <sup>13*</sup>The children of your chosen sister send you greetings.

1 The chosen Lady: literally, “elected”; this could also be translated “Kyria (a woman’s name) chosen (by God)” or “the lady Electa” or “Electa Kyria.” The adjective “chosen” is applied to all Christians at the beginning of other New Testament letters (1 Pt 1:1; Ti 1:1). The description is of a specific community with “children” who are its members. The truth: the affirmation of Jesus in the flesh and in contrast to false teaching (2 Jn 7).

3 Grace, mercy, and peace: like 1 Timothy; 2 Timothy this letter adds mercy to the terms used frequently in a salutation to describe Christian blessing; it appears only here in the Johannine writings. The author also puts the blessing in relation to truth and love, the watchwords of the Johannine teaching. The Father’s Son: the title that affirms the close relationship of Christ to God; similar variations of this title occur elsewhere (Jn 1:14; 3:35), but the precise wording is not found elsewhere in the New Testament.

4 Some of your children: this refers to those whom the Presbyter has recently encountered, but it may also indicate the presence of false doctrine in the community: the Presbyter encourages those who have remained faithful. Walking in the truth: an expression used in the Johannine writings to describe a way of living in which the Christian faith is visibly expressed; cf. 1 Jn 1:6–7; 2:6, 11; 3 Jn 3.

7 The antichrist: see 1 Jn 2:18–19, 22; 4:3.

8 You (plural): it is not certain whether this means the Christians addressed or includes the Presbyter, since some of the ancient Greek manuscripts and Greek Fathers have “we.”

9 Anyone who is so “progressive”: literally, “Anyone who goes ahead.” Some gnostic groups held the doctrine of the Christ come in the flesh to be a first step in belief, which the more advanced and spiritual believer surpassed and abandoned in his knowledge of the spiritual Christ. The author affirms that fellowship with God may be gained only by holding to the complete doctrine of Jesus Christ (1 Jn 2:22–23; 4:2; 5:5–6).

10–11 At this time false teachers were considered so dangerous and divisive as to be shunned completely. From this description they seem to be wandering preachers. We see here a natural suspicion of early Christians concerning such itinerants and can envisage the problems faced by missionaries such as those mentioned in 3 Jn 10.

The Third Letter of John

See RG 566–67

The Third Letter of John preserves a brief glimpse into the problems of missionary activity and local autonomy in the early church. In contrast to the other two letters of John, this work was addressed to a specific individual, Gaius. This letter is less theological in content and purpose. The author's goal was to secure hospitality and material support for his missionaries, and the Presbyter is writing to another member of the church who has welcomed missionaries in the past. The Presbyter commends Gaius for his hospitality and encourages his future help. He indicates he may come to challenge the policy of Diotrephes that is based on evil gossip.

The problems of the Presbyter in this short letter provide us with valuable evidence of the flexible and personal nature of authority in the early church. The Presbyter writes to Gaius, whom perhaps he had converted or instructed, on the basis of their personal links. The brothers have also confirmed him as a loyal Christian in action and belief. Gaius accepted the missionaries from the Presbyter and presumably will accept Demetrius on the Presbyter's recommendation. In contrast, Diotrephes refuses to receive either letters or friends of the Presbyter. Although he is portrayed as ambitious and hostile, he perhaps exemplifies the cautious and sectarian nature of early Christianity; for its own protection the local community mistrusted missionaries as false teachers. Most interestingly, Diotrephes seems comfortable in ignoring the requests of the Presbyter. The Presbyter seems to acknowledge that only a personal confrontation with Diotrephes will remedy the situation (3 Jn 10). The division, however, may also rest on doctrinal disagreement in which Gaius and the other "friends" accept the teaching of the Presbyter, and Diotrephes does not; the missionaries are not received for suspicion of theological error. Diotrephes has thus been viewed by some as an overly ambitious local upstart trying to thwart the advance of orthodox Christianity, by others as an orthodox church official suspicious of the teachings of the Presbyter and those in the Johannine school who think as he does, or by still others as a local leader anxious to keep the debates in the Johannine community out of his own congregation.

This brief letter and the situation that it mirrors show us how little we know about some details of early development in the church: schools of opinion existed around which questions of faith and life were discussed, and personal ties as well as doctrine and authority played a role in what happened amid divisions and unity.

<sup>2</sup>Beloved, I hope you are prospering in every respect and are in good health, just as your soul is prospering. <sup>3b*</sup>I rejoiced greatly when some of the brothers came and testified to how truly you walk in the truth. <sup>4c</sup>Nothing gives me greater joy than to hear that my children are walking in the truth.

<sup>5d*</sup>Beloved, you are faithful in all you do for the brothers, especially for strangers; <sup>6e*</sup>they have testified to your love before the church. Please help them in a way worthy of God to continue their journey. <sup>7*</sup>For they have set out for the sake of the Name and are accepting nothing from the pagans. <sup>8</sup>Therefore, we ought to support such persons, so that we may be co-workers in the truth.

<sup>9*</sup>I wrote to the church, but Diotrephes, who loves to dominate, does not acknowledge us. <sup>10*</sup>Therefore, if I come, I will draw attention to what he is doing, spreading evil nonsense about us. And not content with that, he will not receive the brothers, hindering those who wish to do so and expelling them from the church.

<sup>11f*</sup> Beloved, do not imitate evil but imitate good. Whoever does what is good is of God; whoever does what is evil has never seen God. <sup>12g*</sup>Demetrius receives a good report from all, even from the truth itself. We give our testimonial as well, and you know our testimony is true.

<sup>13h</sup>I have much to write to you, but I do not wish to write with pen and ink. <sup>14</sup> Instead, I hope to see you soon, when we can talk face to face. <sup>15i*</sup>Peace be with you. The friends greet you; greet the friends there each by name.

1 Beloved Gaius: a frequent form of address for fellow Christians in New Testament epistolary literature.

3 The brothers: in this letter, the term may refer to Christians who have been missionaries and received hospitality from Gaius (3 Jn 5–6). Walk in the truth: the common Johannine term to describe Christian living; this description presents Gaius as following the teachings of the Presbyter in contrast to Diotrephes.

5 You are faithful in all you do: Gaius's aid to the missionaries is a manifestation of his true Christian faith.

6 Help them ... to continue their journey: the Presbyter asks Gaius not only to continue to welcome the missionaries to his community but also to equip them for further travels.

7 The Name: of Jesus Christ (cf. Acts 5:41; 1 Jn 2:12; 3:23; 5:13). Accepting nothing: not expecting support from the pagans to whom they preach the gospel, so that they will not be considered as beggars; they required support from other Christians; cf. Paul's complaints to the Corinthians (1 Cor 9:3–12).

9 Who loves to dominate: the Presbyter does not deny Diotrephes' place as leader but indicates that his ambition may have caused him to disregard his letter and his influence.

10 If I come: the Presbyter may visit the community to challenge the actions of Diotrephes toward himself and the missionaries. Will not receive the brothers: Diotrephes may have been critical of the teachings of the Presbyter and sought to maintain doctrinal purity; cf. 1 Jn 2:19 and 2 Jn 10–11.

11 Do not imitate evil: Gaius should not be influenced by the behavior of Diotrephes.

12 Demetrius: because of the fear of false teachers, Demetrius, perhaps the bearer of the letter, is provided with a recommendation from the Presbyter; cf. 2 Cor 3:1; Rom 16:1. Even from the truth itself: this refers probably to the manner of Demetrius's life that testifies to his true belief; cf. Gaius above (3 Jn 3).

15 Friends: although a Johannine term for Christians (Jn 15:15), the word here may refer to those in the community loyal to the Presbyter and to Gaius.

The Letter of Jude

See RG 568–69

This letter is by its address attributed to “Jude, a slave of Jesus Christ and brother of James” (Jude 1). Since he is not identified as an apostle, this designation can hardly be meant to refer to the Jude or Judas who is listed as one of the Twelve (Lk 6:16; Acts 1:13; cf. Jn 14:22). The person intended is almost certainly the other Jude, named in the gospels among the relatives of Jesus (Mt 13:55; Mk 6:3), and the James who is listed there as his brother is the one to whom the Letter of James is attributed (see the Introduction to James). Nothing else is known of this Jude, and the apparent need to identify him by reference to his better-known brother indicates that he was a rather obscure personage in the early church.

The letter is addressed in the most general terms to “those who are called, beloved in God the Father and kept safe for Jesus Christ” (Jude 1), hence apparently to all Christians. But since its purpose is to warn the addressees against false teachers, the author must have had in mind one or more specific Christian communities located in the unidentified region where the errors in question constituted a danger. While the letter contains some Semitic features, there is nothing to identify the addressees specifically as Jewish Christians; indeed, the errors envisaged seem to reflect an early form of gnosticism, opposed to law, that points rather to the cultural context of the Gentile world. Like James and 2 Peter, the Letter of Jude manifests none of the typical features of the letter form except the address.

There is so much similarity between Jude and 2 Peter, especially Jude 4–16 and 2 Pt 2:1–18, that there must be a literary relationship between them. Since there is no evidence for the view that both authors borrowed from the same source, it is usually supposed that one of them borrowed from the other. Most scholars believe that Jude is the earlier of the two, principally because he quotes two apocryphal Jewish works, the Assumption of Moses (Jude 9) and the Book of Enoch (Jude 14–15) as part of his structured argument, whereas 2 Peter omits both references. Since there was controversy in the early church about the propriety of citing noncanonical literature that included legendary material, it is more probable that a later writer would omit such references than that he would add them.

Many interpreters today consider Jude a pseudonymous work dating from the end of the first century or even later. In support of this view they adduce the following arguments: (a) the apostles are referred to as belonging to an age that has receded into the past (Jude 17–18); (b) faith is understood as a body of doctrine handed down by a process of tradition (Jude 3); (c) the author's competent Greek style shows that he must have had a Hellenistic cultural formation; (d) the gnostic character of the errors envisaged fits better into the early second century than into a period several decades earlier. While impressive, these arguments are not entirely compelling and do not completely rule out the possibility of composition around the year A.D. 80, when the historical Jude may still have been alive.

This little letter is an urgent note by an author who intended to write more fully about salvation to an unknown group of readers, but who was forced by dangers from false teachers worming their way into the community (Jude 3–4) to dash off a warning against them (Jude 5–16) and to deliver some pressing Christian admonitions (Jude 17–23). The letter is justly famous for its majestic closing doxology (Jude 24–25).

See RG 568–69

Address and Greeting. <sup>1a*</sup>Jude, a slave of Jesus Christ and brother of James, to those who are called, beloved in God the Father and kept safe for Jesus Christ: <sup>2b</sup>may mercy, peace, and love be yours in abundance.

Occasion for Writing. <sup>3c*</sup>Beloved, although I was making every effort to write to you about our common salvation, I now feel a need to write to encourage you to contend for the faith that was once for all handed down to the holy ones. <sup>4d</sup>For there have been some intruders, who long ago were designated for this condemnation, godless persons, who pervert the grace of our God into licentiousness and who deny our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ.

The False Teachers. <sup>5e*</sup>I wish to remind you, although you know all things, that [the] Lord who once saved a people from the land of Egypt later destroyed those who did not believe. <sup>6f*</sup>The angels too, who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling, he has kept in eternal chains, in gloom, for the judgment of the great day. <sup>7g*</sup>Likewise, Sodom, Gomorrah, and the surrounding towns, which, in the same manner as they, indulged in sexual promiscuity and practiced unnatural vice, serve as an example by undergoing a punishment of eternal fire.

<sup>8*</sup>Similarly, these dreamers nevertheless also defile the flesh, scorn lordship, and revile glorious beings. <sup>9h*</sup>Yet the archangel Michael, when he argued with the devil in a dispute over the body of Moses, did not venture to pronounce a reviling judgment upon him but said, “May the Lord rebuke you!” <sup>10i</sup>But these people revile what they do not understand and are destroyed by what they know by nature like irrational animals. <sup>11 j*</sup>Woe to them! They followed the way of Cain, abandoned themselves to Balaam’s error for the sake of gain, and perished in the rebellion of Korah. <sup>12k*</sup>These are blemishes on your love feasts, as they carouse fearlessly and look after themselves. They are waterless clouds blown about by winds, fruitless trees in late autumn, twice dead and uprooted. <sup>13</sup>They are like wild waves of the sea, foaming up their shameless deeds, wandering stars for whom the gloom of darkness has been reserved forever.

<sup>14l*</sup>Enoch, of the seventh generation from Adam, prophesied also about them when he said, “Behold, the Lord has come with his countless holy ones <sup>15</sup>to execute judgment on all and to convict everyone for all the godless deeds that they committed and for all the harsh words godless sinners have uttered against him.” <sup>16m</sup>These people are complainers, disgruntled ones who live by their desires; their mouths utter bombast as they fawn over people to gain advantage.

Exhortations. <sup>17n</sup>But you, beloved, remember the words spoken beforehand by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, <sup>18o*</sup>for they told you, “In [the] last time there will be scoffers who will live according to their own godless desires.” <sup>19p</sup>These are the ones who cause divisions; they live on the natural plane, devoid of the Spirit. <sup>20q</sup>But you, beloved, build yourselves up in your most holy faith; pray in the holy Spirit. <sup>21r</sup>Keep yourselves in the love of God and wait for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ that leads to eternal life. <sup>22*</sup>On those who waver, have mercy; <sup>23*</sup>save others by snatching them out of the fire; on others have mercy with fear, abhorring even the outer garment stained by the flesh.

Doxology. <sup>24s*</sup>To the one who is able to keep you from stumbling and to present you unblemished and exultant, in the presence of his glory, <sup>25t</sup>to the only God, our savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord be glory, majesty, power, and authority from ages past, now, and for ages to come. Amen.

1 Jude ... brother of James: for the identity of the author of this letter, see Introduction. To those who are called: the vocation to the Christian faith is God's free gift to those whom he loves and whom he safely protects in Christ until the Lord's second coming.

3–4 Our common salvation: the teachings of the Christian faith derived from the apostolic preaching and to be kept by the Christian community.

5 For this first example of divine punishment on those who had been saved but did not then keep faith, see Nm 14:28–29 and the note there. Some manuscripts have the word “once” (hapax as at Jude 3) after “you know”; some commentators have suggested that it means “knowing one thing” or “you know all things once for all.” Instead of “[the] Lord” manuscripts vary, having “Jesus,” “God,” or no subject stated.

6 This second example draws on Gn 6:1–4 as elaborated in the apocryphal Book of Enoch (cf. Jude 14): heavenly beings came to earth and had sexual intercourse with women. God punished them by casting them out of heaven into darkness and bondage.

7 Practiced unnatural vice: literally, “went after alien flesh.” This example derives from Gn 19:1–25, especially 4–11, when the townsmen of Sodom violated both hospitality and morality by demanding that Lot's two visitors (really messengers of Yahweh) be handed over to them so that they could abuse them sexually. Unnatural vice: this refers to the desire for intimacies by human beings with angels (the reverse of the example in Jude 6). Sodom (whence “sodomy”) and Gomorrah became proverbial as object lessons for God's punishment on sin (Is 1:9; Jer 50:40; Am 4:11; Mt 10:15; 2 Pt 2:6).

8 Dreamers: the writer returns to the false teachers of Jude 4, applying charges from the three examples in Jude 5, 6, 7. This may apply to claims they make for revelations they have received by night (to the author, hallucinations). Defile the flesh: this may mean bodily pollutions from the erotic dreams of sexual license (Jude 7). Lordship ... glorious beings: these may reflect the Lord (Jude 5; Jesus, Jude 4) whom they spurn and the angels (Jude 6; cf. note on 2 Pt 2:10, here, as there, literally, “glories”).

9 The archangel Michael ... judgment: a reference to an incident in the apocryphal Assumption of Moses. Dt 34:6 had said of Moses, literally in Greek, “they buried him” or “he (God?) buried him” (taken to mean “he was buried”). The later account tells how Michael, who was sent to bury him, was challenged by the devil's interest in the body. Our author draws out the point that if an archangel refrained from reviling even the devil, how wrong it is for mere human beings to revile glorious beings (angels).

11 Cain ... Balaam ... Korah: examples of rebellious men and of the punishment their conduct incurred; cf. Gn 4:8–16; Nm 16:1–35; 31:16. See note on 2 Pt 2:15.

12 Blemishes on your love feasts: or “hidden rocks” or “submerged reefs” (cf. Jude 13). The opponents engaged in scandalous conduct in connection with community gatherings called love feasts (agape meals), which were associated with eucharistic celebrations at certain stages of early Christian practice; cf. 1 Cor 11:18–34 and the note on 2 Pt 2:13.

14–15 Cited from the apocryphal Book of Enoch 1:9.

18 This is the substance of much early Christian preaching rather than a direct quotation of any of the various New Testament passages on this theme (see Mk 13:22; Acts 20:30; 1 Tm 4:1–3; 2 Pt 3:3).

22 Have mercy: some manuscripts read “convince,” “confute,” or “reprove.” Others have “even though you waver” or “doubt” instead of who waver.

23 With fear: some manuscripts connect the phrase “with fear” with the imperative “save” or with the participle “snatching.” Other manuscripts omit the phrase “on others have mercy,” so that only two groups are envisioned. Rescue of those led astray and caution in the endeavor are both enjoined. Outer garment stained by the flesh: the imagery may come from Zec 3:3–5, just as that of snatching ... out of the fire comes from Zec 3:2; the very garments of the godless are to be abhorred because of their contagion.

24–25 With this liturgical statement about the power of God to keep the faithful from stumbling, and praise to him through Jesus Christ, the letter reaches its conclusion by returning to the themes with which it began (Jude 1–2).

The Apocalypse, or Revelation to John, the last book of the Bible, is one of the most difficult to understand because it abounds in unfamiliar and extravagant symbolism, which at best appears unusual to the modern reader. Symbolic language, however, is one of the chief characteristics of apocalyptic literature, of which this book is an outstanding example. Such literature enjoyed wide popularity in both Jewish and Christian circles from ca. 200 B.C. to A.D. 200.

This book contains an account of visions in symbolic and allegorical language borrowed extensively from the Old Testament, especially Ezekiel, Zechariah, and Daniel. Whether or not these visions were real experiences of the author or simply literary conventions employed by him is an open question.

This much, however, is certain: symbolic descriptions are not to be taken as literal descriptions, nor is the symbolism meant to be pictured realistically. One would find it difficult and repulsive to visualize a lamb with seven horns and seven eyes; yet Jesus Christ is described in precisely such words (Rev 5:6). The author used these images to suggest Christ's universal (seven) power (horns) and knowledge (eyes). A significant feature of apocalyptic writing is the use of symbolic colors, metals, garments (Rev 1:13–16; 3:18; 4:4; 6:1–8; 17:4; 19:8), and numbers (four signifies the world, six imperfection, seven totality or perfection, twelve Israel's tribes or the apostles, one thousand immensity). Finally the vindictive language in the book (Rev 6:9–10; 18:1–19:4) is also to be understood symbolically and not literally. The cries for vengeance on the lips of Christian martyrs that sound so harsh are in fact literary devices the author employed to evoke in the reader and hearer a feeling of horror for apostasy and rebellion that will be severely punished by God.

The lurid descriptions of the punishment of Jezebel (Rev 2:22) and of the destruction of the great harlot, Babylon (Rev 16:9–19:2), are likewise literary devices. The metaphor of Babylon as harlot would be wrongly construed if interpreted literally. On the other hand, the stylized figure of the woman clothed with the sun (Rev 12:1–6), depicting the New Israel, may seem to be a negative stereotype. It is necessary to look beyond the literal meaning to see that these images mean to convey a sense of God's wrath at sin in the former case and trust in God's providential care over the church in the latter.

The Book of Revelation cannot be adequately understood except against the historical background that occasioned its writing. Like Daniel and other apocalypses, it was composed as resistance literature to meet a crisis. The book itself suggests that the crisis was ruthless persecution of the early church by the Roman authorities; the harlot Babylon symbolizes pagan Rome, the city on seven hills (Rev 17:9). The book is, then, an exhortation and admonition to Christians of the first century to stand firm in the faith and to avoid compromise with paganism, despite the threat of adversity and martyrdom; they are to await patiently the fulfillment of God's mighty promises. The triumph of God in the world of men and women remains a mystery, to be accepted in faith and longed for in hope. It is a triumph that unfolded in the history of Jesus of Nazareth and continues to unfold in the history of the individual Christian who follows the way of the cross, even, if necessary, to a martyr's death.

Though the perspective is eschatological—ultimate salvation and victory are said to take place at the end of the present age when Christ will come in glory at the parousia—the book presents the decisive struggle of Christ and his followers against Satan and his cohorts as already over. Christ's overwhelming defeat of the kingdom of Satan ushered in the everlasting reign of God (Rev 11:15; 12:10). Even the forces of evil unwittingly carry out the divine plan (Rev 17:17), for God is the sovereign Lord of history.

The Book of Revelation had its origin in a time of crisis, but it remains valid and meaningful for Christians of all time. In the face of apparently insuperable evil, either from within or from without, all Christians are called to trust in Jesus' promise, "Behold, I am with you always, until the end of the age” (Mt 28:20). Those who remain steadfast in their faith and confidence in the risen Lord need have no fear. Suffering, persecution, even death by martyrdom, though remaining impenetrable mysteries of evil, do not comprise an absurd dead end. No matter what adversity or sacrifice Christians may endure, they will in the end triumph over Satan and his forces because of their fidelity to Christ the victor. This is the enduring message of the book; it is a message of hope and consolation and challenge for all who dare to believe.

The author of the book calls himself John (Rev 1:1, 4, 9; 22:8), who because of his Christian faith has been exiled to the rocky island of Patmos, a Roman penal colony. Although he never claims to be John the apostle, whose name is attached to the fourth gospel, he was so identified by several of the early church Fathers, including Justin, Irenaeus, Clement of Alexandria, Tertullian, Cyprian, and Hippolytus. This identification, however, was denied by other Fathers, including Denis of Alexandria, Eusebius of Caesarea, Cyril of Jerusalem, Gregory Nazianzen, and John Chrysostom. Indeed, vocabulary, grammar, and style make it doubtful that the book could have been put into its present form by the same person(s) responsible for the fourth gospel. Nevertheless, there are definite linguistic and theological affinities between the two books. The tone of the letters to the seven churches (Rev 1:4–3:22) is indicative of the great authority the author enjoyed over the Christian communities in Asia. It is possible, therefore, that he was a disciple of John the apostle, who is traditionally associated with that part of the world. The date of the book in its present form is probably near the end of the reign of Domitian (A.D. 81–96), a fierce persecutor of the Christians.

The principal divisions of the Book of Revelation are the following:

- I. Prologue (1:1–3)
- II. Letters to the Churches of Asia (1:4–3:22)
- III. God and the Lamb in Heaven (4:1–5:14)
- IV. The Seven Seals, Trumpets, and Plagues, with Interludes (6:1–16:21)
- V. The Punishment of Babylon and the Destruction of Pagan Nations (17:1–20:15)
- VI. The New Creation (21:1–22:5)
- VII. Epilogue (22:6–21)

I. PROLOGUE

CHAPTER 1

See RG 571

<sup>1a*</sup>The revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave to him, to show his servants what must happen soon. He made it known by sending his angel to his servant John, <sup>2</sup>who gives witness to the word of God and to the testimony of Jesus Christ by reporting what he saw. <sup>3b*</sup>Blessed is the one who reads aloud and blessed are those who listen to this prophetic message and heed what is written in it, for the appointed time is near.

II. LETTERS TO THE CHURCHES OF ASIA

Greeting. <sup>4c*</sup>John, to the seven churches in Asia: grace to you and peace from him who is and who was and who is to come, and from the seven spirits before his throne, <sup>5d*</sup>and from Jesus Christ, the faithful witness, the firstborn of the dead and ruler of the kings of the earth. To him who loves us and has freed us from our sins by his blood, <sup>6e</sup>who has made us into a kingdom, priests for his God and Father, to him be glory and power forever [and ever]. Amen.

<sup>7f</sup>Behold, he is coming amid the clouds, and every eye will see him,
even those who pierced him.
All the peoples of the earth will lament him.
Yes. Amen.

<sup>8g*</sup>“I am the Alpha and the Omega,” says the Lord God, “the one who is and who was and who is to come, the almighty.”

The First Vision. <sup>9*</sup>I, John, your brother, who share with you the distress, the kingdom, and the endurance we have in Jesus, found myself on the island called Patmos because I proclaimed God’s word and gave testimony to Jesus. <sup>10*</sup>I was caught up in spirit on the Lord’s day and heard behind me a voice as loud as a trumpet, <sup>11 *</sup>which said, “Write on a scroll what you see and send it to the seven churches: to Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea.” <sup>12*</sup>Then I turned to see whose voice it was that spoke to me, and when I turned, I saw seven gold lampstands <sup>13h*</sup>and in the midst of the lampstands one like a son of man, wearing an ankle-length robe, with a gold sash around his chest. <sup>14*</sup>The hair of his head was as white as white wool or as snow, and his eyes were like a fiery flame. <sup>15*</sup>His feet were like polished brass refined in a furnace, and his voice was like the sound of rushing water. <sup>16i*</sup>In his right hand he held seven stars. A sharp two-edged sword came out of his mouth, and his face shone like the sun at its brightest.

<sup>17j*</sup>When I caught sight of him, I fell down at his feet as though dead. He touched me with his right hand and said, “Do not be afraid. I am the first and the last, <sup>18*</sup>the one who lives. Once I was dead, but now I am alive forever and ever. I hold the keys to death and the netherworld. <sup>19*</sup>Write down, therefore, what you have seen, and what is happening, and what will happen afterwards. <sup>20*</sup>This is the secret meaning of the seven stars you saw in my right hand, and of the seven gold lampstands: the seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and the seven lampstands are the seven churches.

CHAPTER 2

To Ephesus. <sup>1*</sup>“To the angel of the church in Ephesus, write this:

“ ‘The one who holds the seven stars in his right hand and walks in the midst of the seven gold lampstands says this: <sup>2*</sup>“I know your works, your labor, and your endurance, and that you cannot tolerate the wicked; you have tested those who call themselves apostles but are not, and discovered that they are impostors. <sup>3</sup>Moreover, you have endurance and have suffered for my name, and you have not grown weary. <sup>4</sup>Yet I hold this against you: you have lost the love you had at first. <sup>5</sup>Realize how far you have fallen. Repent, and do the works you did at first. Otherwise, I will come to you and remove your lampstand from its place, unless you repent. <sup>6*</sup>But you have this in your favor: you hate the works of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate.

<sup>7k*</sup>“ ‘ “Whoever has ears ought to hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To the victor I will give the right to eat from the tree of life that is in the garden of God.” ’

To Smyrna. <sup>8*</sup>“To the angel of the church in Smyrna, write this:

“ ‘The first and the last, who once died but came to life, says this: <sup>9l*</sup>“I know your tribulation and poverty, but you are rich. I know the slander of those who claim to be Jews and are not, but rather are members of the assembly of Satan. <sup>10</sup>Do not be afraid of anything that you are going to suffer. Indeed, the devil will throw some of you into prison, that you may be tested, and you will face an ordeal for ten days. Remain faithful until death, and I will give you the crown of life.

<sup>11m*</sup>“ ‘ “Whoever has ears ought to hear what the Spirit says to the churches. The victor shall not be harmed by the second death.” ’

To Pergamum. <sup>12*</sup>“To the angel of the church in Pergamum, write this:

“ ‘The one with the sharp two-edged sword says this: <sup>13*</sup>“I know that you live where Satan’s throne is, and yet you hold fast to my name and have not denied your faith in me, not even in the days of Antipas, my faithful witness, who was martyred among you, where Satan lives. <sup>14n*</sup>Yet I have a few things against you. You have some people there who hold to the teaching of Balaam, who instructed Balak to put a stumbling block before the Israelites: to eat food sacrificed to idols and to play the harlot.

<sup>15</sup>Likewise, you also have some people who hold to the teaching of [the] Nicolaitans. <sup>16</sup>Therefore, repent. Otherwise, I will come to you quickly and wage war against them with the sword of my mouth.

<sup>17o*</sup>“ ‘ “Whoever has ears ought to hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To the victor I shall give some of the hidden manna; I shall also give a white amulet upon which is inscribed a new name, which no one knows except the one who receives it.” ’

The Seven Churches

To Thyatira. <sup>18*</sup>“To the angel of the church in Thyatira, write this:

“ ‘The Son of God, whose eyes are like a fiery flame and whose feet are like polished brass, says this: <sup>19</sup>“I know your works, your love, faith, service, and endurance, and that your last works are greater than the first. <sup>20*</sup>Yet I hold this against you, that you tolerate the woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophetess, who teaches and misleads my servants to play the harlot and to eat food sacrificed to idols. <sup>21</sup>I have given her time to repent, but she refuses to repent of her harlotry. <sup>22</sup>So I will cast her on a sickbed and plunge those who commit adultery with her into intense suffering unless they repent of her works. <sup>23p*</sup>I will also put her children to death.

Thus shall all the churches come to know that I am the searcher of hearts and minds and that I will give each of you what your works deserve. <sup>24*</sup> But I say to the rest of you in Thyatira, who do not uphold this teaching and know nothing of the so-called deep secrets of Satan: on you I will place no further burden, <sup>25</sup> except that you must hold fast to what you have until I come.

<sup>26q*</sup> “ ‘ “To the victor, who keeps to my ways until the end,
I will give authority over the nations.

<sup>27</sup> He will rule them with an iron rod.
Like clay vessels will they be smashed,

<sup>28</sup> just as I received authority from my Father. And to him I will give the morning star.

<sup>29</sup> “ ‘ “Whoever has ears ought to hear what the Spirit says to the churches.” ’

CHAPTER 3

To Sardis. <sup>1*</sup>“To the angel of the church in Sardis, write this:

“ ‘The one who has the seven spirits of God and the seven stars says this: “I know your works, that you have the reputation of being alive, but you are dead. <sup>2</sup>Be watchful and strengthen what is left, which is going to die, for I have not found your works complete in the sight of my God. <sup>3r</sup>Remember then how you accepted and heard; keep it, and repent. If you are not watchful, I will come like a thief, and you will never know at what hour I will come upon you. <sup>4s</sup>However, you have a few people in Sardis who have not soiled their garments; they will walk with me dressed in white, because they are worthy.

<sup>5t*</sup>“ ‘ “The victor will thus be dressed in white, and I will never erase his name from the book of life but will acknowledge his name in the presence of my Father and of his angels.

To Philadelphia. <sup>7u*</sup>“To the angel of the church in Philadelphia, write this:

“ ‘The holy one, the true, who holds the key of David,
who opens and no one shall close,
who closes and no one shall open, says this:

<sup>8*</sup>“ ‘ “I know your works (behold, I have left an open door before you, which no one can close). You have limited strength, and yet you have kept my word and have not denied my name. <sup>9v</sup>Behold, I will make those of the assembly of Satan who claim to be Jews and are not, but are lying, behold I will make them come and fall prostrate at your feet, and they will realize that I love you. <sup>10*</sup>Because you have kept my message of endurance, I will keep you safe in the time of trial that is going to come to the whole world to test the inhabitants of the earth. <sup>11w</sup> I am coming quickly. Hold fast to what you have, so that no one may take your crown.

<sup>12x*</sup>“ ‘ “The victor I will make into a pillar in the temple of my God, and he will never leave it again. On him I will inscribe the name of my God and the name of the city of my God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from my God, as well as my new name.

To Laodicea. <sup>14y*</sup>“To the angel of the church in Laodicea, write this:

“ ‘The Amen, the faithful and true witness, the source of God’s creation, says this: <sup>15*</sup>”I know your works; I know that you are neither cold nor hot. I wish you were either cold or hot. <sup>16*</sup>So, because you are lukewarm, neither hot nor cold, I will spit you out of my mouth. <sup>17z*</sup>For you say, ‘I am rich and affluent and have no need of anything,’ and yet do not realize that you are wretched, pitiable, poor, blind, and naked. <sup>18*</sup>I advise you to buy from me gold refined by fire so that you may be rich, and white garments to put on so that your shameful nakedness may not be exposed, and buy ointment to smear on your eyes so that you may see. <sup>19a</sup>Those whom I love, I reprove and chastise. Be earnest, therefore, and repent.

<sup>20*</sup>“ ‘ “Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If anyone hears my voice and opens the door, [then] I will enter his house and dine with him, and he with me. <sup>21b</sup>I will give the victor the right to sit with me on my throne, as I myself first won the victory and sit with my Father on his throne.

III. GOD AND THE LAMB IN HEAVEN

CHAPTER 4

See RG 571–72

Vision of Heavenly Worship. <sup>1*</sup>After this I had a vision of an open door to heaven, and I heard the trumpetlike voice that had spoken to me before, saying, “Come up here and I will show you what must happen afterwards.”

<sup>2c*</sup>At once I was caught up in spirit. A throne was there in heaven, and on the throne sat <sup>3</sup>one whose appearance sparkled like jasper and carnelian. Around the throne was a halo as brilliant as an emerald. <sup>4d*</sup>Surrounding the throne I saw twenty-four other thrones on which twenty-four elders sat, dressed in white garments and with gold crowns on their heads. <sup>5*</sup>From the throne came flashes of lightning, rumblings, and peals of thunder. Seven flaming torches burned in front of the throne, which are the seven spirits of God. <sup>6e*</sup>In front of the throne was something that resembled a sea of glass like crystal.

In the center and around the throne, there were four living creatures covered with eyes in front and in back. <sup>7*</sup>The first creature resembled a lion, the second was like a calf, the third had a face like that of a human being, and the fourth looked like an eagle in flight. <sup>8f*</sup>The four living creatures, each of them with six wings, were covered with eyes inside and out. Day and night they do not stop exclaiming:

“Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God
almighty, who was, and who is, and who is to come.”

<sup>9</sup>Whenever the living creatures give glory and honor and thanks to the one who sits on the throne, who lives forever and ever, <sup>10</sup>the twenty-four elders fall down before the one who sits on the throne and worship him, who lives forever and ever. They throw down their crowns before the throne, exclaiming:

<sup>11g</sup>“Worthy are you, Lord our God, to receive glory and honor and power,
for you created all things;
because of your will they came to be and were created.”

CHAPTER 5

See RG 571–72

The Scroll and the Lamb. <sup>1h*</sup>I saw a scroll in the right hand of the one who sat on the throne. It had writing on both sides and was sealed with seven seals. <sup>2</sup> Then I saw a mighty angel who proclaimed in a loud voice, “Who is worthy to open the scroll and break its seals?” <sup>3</sup> But no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth was able to open the scroll or to examine it. <sup>4</sup> I shed many tears because no one was found worthy to open the scroll or to examine it. <sup>5i*</sup> One of the elders said to me, “Do not weep. The lion of the tribe of Judah, the root of David, has triumphed, enabling him to open the scroll with its seven seals.”

<sup>6j*</sup> Then I saw standing in the midst of the throne and the four living creatures and the elders, a Lamb that seemed to have been slain. He had seven horns and seven eyes; these are the [seven] spirits of God sent out into the whole world. <sup>7</sup> He came and received the scroll from the right hand of the one who sat on the throne. <sup>8</sup> When he took it, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb. Each of the elders held a harp and gold bowls filled with incense, which are the prayers of the holy ones. <sup>9</sup> They sang a new hymn:

“Worthy are you to receive the scroll and to break open its seals, for you were slain and with your blood you purchased for God those from every tribe and tongue, people and nation.

<sup>10k</sup> You made them a kingdom and priests for our God, and they will reign on earth.”

<sup>11l*</sup> I looked again and heard the voices of many angels who surrounded the throne and the living creatures and the elders. They were countless in number, <sup>12</sup> and they cried out in a loud voice:

“Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power and riches, wisdom and strength, honor and glory and blessing.”

<sup>13</sup>Then I heard every creature in heaven and on earth and under the earth and in the sea, everything in the universe, cry out:

“To the one who sits on the throne and to the Lamb be blessing and honor, glory and might,
forever and ever.”

<sup>14</sup>The four living creatures answered, “Amen,” and the elders fell down and worshiped.

IV. THE SEVEN SEALS, TRUMPETS, AND PLAGUES, WITH INTERLUDES

CHAPTER 6

See RG 572–73

The First Six Seals. <sup>1*</sup>Then I watched while the Lamb broke open the first of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four living creatures cry out in a voice like thunder, “Come forward.” <sup>2m*</sup>I looked, and there was a white horse, and its rider had a bow. He was given a crown, and he rode forth victorious to further his victories.

<sup>3</sup>When he broke open the second seal, I heard the second living creature cry out, “Come forward.” <sup>4n*</sup>Another horse came out, a red one. Its rider was given power to take peace away from the earth, so that people would slaughter one another. And he was given a huge sword.

<sup>5*</sup>When he broke open the third seal, I heard the third living creature cry out, “Come forward.” I looked, and there was a black horse, and its rider held a scale in his hand. <sup>6o*</sup>I heard what seemed to be a voice in the midst of the four living creatures. It said, “A ration of wheat costs a day’s pay, and three rations of barley cost a day’s pay. But do not damage the olive oil or the wine.”

<sup>7</sup>When he broke open the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature cry out, “Come forward.” <sup>8p*</sup>I looked, and there was a pale green horse. Its rider was named Death, and Hades accompanied him. They were given authority over a quarter of the earth, to kill with sword, famine, and plague, and by means of the beasts of the earth.

<sup>9*</sup>When he broke open the fifth seal, I saw underneath the altar the souls of those who had been slaughtered because of the witness they bore to the word of God. <sup>10*</sup>They cried out in a loud voice, “How long will it be, holy and true master, before you sit in judgment and avenge our blood on the inhabitants of the earth?” <sup>11</sup>Each of them was given a white robe, and they were told to be patient a little while longer until the number was filled of their fellow servants and brothers who were going to be killed as they had been.

divided like a torn scroll curling up, and every mountain and island was moved from its place. <sup>15*</sup>The kings of the earth, the nobles, the military officers, the rich, the powerful, and every slave and free person hid themselves in caves and among mountain crags. <sup>16S</sup>They cried out to the mountains and the rocks, “Fall on us and hide us from the face of the one who sits on the throne and from the wrath of the Lamb, <sup>17*</sup>because the great day of their wrath has come and who can withstand it?”

CHAPTER 7

The 144,000 Sealed. <sup>1t*</sup>After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding back the four winds of the earth so that no wind could blow on land or sea or against any tree. <sup>2*</sup>Then I saw another angel come up from the East, holding the seal of the living God. He cried out in a loud voice to the four angels who were given power to damage the land and the sea, <sup>3u</sup>“Do not damage the land or the sea or the trees until we put the seal on the foreheads of the servants of our God.” <sup>4v*</sup>I heard the number of those who had been marked with the seal, one hundred and forty-four thousand marked from every tribe of the Israelites: <sup>5*</sup>twelve thousand were marked from the tribe of Judah, twelve thousand from the tribe of Reuben, twelve thousand from the tribe of Gad, <sup>6</sup>twelve thousand from the tribe of Asher, twelve thousand from the tribe of Naphtali, twelve thousand from the tribe of Manasseh, <sup>7</sup>twelve thousand from the tribe of Simeon, twelve thousand from the tribe of Levi, twelve thousand from the tribe of Issachar, <sup>8</sup>twelve thousand from the tribe of Zebulun, twelve thousand from the tribe of Joseph, and twelve thousand were marked from the tribe of Benjamin.

Triumph of the Elect. <sup>9*</sup>After this I had a vision of a great multitude, which no one could count, from every nation, race, people, and tongue. They stood before the throne and before the Lamb, wearing white robes and holding palm branches in their hands. <sup>10*</sup>They cried out in a loud voice:

“Salvation comes from our God, who is seated on the throne, and from the Lamb.”

<sup>11</sup>All the angels stood around the throne and around the elders and the four living creatures. They prostrated themselves before the throne, worshiped God, <sup>12</sup>and exclaimed:

“Amen. Blessing and glory, wisdom and thanksgiving, honor, power, and might be to our God forever and ever.
Amen.”

<sup>13</sup>Then one of the elders spoke up and said to me, “Who are these wearing white robes, and where did they come from?” <sup>14w*</sup>I said to him, “My lord, you are the one who knows.” He said to me, “These are the ones who have survived the time of great distress; they have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.

<sup>15</sup>“For this reason they stand before God’s and worship him day and night in his temple.
The one who sits on the throne will shelter them.

<sup>16x</sup>They will not hunger or thirst anymore, nor will the sun or any heat strike them.

the throne will shepherd them and lead them to springs of life-giving water, and God will wipe away every tear from their eyes.”

CHAPTER 8

See RG 572–73

The Seven Trumpets. <sup>1z*</sup>When he broke open the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven for about half an hour. <sup>2a</sup>And I saw that the seven angels who stood before God were given seven trumpets.

The Gold Censer. <sup>3b*</sup>Another angel came and stood at the altar, holding a gold censer. He was given a great quantity of incense to offer, along with the prayers of all the holy ones, on the gold altar that was before the throne. <sup>4</sup>The smoke of the incense along with the prayers of the holy ones went up before God from the hand of the angel. <sup>5c</sup>Then the angel took the censer, filled it with burning coals from the altar, and hurled it down to the earth. There were peals of thunder, rumblings, flashes of lightning, and an earthquake.

The First Four Trumpets. <sup>6d</sup>The seven angels who were holding the seven trumpets prepared to blow them.

<sup>7*</sup>When the first one blew his trumpet, there came hail and fire mixed with blood, which was hurled down to the earth. A third of the land was burned up, along with a third of the trees and all green grass.

<sup>8e*</sup>When the second angel blew his trumpet, something like a large burning mountain was hurled into the sea. A third of the sea turned to blood, <sup>9*</sup>a third of the creatures living in the sea died, and a third of the ships were wrecked.

<sup>10f</sup>When the third angel blew his trumpet, a large star burning like a torch fell from the sky. It fell on a third of the rivers and on the springs of water. <sup>11g*</sup>The star was called “Wormwood,” and a third of all the water turned to wormwood. Many people died from this water, because it was made bitter.

<sup>12h</sup>When the fourth angel blew his trumpet, a third of the sun, a third of the moon, and a third of the stars were struck, so that a third of them became dark. The day lost its light for a third of the time, as did the night.

<sup>13*</sup>Then I looked again and heard an eagle flying high overhead cry out in a loud voice, “Woe! Woe! Woe to the inhabitants of the earth from the rest of the trumpet blasts that the three angels are about to blow!”

CHAPTER 9

See RG 572–73

The Fifth Trumpet. <sup>1i*</sup>Then the fifth angel blew his trumpet, and I saw a star that had fallen from the sky to the earth. It was given the key for the passage to the abyss. <sup>2j</sup>It opened the passage to the abyss, and smoke came up out of the passage like smoke from a huge furnace. The sun and the air were darkened by the smoke from the passage. <sup>3k*</sup>Locusts came out of the smoke onto the land, and they were given the same power as scorpions of the earth. <sup>4</sup>They were told not to harm the grass of the earth or any plant or any tree, but only those people who did not have the seal of God on their foreheads. <sup>5*</sup>They were not allowed to kill them but only to torment them for five months; the torment they inflicted was like that of a scorpion when it stings a person. <sup>6l</sup>During that time these people will seek death but will not find it, and they will long to die but death will escape them.

<sup>12</sup>The first woe has passed, but there are two more to come.

The Sixth Trumpet. <sup>13o*</sup>Then the sixth angel blew his trumpet, and I heard a voice coming from the [four] horns of the gold altar before God, <sup>14*</sup>telling the sixth angel who held the trumpet, "Release the four angels who are bound at the banks of the great river Euphrates." <sup>15</sup>So the four angels were released, who were prepared for this hour, day, month, and year to kill a third of the human race. <sup>16</sup>The number of cavalry troops was two hundred million; I heard their number. <sup>17p*</sup>Now in my vision this is how I saw the horses and their riders. They wore red, blue, and yellow breastplates, and the horses' heads were like heads of lions, and out of their mouths came fire, smoke, and sulfur. <sup>18</sup>By these three plagues of fire, smoke, and sulfur that came out of their mouths a third of the human race was killed. <sup>19</sup>For the power of the horses is in their mouths and in their tails; for their tails are like snakes, with heads that inflict harm.

<sup>20q*</sup>The rest of the human race, who were not killed by these plagues, did not repent of the works of their hands, to give up the worship of demons and idols made from gold, silver, bronze, stone, and wood, which cannot see or hear or walk. <sup>21</sup>Nor did they repent of their murders, their magic potions, their unchastity, or their robberies.

CHAPTER 10

The Angel with the Small Scroll. <sup>1*</sup>Then I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven wrapped in a cloud, with a halo around his head; his face was like the sun and his feet were like pillars of fire. <sup>2*</sup>In his hand he held a small scroll that had been opened. He placed his right foot on the sea and his left foot on the land, <sup>3r*</sup>and then he cried out in a loud voice as a lion roars. When he cried out, the seven thunders raised their voices, too. <sup>4</sup>When the seven thunders had spoken, I was about to write it down; but I heard a voice from heaven say, “Seal up what the seven thunders have spoken, but do not write it down.” <sup>5</sup>Then the angel I saw standing on the sea and on the land raised his right hand to heaven <sup>6s*</sup>and swore by the one who lives forever and ever, who created heaven and earth and sea and all that is in them, “There shall be no more delay. <sup>7t*</sup>At the time when you hear the seventh angel blow his trumpet, the mysterious plan of God shall be fulfilled, as he promised to his servants the prophets.”

<sup>8</sup>Then the voice that I had heard from heaven spoke to me again and said, “Go, take the scroll that lies open in the hand of the angel who is standing on the sea and on the land.” <sup>9*</sup>So I went up to the angel and told him to give me the small scroll. He said to me, “Take and swallow it. It will turn your stomach sour, but in your mouth it will taste as sweet as honey.” <sup>10u</sup>I took the small scroll from the angel’s hand and swallowed it. In my mouth it was like sweet honey, but when I had eaten it, my stomach turned sour. <sup>11*</sup>Then someone said to me, “You must prophesy again about many peoples, nations, tongues, and kings.”

CHAPTER 11

The Two Witnesses. <sup>1v*</sup>Then I was given a measuring rod like a staff and I was told, “Come and measure the temple of God and the altar, and count those who are worshiping in it. <sup>2*</sup>But exclude the outer court of the temple; do not measure it, for it has been handed over to the Gentiles, who will trample the holy city for forty-two months. <sup>3*</sup>I will commission my two witnesses to prophesy for those twelve hundred and sixty days, wearing sackcloth.” <sup>4w*</sup>These are the two olive trees and the two lampstands that stand before the Lord of the earth. <sup>5*</sup>If anyone wants to harm them, fire comes out of their mouths and devours their enemies. In this way, anyone wanting to harm them is sure to be slain. <sup>6x*</sup>They have the power to close up the sky so that no rain can fall during the time of their prophesying. They also have power to turn water into blood and to afflict the earth with any plague as often as they wish.

<sup>7y*</sup>When they have finished their testimony, the beast that comes up from the abyss will wage war against them and conquer them and kill them. <sup>8*</sup>Their corpses will lie in the main street of the great city, which has the symbolic names “Sodom” and “Egypt,” where indeed their Lord was crucified. <sup>9*</sup>Those from every people, tribe, tongue, and nation will gaze on their corpses for three and a half days, and they will not allow their corpses to be buried. <sup>10</sup>The inhabitants of the earth will gloat over them and be glad and exchange gifts because these two prophets tormented the inhabitants of the earth. <sup>11 z</sup>But after the three and a half days, a breath of life from God entered them. When they stood on their feet, great fear fell on those who saw them. <sup>12a</sup>Then they heard a loud voice from heaven say to them, “Come up here.” So they went up to heaven in a cloud as their enemies looked on. <sup>13*</sup>At that moment there was a great earthquake, and a tenth of the city fell in ruins. Seven thousand people were killed during the earthquake; the rest were terrified and gave glory to the God of heaven.

<sup>14</sup>The second woe has passed, but the third is coming soon.

The Seventh Trumpet. <sup>15*</sup>Then the seventh angel blew his trumpet. There were loud voices in heaven, saying, “The kingdom of the world now belongs to our Lord and to his Anointed, and he will reign forever and ever.” <sup>16</sup>The twenty-four elders who sat on their thrones before God prostrated themselves and worshiped God <sup>17</sup>and said:

“We give thanks to you, Lord God almighty,
who are and who were.
For you have assumed your great power and have established your reign.

<sup>18b</sup>The nations raged, but your wrath has come,
and the time for the dead to be judged, and to recompense your servants, the prophets, and the holy ones and those who fear
your name,
the small and the great alike, and to destroy those who destroy the earth.”

<sup>19</sup>Then God’s temple in heaven was opened, and the ark of his covenant could be seen in the temple. There were flashes of lightning, rumblings, and peals of thunder, an earthquake, and a violent hailstorm.

CHAPTER 12

The Woman and the Dragon. <sup>1c*</sup>A great sign appeared in the sky, a woman clothed with the sun, with the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars. <sup>2*</sup>She was with child and wailed aloud in pain as she labored to give birth. <sup>3d*</sup>Then another sign appeared in the sky; it was a huge red dragon, with seven heads and ten horns, and on its heads were seven diadems. <sup>4e</sup>Its tail swept away a third of the stars in the sky and hurled them down to the earth. Then the dragon stood before the woman about to give birth, to devour her child when she gave birth. <sup>5f*</sup>She gave birth to a son, a male child, destined to rule all the nations with an iron rod. Her child was caught up to God and his throne. <sup>6*</sup>The woman herself fled into the desert where she had a place prepared by God, that there she might be taken care of for twelve hundred and sixty days.

<sup>7*</sup>Then war broke out in heaven; Michael and his angels battled against the dragon. The dragon and its angels fought back, <sup>8</sup>but they did not prevail and there was no longer any place for them in heaven. <sup>9g*</sup>The huge dragon, the ancient serpent, who is called the Devil and Satan, who deceived the whole world, was thrown down to earth, and its angels were thrown down with it.

“Now have salvation and power come, and the kingdom of our God and the authority of his Anointed.
For the accuser of our brothers is cast out, who accuses them before our God day and night.

<sup>11</sup>They conquered him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony; love for life did not deter them from death.

<sup>12</sup>Therefore, rejoice, you heavens, and you who dwell in them.
But woe to you, earth and sea, for the Devil has come down to you in great fury,

for he knows he has but a short time.”

<sup>13</sup><sup>h</sup>When the dragon saw that it had been thrown down to the earth, it pursued the woman who had given birth to the male child. <sup>14</sup><sup>i</sup>*But the woman was given the two wings of the great eagle, so that she could fly to her place in the desert, where, far from the serpent, she was taken care of for a year, two years, and a half-year. <sup>15</sup>*The serpent, however, spewed a torrent of water out of his mouth after the woman to sweep her away with the current. <sup>16</sup>But the earth helped the woman and opened its mouth and swallowed the flood that the dragon spewed out of its mouth. <sup>17</sup><sup>j</sup>*Then the dragon became angry with the woman and went off to wage war against the rest of her offspring, those who keep God’s commandments and bear witness to Jesus. <sup>18</sup>*It took its position on the sand of the sea.

CHAPTER 13

The First Beast. <sup>1k*</sup>Then I saw a beast come out of the sea with ten horns and seven heads; on its horns were ten diadems, and on its heads blasphemous name[s]. <sup>2 l*</sup>The beast I saw was like a leopard, but it had feet like a bear's, and its mouth was like the mouth of a lion. To it the dragon gave its own power and throne, along with great authority. <sup>3*</sup>I saw that one of its heads seemed to have been mortally wounded, but this mortal wound was healed. Fascinated, the whole world followed after the beast. <sup>4*</sup>They worshiped the dragon because it gave its authority to the beast; they also worshiped the beast and said, "Who can compare with the beast or who can fight against it?"

Such is the faithful endurance of the holy ones.

The Second Beast. <sup>11*</sup>Then I saw another beast come up out of the earth; it had two horns like a lamb's but spoke like a dragon. <sup>12</sup>It wielded all the authority of the first beast in its sight and made the earth and its inhabitants worship the first beast, whose mortal wound had been healed. <sup>13r</sup>It performed great signs, even making fire come down from heaven to earth in the sight of everyone. <sup>14</sup> It deceived the inhabitants of the earth with the signs it was allowed to perform in the sight of the first beast, telling them to make an image for the beast who had been wounded by the sword and revived. <sup>15s</sup>It was then permitted to breathe life into the beast's image, so that the beast's image could speak and [could] have anyone who did not worship it put to death. <sup>16t</sup>It forced all the people, small and great, rich and poor, free and slave, to be given a stamped image on their right hands or their foreheads, <sup>17</sup>so that no one could buy or sell except one who had the stamped image of the beast's name or the number that stood for its name.

<sup>18u*</sup>Wisdom is needed here; one who understands can calculate the number of the beast, for it is a number that stands for a person. His number is six hundred and sixty-six.

CHAPTER 14

See RG 572–73

The Lamb's Companions. <sup>1v*</sup>Then I looked and there was the Lamb standing on Mount Zion, and with him a hundred and forty-four thousand who had his name and his Father's name written on their foreheads. <sup>2</sup>I heard a sound from heaven like the sound of rushing water or a loud peal of thunder. The sound I heard was like that of harpists playing their harps. <sup>3w</sup>They were singing [what seemed to be] a new hymn before the throne, before the four living creatures and the elders. No one could learn this hymn except the hundred and forty-four thousand who had been ransomed from the earth. <sup>4x*</sup>These are they who were not defiled with women; they are virgins and these are the ones who follow the Lamb wherever he goes. They have been ransomed as the firstfruits of the human race for God and the Lamb. <sup>5y*</sup>On their lips no deceit has been found; they are unblemished.

The Three Angels. <sup>6*</sup>Then I saw another angel flying high overhead, with everlasting good news to announce to those who dwell on earth, to every nation, tribe, tongue, and people. <sup>7z</sup>He said in a loud voice, "Fear God and give him glory, for his time has come to sit in judgment. Worship him who made heaven and earth and sea and springs of water."

"Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great,
that made all the nations drink
the wine of her licentious passion."

<sup>9</sup>A third angel followed them and said in a loud voice, "Anyone who worships the beast or its image, or accepts its mark on forehead or hand, <sup>10*</sup>will also drink the wine of God's fury, poured full strength into the cup of his wrath, and will be tormented in burning sulfur before the holy angels and before the Lamb. <sup>11b</sup>The smoke of the fire that torments them will rise forever and ever, and there will be no relief day or night for those who worship the beast or its image or accept the mark of its name." <sup>12c*</sup>Here is what sustains the holy ones who keep God's commandments and their faith in Jesus.

<sup>13d*</sup>I heard a voice from heaven say, “Write this: Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from now on.” “Yes,” said the Spirit, “let them find rest from their labors, for their works accompany them.”

The Harvest of the Earth. <sup>14e*</sup>Then I looked and there was a white cloud, and sitting on the cloud one who looked like a son of man, with a gold crown on his head and a sharp sickle in his hand. <sup>15f</sup>Another angel came out of the temple, crying out in a loud voice to the one sitting on the cloud, “Use your sickle and reap the harvest, for the time to reap has come, because the earth’s harvest is fully ripe.” <sup>16</sup>So the one who was sitting on the cloud swung his sickle over the earth, and the earth was harvested.

<sup>17</sup>Then another angel came out of the temple in heaven who also had a sharp sickle. <sup>18*</sup>Then another angel [came] from the altar, [who] was in charge of the fire, and cried out in a loud voice to the one who had the sharp sickle, “Use your sharp sickle and cut the clusters from the earth’s vines, for its grapes are ripe.” <sup>19g</sup>So the angel swung his sickle over the earth and cut the earth’s vintage. He threw it into the great wine press of God’s fury. <sup>20*</sup>The wine press was trodden outside the city and blood poured out of the wine press to the height of a horse’s bridle for two hundred miles.

CHAPTER 15

The Seven Last Plagues. <sup>1*</sup>Then I saw in heaven another sign, great and awe-inspiring: seven angels with the seven last plagues, for through them God’s fury is accomplished.

<sup>2h*</sup>Then I saw something like a sea of glass mingled with fire. On the sea of glass were standing those who had won the victory over the beast and its image and the number that signified its name. They were holding God’s harps, <sup>3i*</sup>and they sang the song of Moses, the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb:

“Great and wonderful are your works,
Lord God almighty.
Just and true are your ways,
O king of the nations.

<sup>4j</sup>Who will not fear you, Lord, or glorify your name?

For you alone are holy.
All the nations will come and worship before you, for your righteous acts have been revealed.”

<sup>5*</sup>After this I had another vision. The temple that is the heavenly tent of testimony opened, <sup>6k</sup>and the seven angels with the seven plagues came out of the temple. They were dressed in clean white linen, with a gold sash around their chests. <sup>7</sup>One of the four living creatures gave the seven angels seven gold bowls filled with the fury of God, who lives forever and ever. <sup>8l</sup>Then the temple became so filled with the smoke from God’s glory and might that no one could enter it until the seven plagues of the seven angels had been accomplished.

CHAPTER 16

See RG 572–73

The Seven Bowls. <sup>1*</sup>I heard a loud voice speaking from the temple to the seven angels, “Go and pour out the seven bowls of God’s fury upon the earth.”

<sup>4m</sup>The third angel poured out his bowl on the rivers and springs of water. These also turned to blood. <sup>5n</sup>Then I heard the angel in charge of the waters say:

“You are just, O Holy One,
who are and who were,
in passing this sentence.

<sup>6o</sup>For they have shed the blood of the holy ones and the prophets, and you [have] given them blood to drink;
it is what they deserve.”

<sup>7p</sup>Then I heard the altar cry out,

“Yes, Lord God almighty, your judgments are true and just.”

<sup>8</sup>The fourth angel poured out his bowl on the sun. It was given the power to burn people with fire. <sup>9q</sup>People were burned by the scorching heat and blasphemed the name of God who had power over these plagues, but they did not repent or give him glory.

<sup>10r*</sup>The fifth angel poured out his bowl on the throne of the beast. Its kingdom was plunged into darkness, and people bit their tongues in pain <sup>11s</sup>and blasphemed the God of heaven because of their pains and sores. But they did not repent of their works.

<sup>12*</sup>The sixth angel emptied his bowl on the great river Euphrates. Its water was dried up to prepare the way for the kings of the East. <sup>13t*</sup>I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come from the mouth of the dragon, from the mouth of the beast, and from the mouth of the false prophet. <sup>14u</sup>These were demonic spirits who performed signs. They went out to the kings of the whole world to assemble them for the battle on the great day of God the almighty. <sup>15v*</sup>(“Behold, I am coming like a thief.” Blessed is the one who watches and keeps his clothes ready, so that he may not go naked and people see him exposed.) <sup>16*</sup>They then assembled the kings in the place that is named Armageddon in Hebrew.

<sup>17w</sup>The seventh angel poured out his bowl into the air. A loud voice came out of the temple from the throne, saying, “It is done.” <sup>18x</sup>Then there were lightning flashes, rumblings, and peals of thunder, and a great earthquake. It was such a violent earthquake that there has never been one like it since the human race began on earth. <sup>19*</sup>The great city was split into three parts, and the gentile cities fell. But God remembered great Babylon, giving it the cup filled with the wine of his fury and wrath. <sup>20*</sup>Every island fled, and mountains disappeared. <sup>21y</sup>Large hailstones like huge weights came down from the sky on people, and they blasphemed God for the plague of hail because this plague was so severe.

CHAPTER 17

Babylon the Great. <sup>1z*</sup>Then one of the seven angels who were holding the seven bowls came and said to me, “Come here. I will show you the judgment on the great harlot who lives near the many waters. <sup>2a*</sup>The kings of the earth have had intercourse with her, and the inhabitants of the earth became drunk on the wine of her harlotry.” <sup>3b*</sup>Then he carried me away in spirit to a deserted place where I saw a woman seated on a scarlet beast that was covered with blasphemous names, with seven heads and ten horns. <sup>4c*</sup>The woman was wearing purple and scarlet and adorned with gold, precious stones, and pearls. She held in her hand a gold cup that was filled with the abominable and sordid deeds of her harlotry. <sup>5</sup>On her forehead was written a name, which is a mystery, “Babylon the great, the mother of harlots and of the abominations of the earth.” <sup>6*</sup>I saw that the woman was drunk on the blood of the holy ones and on the blood of the witnesses to Jesus.

Meaning of the Beast and Harlot When I saw her I was greatly amazed. <sup>7</sup>The angel said to me, “Why are you amazed? I will explain to you the mystery of the woman and of the beast that carries her, the beast with the seven heads and the ten horns. <sup>8d*</sup>The beast that you saw existed once but now exists no longer. It will come up from the abyss and is headed for destruction. The inhabitants of the earth whose names have not been written in the book of life from the foundation of the world shall be amazed when they see the beast, because it existed once but exists no longer, and yet it will come again. <sup>9e*</sup>Here is a clue for one who has wisdom. The seven heads represent seven hills upon which the woman sits. They also represent seven kings: <sup>10*</sup>five have already fallen, one still lives, and the last has not yet come, and when he comes he must remain only a short while. <sup>11*</sup>The beast that existed once but exists no longer is an eighth king, but really belongs to the seven and is headed for destruction. <sup>12f*</sup>The ten horns that you saw represent ten kings who have not yet been crowned; they will receive royal authority along with the beast for one hour. <sup>13</sup>They are of one mind and will give their power and authority to the beast. <sup>14g</sup>They will fight with the Lamb, but the Lamb will conquer them, for he is Lord of lords and king of kings, and those with him are called, chosen, and faithful.”

<sup>15</sup>Then he said to me, “The waters that you saw where the harlot lives represent large numbers of peoples, nations, and tongues. <sup>16h*</sup>The ten horns that you saw and the beast will hate the harlot; they will leave her desolate and naked; they will eat her flesh and consume her with fire. <sup>17</sup>For God has put it into their minds to carry out his purpose and to make them come to an agreement to give their kingdom to the beast until the words of God are accomplished. <sup>18</sup>The woman whom you saw represents the great city that has sovereignty over the kings of the earth.”

CHAPTER 18

The Fall of Babylon. <sup>1i*</sup>After this I saw another angel coming down from heaven, having great authority, and the earth became illumined by his splendor. <sup>2j*</sup>He cried out in a mighty voice:

“Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great.
She has become a haunt for demons.
She is a cage for every unclean spirit,
a cage for every unclean bird, [a cage for every unclean] and disgusting [beast].

<sup>3k*</sup>For all the nations have drunk
the wine of her licentious passion.
The kings of the earth had intercourse with her, and the merchants of the earth grew rich from her drive for luxury.”

<sup>4l*</sup>Then I heard another voice from heaven say:

“Depart from her, my people, so as not to take part in her sins and receive a share in her plagues,

<sup>5m</sup>for her sins are piled up to the sky, and God remembers her crimes.

<sup>6n</sup>Pay her back as she has paid others.
Pay her back double for her deeds.
Into her cup pour double what she poured.

<sup>7o</sup>To the measure of her boasting and wantonness repay her in torment and grief;
for she said to herself,
‘I sit enthroned as queen;
I am no widow,
and I will never know grief.’

<sup>8</sup>Therefore, her plagues will come in one day, pestilence, grief, and famine;

she will be consumed by fire.
For mighty is the Lord God who judges her.”

<sup>9</sup>The kings of the earth who had intercourse with her in their wantonness will weep and mourn over her when they see the smoke of her pyre. <sup>10</sup>They will keep their distance for fear of the torment inflicted on her, and they will say:

“Alas, alas, great city,
Babylon, mighty city.
In one hour your judgment has come.”

<sup>11*</sup>The merchants of the earth will weep and mourn for her, because there will be no more markets for their cargo: <sup>12</sup>their cargo of gold, silver, precious stones, and pearls; fine linen, purple silk, and scarlet cloth; fragrant wood of every kind, all articles of ivory and all articles of the most expensive wood, bronze, iron, and marble; <sup>13*</sup>cinnamon, spice, incense, myrrh, and frankincense; wine, olive oil, fine flour, and wheat; cattle and sheep, horses and chariots, and slaves, that is, human beings.

has left you.
All your luxury and splendor are gone, never again will one find them.”

“Alas, alas, great city, wearing fine linen, purple and scarlet, adorned [in] gold, precious stones, and pearls.
<sup>17</sup>In one hour this great wealth has been ruined.”

Every captain of a ship, every traveler at sea, sailors, and seafaring merchants stood at a distance <sup>18</sup>and cried out when they saw the smoke of her pyre, “What city could compare with the great city?” <sup>19r</sup>They threw dust on their heads and cried out, weeping and mourning:

“Alas, alas, great city,
in which all who had ships at sea grew rich from her wealth.
In one hour she has been ruined.

<sup>20s</sup> Rejoice over her, heaven,
you holy ones, apostles, and prophets.
For God has judged your case against her.”

<sup>21t</sup> A mighty angel picked up a stone like a huge millstone and threw it into the sea and said:

“With such force will Babylon the great city be thrown down, and will never be found again.

<sup>22u</sup> No melodies of harpists and musicians, flutists and trumpeters,
will ever be heard in you again.
No craftsmen in any trade will ever be found in you again.
No sound of the millstone will ever be heard in you again.

<sup>23v</sup> No light from a lamp will ever be seen in you again.
No voices of bride and groom will ever be heard in you again.

Because your merchants were the great ones of the world, all nations were led astray by your magic potion.

<sup>24w</sup> In her was found the blood of prophets and holy ones and all who have been slain on the earth.”

CHAPTER 19

<sup>1*</sup>After this I heard what sounded like the loud voice of a great multitude in heaven, saying:

“Alleluia!
Salvation, glory, and might belong to our God,
<sup>2x</sup>for true and just are his judgments.
He has condemned the great harlot who corrupted the earth with her harlotry.
He has avenged on her the blood of his servants.”

<sup>3y</sup>They said a second time: “Alleluia! Smoke will rise from her forever and ever.”

The Victory Song. <sup>5z*</sup>A voice coming from the throne said:

“Praise our God, all you his servants, [and] you who revere him, small and great.”

<sup>6</sup>Then I heard something like the sound of a great multitude or the sound of rushing water or mighty peals of thunder, as they said:

“Alleluia!
The Lord has established his reign,
[our] God, the almighty.
<sup>7a*</sup>Let us rejoice and be glad and give him glory.
For the wedding day of the Lamb has come,
his bride has made herself ready.

<sup>8b*</sup>She was allowed to wear a bright, clean linen garment.”

(The linen represents the righteous deeds of the holy ones.)

<sup>9c*</sup>Then the angel said to me, “Write this: Blessed are those who have been called to the wedding feast of the Lamb.” And he said to me, “These words are true; they come from God.” <sup>10d*</sup>I fell at his feet to worship him. But he said to me, “Don’t! I am a fellow servant of yours and of your brothers who bear witness to Jesus. Worship God. Witness to Jesus is the spirit of prophecy.”

The King of Kings. <sup>11e*</sup>Then I saw the heavens opened, and there was a white horse; its rider was [called] “Faithful and True.” He judges and wages war in righteousness. <sup>12f*</sup>His eyes were [like] a fiery flame, and on his head were many diadems. He had a name inscribed that no one knows except himself. <sup>13g*</sup>He wore a cloak that had been dipped in blood, and his name was called the Word of God. <sup>14h</sup>The armies of heaven followed him, mounted on white horses and wearing clean white linen. <sup>15i*</sup>Out of his mouth came a sharp sword to strike the nations. He will rule them with an iron rod, and he himself will tread out in the wine press the wine of the fury and wrath of God the almighty. <sup>16j</sup>He has a name written on his cloak and on his thigh, “King of kings and Lord of lords.”

<sup>17*</sup>Then I saw an angel standing on the sun. He cried out [in] a loud voice to all the birds flying high overhead, “Come here. Gather for God’s great feast, <sup>18k</sup>to eat the flesh of kings, the flesh of military officers, and the flesh of warriors, the flesh of horses and of their riders, and the flesh of all, free and slave, small and great.” <sup>19</sup>Then I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies gathered to fight against the one riding the horse and against his army. <sup>20 l*</sup>The beast was caught and with it the false prophet who had performed in its sight the signs by which he led astray those who had accepted the mark of the beast and those who had worshiped its image. The two were thrown alive into the fiery pool burning with sulfur. <sup>21</sup>The rest were killed by the sword that came out of the mouth of the one riding the horse, and all the birds gorged themselves on their flesh.

CHAPTER 20

The Thousand-year Reign. <sup>1m*</sup>Then I saw an angel come down from heaven, holding in his hand the key to the abyss and a heavy chain. <sup>2n*</sup>He seized the dragon, the ancient serpent, which is the Devil or Satan, and tied it up for a thousand years <sup>3</sup>and threw it into the abyss, which he locked over it and sealed, so that it could no longer lead the nations astray until the thousand years are completed. After this, it is to be released for a short time.

<sup>4o*</sup>Then I saw thrones; those who sat on them were entrusted with judgment. I also saw the souls of those who had been beheaded for their witness to Jesus and for the word of God, and who had not worshiped the beast or its image nor had accepted its mark on their foreheads or hands. They came to life and they reigned with Christ for a thousand years. <sup>5</sup>The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were over. This is the first resurrection. <sup>6*</sup>Blessed and holy is the one who shares in the first resurrection. The second death has no power over these; they will be priests of God and of Christ, and they will reign with him for [the] thousand years.

The Large White Throne. <sup>11r*</sup>Next I saw a large white throne and the one who was sitting on it. The earth and the sky fled from his presence and there was no place for them. <sup>12s*</sup>I saw the dead, the great and the lowly, standing before the throne, and scrolls were opened. Then another scroll was opened, the book of life. The dead were judged according to their deeds, by what was written in the scrolls. <sup>13*</sup>The sea gave up its dead; then Death and Hades gave up their dead. All the dead were judged according to their deeds. <sup>14t*</sup>Then Death and Hades were thrown into the pool of fire.

(This pool of fire is the second death.) <sup>15</sup>Anyone whose name was not found written in the book of life was thrown into the pool of fire.

VI. THE NEW CREATION

CHAPTER 21

See RG 573–74

The New Heaven and the New Earth. <sup>1u*</sup>Then I saw a new heaven and a new earth. The former heaven and the former earth had passed away, and the sea was no more. <sup>2v*</sup>I also saw the holy city, a new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. <sup>3w*</sup>I heard a loud voice from the throne saying, “Behold, God’s dwelling is with the human race. He will dwell with them and they will be his people and God himself will always be with them [as their God]. <sup>4x</sup>He will wipe every tear from their eyes, and there shall be no more death or mourning, wailing or pain, [for] the old order has passed away.”

<sup>5y*</sup>The one who sat on the throne said, “Behold, I make all things new.” Then he said, “Write these words down, for they are trustworthy and true.” <sup>6z*</sup>He said to me, “They are accomplished. I [am] the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. To the thirsty I will give a gift from the spring of life-giving water. <sup>7a*</sup>The victor will inherit these gifts, and I shall be his God, and he will be my son. <sup>8b*</sup>But as for cowards, the unfaithful, the depraved, murderers, the unchaste, sorcerers, idol-worshipers, and deceivers of every sort, their lot is in the burning pool of fire and sulfur, which is the second death.”

The New Jerusalem. <sup>9*</sup>One of the seven angels who held the seven bowls filled with the seven last plagues came and said to me, “Come here. I will show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb.” <sup>10c</sup>He took me in spirit to a great, high mountain and showed me the holy city Jerusalem coming down out of heaven from God. <sup>11d</sup>It gleamed with the splendor of God. Its radiance was like that of a precious stone, like jasper, clear as crystal. <sup>12</sup>It had a massive, high wall, with twelve gates where twelve angels were stationed and on which names were inscribed, [the names] of the twelve tribes of the Israelites. <sup>13e</sup>There were three gates facing east, three north, three south, and three west. <sup>14 f*</sup>The wall of the city had twelve courses of stones as its foundation, on which were inscribed the twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

<sup>15*</sup>The one who spoke to me held a gold measuring rod to measure the city, its gates, and its wall. <sup>16*</sup>The city was square, its length the same as

[also] its width. He measured the city with the rod and found it fifteen hundred miles in length and width and height. <sup>17*</sup>He also measured its wall: one hundred and forty-four cubits according to the standard unit of measurement the angel used. <sup>18*</sup>The wall was constructed of jasper, while the city was pure gold, clear as glass. <sup>19g</sup>The foundations of the city wall were decorated with every precious stone; the first course of stones was jasper, the second sapphire, the third chalcedony, the fourth emerald, <sup>20</sup>the fifth sardonyx, the sixth carnelian, the seventh chrysolite, the eighth beryl, the ninth topaz, the tenth chrysoprase, the eleventh hyacinth, and the twelfth amethyst. <sup>21</sup>The twelve gates were twelve pearls, each of the gates made from a single pearl; and the street of the city was of pure gold, transparent as glass.

<sup>22h*</sup>I saw no temple in the city, for its temple is the Lord God almighty and the Lamb. <sup>23i*</sup>The city had no need of sun or moon to shine on it, for the glory of God gave it light, and its lamp was the Lamb. <sup>24j*</sup>The nations will walk by its light, and to it the kings of the earth will bring their treasure. <sup>25</sup>During the day its gates will never be shut, and there will be no night there. <sup>26</sup>The treasure and wealth of the nations will be brought there, <sup>27k</sup>but nothing unclean will enter it, nor any [one] who does abominable things or tells lies. Only those will enter whose names are written in the Lamb's book of life.

CHAPTER 22

VII. EPILOGUE

<sup>6n*</sup> And he said to me, “These words are trustworthy and true, and the Lord, the God of prophetic spirits, sent his angel to show his servants what must happen soon.” <sup>7o*</sup> “Behold, I am coming soon.” Blessed is the one who keeps the prophetic message of this book.

<sup>8</sup> It is I, John, who heard and saw these things, and when I heard and saw them I fell down to worship at the feet of the angel who showed them to me. <sup>9 p</sup> But he said to me, “Don’t! I am a fellow servant of yours and of your brothers the prophets and of those who keep the message of this book. Worship God.”

<sup>10*</sup> Then he said to me, “Do not seal up the prophetic words of this book, for the appointed time is near. <sup>11</sup> Let the wicked still act wickedly, and the filthy still be filthy. The righteous must still do right, and the holy still be holy.”

<sup>12q</sup> “Behold, I am coming soon. I bring with me the recompense I will give to each according to his deeds. <sup>13r*</sup> I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end.”

<sup>14s*</sup> Blessed are they who wash their robes so as to have the right to the tree of life and enter the city through its gates. <sup>15t</sup> Outside are the dogs, the sorcerers, the unchaste, the murderers, the idol-worshippers, and all who love and practice deceit.

<sup>16u*</sup> “I, Jesus, sent my angel to give you this testimony for the churches. I am the root and offspring of David, the bright morning star.”

<sup>17v*</sup> The Spirit and the bride say, “Come.” Let the hearer say, “Come.” Let the one who thirsts come forward, and the one who wants it receive the gift of life-giving water.

<sup>18</sup> I warn everyone who hears the prophetic words in this book: if anyone adds to them, God will add to him the plagues described in this book, <sup>19w</sup> and if anyone takes away from the words in this prophetic book, God will take away his share in the tree of life and in the holy city described in this book.

Amen! Come, Lord Jesus!

1:1–3 This prologue describes the source, contents, and audience of the book and forms an inclusion with the epilogue (Rev 22:6–21), with its similar themes and expressions.

1:3 Blessed is the one: this is the first of seven beatitudes in this book; the others are in Rev 14:13; 16:15; 19:9; 20:6; 22:7, 14. This prophetic message: literally, “the words of the prophecy”; so Rev 22:7, 10, 18, 19 by inclusion. The appointed time: when Jesus will return in glory; cf. Rev 1:7; 3:11; 22:7, 10, 12, 20.

1:4–8 Although Revelation begins and ends (Rev 22:21) with Christian epistolary formulae, there is nothing between Rev 4; 22 resembling a letter. The author here employs the standard word order for greetings in Greek letter writing: “N. to N., greetings ...”; see note on Rom 1:1.

1:4 Seven churches in Asia: Asia refers to the Roman province of that name in western Asia Minor (modern Turkey); these representative churches are mentioned by name in Rev 1:11, and each is the recipient of a message (Rev 2:1–3:22). Seven is the biblical number suggesting fullness and completeness; thus the seer is writing for the whole church.

1:5 Freed us: the majority of Greek manuscripts and several early versions read “washed us”; but “freed us” is supported by the best manuscripts and fits well with Old Testament imagery, e.g., Is 40:2.

1:8 The Alpha and the Omega: the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet. In Rev 22:13 the same words occur together with the expressions “the First and the Last, the Beginning and the End”; cf. Rev 1:17; 2:8; 21:6; Is 41:4; 44:6.

1:9–20 In this first vision, the seer is commanded to write what he sees to the seven churches (Rev 1:9–11). He sees Christ in glory, whom he depicts in stock apocalyptic imagery (Rev 1:12–16), and hears him describe himself in terms meant to encourage Christians by emphasizing his victory over death (Rev 1:17–20).

1:9 Island called Patmos: one of the Sporades islands in the Aegean Sea, some fifty miles south of Ephesus, used by the Romans as a penal colony. Because I proclaimed God’s word: literally, “on account of God’s word.”

1:10 The Lord’s day: Sunday. As loud as a trumpet: the imagery is derived from the theophany at Sinai (Ex 19:16, 19; cf. Heb 12:19 and the trumpet in other eschatological settings in Is 27:13; Jl 2:1; Mt 24:31; 1 Cor 15:52; 1 Thes 4:16).

1:11 Scroll: a papyrus roll.

1:12–16 A symbolic description of Christ in glory. The metaphorical language is not to be understood literally; cf. Introduction.

1:13 Son of man: see note on Mk 8:31. Ankle-length robe: Christ is priest; cf. Ex 28:4; 29:5; Wis 18:24; Zec 3:4. Gold sash: Christ is king; cf. Ex 28:4; 1 Mc 10:89; 11:58; Dn 10:5.

1:14 Hair ... as white as white wool or as snow: Christ is eternal, clothed with the dignity that belonged to the “Ancient of Days”; cf. Rev 1:18; Dn 7:9. His eyes were like a fiery flame: Christ is portrayed as all-knowing; cf. Rev 2:23; Ps 7:10; Jer 17:10; and similar expressions in Rev 2:18; 19:12; cf. Dn 10:6.

1:15 His feet ... furnace: Christ is depicted as unchangeable; cf. Ez 1:27; Dn 10:6. The Greek word translated “refined” is unconnected grammatically with any other word in the sentence. His voice ... water: Christ speaks with divine authority; cf. Ez 1:24.

1:16 Seven stars: in the pagan world, Mithras and the Caesars were represented with seven stars in their right hand, symbolizing their universal dominion. A sharp two-edged sword: this refers to the word of God (cf. Eph 6:17; Heb 4:12) that will destroy unrepentant sinners; cf. Rev 2:16; 19:15; Wis 18:15; Is 11:4; 49:2. His face ... brightest: this symbolizes the divine majesty of Christ; cf. Rev 10:1; 21:23; Jgs 5:31; Is 60:19; Mt 17:2.

1:17 It was an Old Testament belief that for sinful human beings to see God was to die; cf. Ex 19:21; 33:20; Jgs 6:22–23; Is 6:5.

1:18 Netherworld: Greek Hades, Hebrew Sheol, the abode of the dead; cf. Rev 20:13–14; Nm 16:33.

1:19 What you have seen, and what is happening, and what will happen afterwards: the three parts of the Book of Revelation, the vision (Rev 1:10–20), the situation in the seven churches (Rev 2–3), and the events of Rev 6–22.

1:20 Secret meaning: literally, “mystery.” Angels: these are the presiding spirits of the seven churches. Angels were thought to be in charge of the physical world (cf. Rev 7:1; 14:18; 16:5) and of nations (Dn 10:13; 12:1), communities (the seven churches), and individuals (Mt 18:10; Acts 12:15). Some have seen in the “angel” of each of the seven churches its pastor or a personification of the spirit of the congregation.

2:1–3:22 Each of the seven letters follows the same pattern: address; description of the exalted Christ; blame and/or praise for the church addressed; threat and/or admonition; final exhortation and promise to all Christians.

2:1–7 The letter to Ephesus praises the members of the church there for their works and virtues, including discerning false teachers (Rev 2:2–3), but admonishes them to repent and return to their former devotion (Rev 2:4–5). It concludes with a reference to the Nicolaitans (see note on Rev 2:6) and a promise that the victor will have access to eternal life (Rev 2:7).

2:1 Ephesus: this great ancient city had a population of ca. 250,000; it was the capital of the Roman province of Asia and the commercial, cultural, and religious center of Asia. The other six churches were located in the same province, situated roughly in a circle; they were selected for geographical reasons rather than for the size of their Christian communities. Walks in the midst of the seven gold lampstands: this signifies that Christ is always present in the church; see note on Rev 1:4.

2:2 Who call themselves ... impostors: this refers to unauthorized and perverse missionaries; cf. Acts 20:29–30.

2:6 Nicolaitans: these are perhaps the impostors of Rev 2:2; see note on Rev 2:14–15. There is little evidence for connecting this group with Nicolaus, the proselyte from Antioch, mentioned in Acts 6:5.

2:7 Victor: referring to any Christian individual who holds fast to the faith and does God’s will in the face of persecution. The tree of life that is in the garden of God: this is a reference to the tree in the primeval paradise (Gn 2:9); cf. Rev 22:2, 14, 19. The decree excluding humanity from the tree of life has been revoked by Christ.

2:8–11 The letter to Smyrna encourages the Christians in this important commercial center by telling them that although they are impoverished, they are nevertheless rich, and calls those Jews who are slandering them members of the assembly of Satan (Rev 2:9). There is no admonition; rather, the Christians are told that they will suffer much, even death, but the time of tribulation will be short compared to their eternal reward (Rev 2:10), and they will thus escape final damnation (Rev 2:11).

2:8 Smyrna: modern Izmir, ca. thirty miles north of Ephesus, and the chief city of Lydia, with a temple to the goddess Roma. It was renowned for its loyalty to Rome, and it also had a large Jewish community very hostile toward Christians.

2:9–10 The church in Smyrna was materially poor but spiritually rich. Accusations made by Jewish brethren there occasioned the persecution of Christians; cf. Acts 14:2, 19; 17:5, 13.

2:11 The second death: this refers to the eternal death, when sinners will receive their final punishment; cf. Rev 20:6, 14–15; 21:8.

2:12–17 The letter to Pergamum praises the members of the church for persevering in their faith in Christ even in the midst of a pagan setting and in face of persecution and martyrdom (Rev 2:13). But it admonishes them about members who advocate an unprincipled morality (Rev 2:14; cf. 2 Pt 2:15; Jude 11) and others who follow the teaching of the Nicolaitans (Rev 2:15; see note there). It urges them to repent (Rev 2:16) and promises them the hidden manna and Christ's amulet (Rev 2:17).

2:12 Pergamum: modern Bergama, ca. forty-five miles northeast of Smyrna, a center for various kinds of pagan worship. It also had an outstanding library (the word parchment is derived from its name).

2:13 Satan's throne: the reference is to emperor worship and other pagan practices that flourished in Pergamum, perhaps specifically to the white marble altar erected and dedicated to Zeus by Eumenes II (197–160 b.c.).

2:14–15 Like Balaam, the biblical prototype of the religious compromiser (cf. Nm 25:1–3; 31:16; 2 Pt 2:15; Jude 11), the Nicolaitans in Pergamum and Ephesus (Rev 2:6) accommodated their Christian faith to paganism. They abused the principle of liberty enunciated by Paul (1 Cor 9:19–23).

2:17 The hidden manna: this is the food of life; cf. Ps 78:24–25. White amulet: literally, “white stone,” on which was written a magical name, whose power could be tapped by one who knew the secret name. It is used here as a symbol of victory and joy; cf. Rev 3:4–5. New name: this is a reference to the Christian's rebirth in Christ; cf. Rev 3:12; 19:12; Is 62:2; 65:15.

2:18–29 The letter to Thyatira praises the progress in virtue of this small Christian community (Rev 2:19) but admonishes them for tolerating a false prophet who leads them astray (Rev 2:20). Her fate is sealed, but there is hope of repentance for her followers (Rev 2:21–22). Otherwise, they too shall die (Rev 2:23). They are warned against Satanic power or knowledge (Rev 2:24–25). Those who remain faithful will share in the messianic reign, having authority over nations (Rev 2:26–27), and will in fact possess Christ himself (Rev 2:28).

2:18 Thyatira: modern Akhisar, ca. forty miles southeast of Pergamum, a frontier town famous for its workers' guilds (cf. Acts 16:14), membership in which may have involved festal meals in pagan temples.

2:20 The scheming and treacherous Jezebel of old (cf. 1 Kgs 19:1–2; 21:1–14; 2Kgs 9:22, 30–34) introduced pagan customs into the religion of Israel; this new Jezebel was doing the same to Christianity.

2:23 Children: spiritual descendants.

2:24 The so-called deep secrets of Satan: literally, “the deep things of Satan,” a scathing reference to the perverse teaching of the Nicolaitans (Rev 2:15).

2:26–28 The Christian who perseveres in faith will share in Christ's messianic authority (cf. Ps 2:8–9) and resurrection victory over death, symbolized by the morning star; cf. Rev 22:16.

2:26 Who keeps to my ways: literally, “who keeps my works.”

3:1–6 The letter to Sardis does not praise the community but admonishes its members to watchfulness, mutual support, and repentance (Rev 3:2–3). The few who have remained pure and faithful will share Christ's victory and will be inscribed in the book of life (Rev 3:4–5).

3:1 Sardis: this city, located ca. thirty miles southeast of Thyatira, was once the capital of Lydia, known for its wealth at the time of Croesus (6th century B.C.). Its citadel, reputed to be unassailable, was captured by surprise, first by Cyrus and later by Antiochus. The church is therefore warned to be on guard.

3:5 In white: white is a sign of victory and joy as well as resurrection; see note on Rev 2:17. The book of life: the roll in which the names of the redeemed are kept; cf. Rev 13:8; 17:8; 20:12, 15; 21:27; Phil 4:3; Dn 12:1. They will be acknowledged by Christ in heaven; cf. Mt 10:32.

3:7–13 The letter to Philadelphia praises the Christians there for remaining faithful even with their limited strength (Rev 3:8). Members of the assembly of Satan are again singled out (Rev 3:9; see Rev 2:9). There is no admonition; rather, the letter promises that they will be kept safe at the great trial (Rev 3:10–11) and that the victors will become pillars of the heavenly temple, upon which three names will be inscribed: God, Jerusalem, and Christ (Rev 3:12).

3:7 Philadelphia: modern Alasehir, ca. thirty miles southeast of Sardis, founded by Attalus II Philadelphus of Pergamum to be an “open door” (Rev 3:8) for Greek culture; it was destroyed by an earthquake in A.D. 17. Rebuilt by money from the Emperor Tiberius, the city was renamed Neo-Caesarea; this may explain the allusions to “name” in Rev 3:12. Key of David: to the heavenly city of David (cf. Is 22:22), “the new Jerusalem” (Rev 3:12), over which Christ has supreme authority.

3:8 An open door: opportunities for sharing and proclaiming the faith; cf. Acts 14:27; 1 Cor 16:9; 2 Cor 2:12.

3:10 My message of endurance: this does not refer to a saying of Jesus about patience but to the example of Christ’s patient endurance. The inhabitants of the earth: literally, “those who live on the earth.” This expression, which also occurs in Rev 6:10; 8:13; 11:10; 13:8, 12, 14; 17:2, 8, always refers to the pagan world.

3:12 Pillar: this may be an allusion to the rebuilding of the city; see note on v. 7. New Jerusalem: it is described in Rev 21:10–22:5.

3:14–22 The letter to Laodicea reprimands the community for being lukewarm (Rev 3:15–16), but no particular faults are singled out. Their material prosperity is contrasted with their spiritual poverty, the violet tunics that were the source of their wealth with the white robe of baptism, and their famous eye ointment with true spiritual perception (Rev 3:17–18). But Christ’s chastisement is inspired by love and a desire to be allowed to share the messianic banquet with his followers in the heavenly kingdom (Rev 3:19–21).

3:14 Laodicea: ca. forty miles southeast of Philadelphia and ca. eighty miles east of Ephesus, a wealthy industrial and commercial center, with a renowned medical school. It exported fine woolen garments and was famous for its eye salves. It was so wealthy that it was proudly rebuilt without outside aid after the devastating earthquake of a.d. 60/61. The Amen: this is a divine title (cf. Hebrew text of Is 65:16) applied to Christ; cf. 2 Cor 1:20. Source of God’s creation: literally, “the beginning of God’s creation,” a concept found also in Jn 1:3; Col 1:16–17; Heb 1:2; cf. Prv 8:22–31; Wis 9:1–2.

3:15–16 Halfhearted commitment to the faith is nauseating to Christ; cf. Rom 12:11.

3:16 Spit: literally, “vomit.” The image is that of a beverage that should be either hot or cold. Perhaps there is an allusion to the hot springs of Hierapolis across the Lycus river from Laodicea, which would have been lukewarm by the time they reached Laodicea.

3:17 Economic prosperity occasioned spiritual bankruptcy.

3:18 Gold ... fire: God’s grace. White garments: symbol of an upright life; the city was noted for its violet/purple cloth. Ointment ... eyes: to remove spiritual blindness; one of the city’s exports was eye ointment (see note on Rev 3:14).

3:20 Christ invites all to the messianic banquet in heaven; cf. Is 25:6; Lk 14:15; 22:30.

4:1–11 The seer now describes a vision of the heavenly court in worship of God enthroned. He reverently avoids naming or describing God but pictures twenty-four elders in priestly and regal attire (Rev 4:4) and God’s throne and its surroundings made of precious gems and other symbols that traditionally express the majesty of God (Rev 4:5–6). Universal creation is represented by the four living creatures (Rev 4:6–7). Along with the twenty-four elders, they praise God unceasingly in humble adoration (Rev 4:8–11).

4:1 The ancients viewed heaven as a solid vault, entered by way of actual doors.

4:2–8 Much of the imagery here is taken from Ez 1 and 10.

4:4 Twenty-four elders: these represent the twelve tribes of Israel and the twelve apostles; cf. Rev 21:12–14.

4:5 Flashes of lightning, rumblings, and peals of thunder: as in other descriptions of God's appearance or activity; cf. Rev 8:5; 11:19; 16:18; Ex 19:16; Ez 1:4, 13. The seven spirits of God: the seven "angels of the presence" as in Rev 8:2 and Tb 12:15.

4:6 A sea of glass like crystal: an image adapted from Ez 1:22–26. Four living creatures: these are symbols taken from Ez 1:5–21; they are identified as cherubim in Ez 10:20. Covered with eyes: these suggest God's knowledge and concern.

4:7 Lion ... calf ... human being ... eagle: these symbolize, respectively, what is noblest, strongest, wisest, and swiftest in creation. Calf: traditionally translated "ox," the Greek word refers to a heifer or young bull. Since the second century, these four creatures have been used as symbols of the evangelists Mark, Luke, Matthew, and John, respectively.

4:8 Six wings: like the seraphim of Is 6:2.

5:1–14 The seer now describes a papyrus roll in God's right hand (Rev 5:1) with seven seals indicating the importance of the message. A mighty angel asks who is worthy to open the scroll, i.e., who can accomplish God's salvific plan (Rev 5:2). There is despair at first when no one in creation can do it (Rev 5:3–4). But the seer is comforted by an elder who tells him that Christ, called the lion of the tribe of Judah, has won the right to open it (Rev 5:5). Christ then appears as a Lamb, coming to receive the scroll from God (Rev 5:6–7), for which he is acclaimed as at a coronation (Rev 5:8–10). This is followed by a doxology of the angels (Rev 5:11–12) and then finally by the heavenly church united with all of creation (Rev 5:13–14).

5:1 Ascroll: a papyrus roll possibly containing a list of afflictions for sinners (cf. Ez 2:9–10) or God's plan for the world. Sealed with seven seals: it is totally hidden from all but God. Only the Lamb (Rev 5:7–9) has the right to carry out the divine plan.

5:5 The lion of the tribe of Judah, the root of David: these are the messianic titles applied to Christ to symbolize his victory; cf. Rev 22:16; Gn 49:9; Is 11:1, 10; Mt 1:1.

5:6 Christ is the Paschal Lamb without blemish, whose blood saved the new Israel from sin and death; cf. Ex 12; Is 53:7; Jn 1:29, 36; Acts 8:32; 1 Pt 1:18–19. This is the main title for Christ in Revelation, used twenty-eight times. Seven horns and seven eyes: Christ has the fullness (see note on Rev 1:4) of power (horns) and knowledge (eyes); cf. Zec 4:7. [Seven] spirits: as in Rev 1:4; 3:1; 4:5.

5:11 Countless: literally, "100,000,000 plus 1,000,000," used by the author to express infinity.

6:1–16:21 A series of seven disasters now begins as each seal is broken (Rev 6:1–8:1), followed by a similar series as seven trumpets sound (Rev 8:2–11:19) and as seven angels pour bowls on the earth causing plagues (Rev 15:1–16:21). These gloomy sequences are interrupted by longer or shorter scenes suggesting the triumph of God and his witnesses (e.g., Rev 7; 10; 11; 12; 13; 14).

6:1–17 This chapter provides a symbolic description of the contents of the sealed scroll. The breaking of the first four seals reveals four riders. The first rider (of a white horse) is a conquering power (Rev 6:1–2), the second (red horse) a symbol of bloody war (Rev 6:3–4), the third (black horse) a symbol of famine (Rev 6:5–6), the fourth (pale green horse) a symbol of Death himself, accompanied by Hades (the netherworld) as his page (Rev 6:7–8). Rev 6:8b summarizes the role of all four riders. The breaking of the fifth seal reveals Christian martyrs in an attitude of sacrifice as blood poured out at the foot of an altar begging God for vindication, which will come only when their quota is filled; but they are given a white robe symbolic of victory (Rev 6:9–11). The breaking of the sixth seal reveals typical apocalyptic signs in the sky and the sheer terror of all people at the imminent divine judgment (Rev 6:12–17).

6:1–8 The imagery is adapted from Zec 1:8–10; 6:1–8.

6:2 White horse ... bow: this may perhaps allude specifically to the Parthians on the eastern border of the Roman empire. Expert in the use of the bow, they constantly harassed the Romans and won a major victory in A.D. 62; see note on Rev 9:13–21. But the Old Testament imagery typifies the history of oppression of God's people at all times.

6:4 Huge sword: this is a symbol of war and violence; cf. Ez 21:14—17.

6:5 Black horse: this is a symbol of famine, the usual accompaniment of war in antiquity; cf. Lv 26:26; Ez 4:12–13. The scale is a symbol of shortage of food with a corresponding rise in price.

6:6 A day's pay: literally, “a denarius,” a Roman silver coin that constitutes a day's wage in Mt 20:2. Because of the famine, food was rationed and sold at an exorbitant price. A liter of flour was considered a day's ration in the Greek historians Herodotus and Diogenes Laertius. Barley: food of the poor (Jn 6:9, 13; cf. 2 Kgs 7:1, 16, 18); it was also used to feed animals; cf. 1 Kgs 5:8. Do not damage: the olive and the vine are to be used more sparingly in time of famine.

6:8 Pale green: symbol of death and decay; cf. Ez 14:21.

6:9 The altar: this altar corresponds to the altar of holocausts in the temple in Jerusalem; see also Rev 11:1. Because of the witness ... word of God: literally, “because of the word of God and the witness they had borne.”

6:10 Holy and true master: Old Testament usage as well as the context indicates that this is addressed to God rather than to Christ.

6:12–14 Symbolic rather than literal description of the cosmic upheavals attending the day of the Lord when the martyrs' prayer for vindication (Rev 6:10) would be answered; cf. Am 8:8–9; Is 34:4; 50:3; Jl 2:10; 3:3–4; Mt 24:4–36; Mk 13:5–37; Lk 21:8–36.

6:12 Dark sackcloth: for mourning, sackcloth was made from the skin of a black goat.

6:13 Unripe figs: literally, “summer (or winter) fruit.”

6:14 Was divided: literally, “was split,” like a broken papyrus roll torn in two, each half then curling up to form a roll on either side.

6:15 Nobles: literally, “courtiers,” “grandees.” Military officers: literally, “commanders of 1,000 men,” used in Josephus and other Greek authors as the equivalent of the Roman tribunus militum. The listing of various ranks of society represents the universality of terror at the impending doom.

6:17 Their: this reading is attested in the best manuscripts, but the vast majority read “his” in reference to the wrath of the Lamb in the preceding verse.

7:1–17 An interlude of two visions precedes the breaking of the seventh seal, just as two more will separate the sixth and seventh trumpets (Rev 10). In the first vision (Rev 7:1–8), the elect receive the seal of the living God as protection against the coming cataclysm; cf. Rev 14:1; Ez 9:4–6; 2 Cor 1:22; Eph 1:13; 4:30. The second vision (Rev 7:9–17) portrays the faithful Christians before God's throne to encourage those on earth to persevere to the end, even to death.

7:1 The four corners of the earth: the earth is seen as a table or rectangular surface.

7:2 East: literally, “rising of the sun.” The east was considered the source of light and the place of paradise (Gn 2:8). Seal: whatever was marked by the impression of one's signet ring belonged to that person and was under his protection.

7:4–9 One hundred and forty-four thousand: the square of twelve (the number of Israel's tribes) multiplied by a thousand, symbolic of the new Israel (cf. Rev 14:1–5; Gal 6:16; Jas 1:1) that embraces people from every nation, race, people, and tongue (Rev 7:9).

7:5–8 Judah is placed first because of Christ; cf. “the Lion of the tribe of Judah” (Rev 5:5). Dan is omitted because of a later tradition that the antichrist would arise from it.

7:9 White robes ... palm branches: symbols of joy and victory; see note on Rev 3:5.

7:14 Time of great distress: fierce persecution by the Romans; cf. Introduction.

7:17 Life-giving water: literally, “the water of life,” God's grace, which flows from Christ; cf. Rev 21:6; 22:1, 17; Jn 4:10, 14.

8:1–13 The breaking of the seventh seal produces at first silence and then seven symbolic disasters, each announced by a trumpet blast, of which the first four form a unit as did the first four seals. A minor liturgy (Rev 8:3–5) is enclosed by a vision of seven angels (Rev 8:2, 6). Then follow the first four trumpet blasts, each heralding catastrophes modeled on the plagues of Egypt affecting the traditional prophetic third (cf. Ez 5:12) of the earth, sea, fresh water, and stars (Rev 8:7–12). Finally, there is a vision of an eagle warning of the last three trumpet blasts (Rev 8:13).

8:1 Silence in heaven: as in Zep 1:7, a prelude to the eschatological woes that are to follow; cf. Introduction.

8:3 Altar: there seems to be only one altar in the heavenly temple, corresponding to the altar of holocausts in Rev 6:9, and here to the altar of incense in Jerusalem; cf. also Rev 9:13; 11:1; 14:18; 16:7.

8:7 This woe resembles the seventh plague of Egypt (Ex 9:23–24); cf. Jl 3:3.

8:8–11 The background of these two woes is the first plague of Egypt (Ex 7:20–21).

8:9 Creatures living in the sea: literally, “creatures in the sea that had souls.”

8:11 Wormwood: an extremely bitter and malignant plant symbolizing the punishment God inflicts on the ungodly; cf. Jer 9:12–14; 23:15.

8:13 Woe! Woe! Woe: each of the three woes pronounced by the angel represents a separate disaster; cf. Rev 9:12; 11:14. The final woe, released by the seventh trumpet blast, includes the plagues of Rev 16.

9:1–12 The fifth trumpet heralds a woe containing elements from the eighth and ninth plagues of Egypt (Ex 10:12–15, 21–23) but specifically reminiscent of the invasion of locusts in Jl 1:4–2:10.

9:1 A star: late Judaism represented fallen powers as stars (Is 14:12–15; Lk 10:18; Jude 13), but a comparison with Rev 1:20 and Rev 20:1 suggests that here it means an angel. The passage to the abyss: referring to Sheol, the netherworld, where Satan and the fallen angels are kept for a thousand years, to be cast afterwards into the pool of fire; cf. Rev 20:7–10. The abyss was conceived of as a vast subterranean cavern full of fire. Its only link with the earth was a kind of passage or mine shaft, which was kept locked.

9:3 Scorpions: their poisonous sting was proverbial; Ez 2:6; Lk 11:12.

9:5 For five months: more or less corresponding to the life-span of locusts.

9:7–10 Eight characteristics are listed to show the eschatological and diabolical nature of these locusts.

9:11 Abaddon: Hebrew (more precisely, Aramaic) for destruction or ruin. Apollyon: Greek for the “Destroyer.”

9:13–21 The sixth trumpet heralds a woe representing another diabolical attack symbolized by an invasion by the Parthians living east of the Euphrates; see note on Rev 6:2. At the appointed time (Rev 9:15), the frightful horses act as God’s agents of judgment. The imaginative details are not to be taken literally; see Introduction and the note on Rev 6:12–14.

9:13 [Four]: many Greek manuscripts and versions omit the word. The horns were situated at the four corners of the altar (Ex 27:2; 30:2–3); see note on Rev 8:3.

9:14–15 The four angels: they are symbolic of the destructive activity that will be extended throughout the universe.

9:20 The works of their hands: i.e., the gods their hands had made.

10:1–11:14 An interlude in two scenes (Rev 10:1–11 and Rev 11:1–14) precedes the sounding of the seventh trumpet; cf. Rev 7:1–17. The first vision describes an angel astride sea and land like a colossus, with a small scroll open, the contents of which indicate that the end is imminent (Rev 10). The second vision is of the measuring of the temple and of two witnesses, whose martyrdom means that the kingdom of God is about to be inaugurated.

10:2 He placed ... on the land: this symbolizes the universality of the angel's message, as does the figure of the small scroll open to be read.

10:3 The seven thunders: God's voice announcing judgment and doom; cf. Ps 29:3–9, where thunder, as the voice of Yahweh, is praised seven times.

10:6 Heaven and earth and sea: the three parts of the universe. No more delay: cf. Dn 12:7; Heb 2:3.

10:7 The mysterious plan of God: literally, "the mystery of God," the end of the present age when the forces of evil will be put down (Rev 17:1–19:4, 11–21; 20:7–10; cf. 2 Thes 2:6–12; Rom 16:25–26), and the establishment of the reign of God when all creation will be made new (Rev 21:1–22:5).

10:9–10 The small scroll was sweet because it predicted the final victory of God's people; it was sour because it also announced their sufferings. Cf. Ez 3:1–3.

10:11 This further prophecy is contained in chaps. 12–22.

11:1 The temple and altar symbolize the new Israel; see note on Rev 7:4–9. The worshipers represent Christians. The measuring of the temple (cf. Ez 40:3–42:20; 47:1–12; Zec 2:5–6) suggests that God will preserve the faithful remnant (cf. Is 4:2–3) who remain true to Christ (Rev 14:1–5).

11:2 The outer court: the Court of the Gentiles. Trample ... forty-two months: the duration of the vicious persecution of the Jews by Antiochus IV Epiphanes (Dn 7:25; 12:7); this persecution of three and a half years (half of seven, counted as 1260 days in Rev 11:3; 12:6) became the prototype of periods of trial for God's people; cf. Lk 4:25; Jas 5:17. The reference here is to the persecution by the Romans; cf. Introduction.

11:3 The two witnesses, wearing sackcloth symbolizing lamentation and repentance, cannot readily be identified. Do they represent Moses and Elijah, or the Law and the Prophets, or Peter and Paul? Most probably they refer to the universal church, especially the Christian martyrs, fulfilling the office of witness (two because of Dt 19:15; cf. Mk 6:7; Jn 8:17).

11:4 The two olive trees and the two lampstands: the martyrs who stand in the presence of the Lord; the imagery is taken from Zec 4:8–14, where the olive trees refer to Zerubbabel and Joshua.

11:5–6 These details are derived from stories of Moses, who turned water into blood (Ex 7:17–20), and of Elijah, who called down fire from heaven (1 Kgs 18:36–40; 2 Kgs 1:10) and closed up the sky for three years (1 Kgs 17:1; cf. 18:1).

11:7 The beast ... from the abyss: the Roman emperor Nero, who symbolizes the forces of evil, or the antichrist (Rev 13:1, 8; 17:8); cf. Dn 7:2–8, 11–12, 19–22 and Introduction.

11:8 The great city: this expression is used constantly in Revelation for Babylon, i.e., Rome; cf. Rev 14:8; 16:19; 17:18; 18:2, 10, 21. "Sodom" and "Egypt": symbols of immorality (cf. Is 1:10) and oppression of God's people (cf. Ex 1:11–14). Where indeed their Lord was crucified: not the geographical but the symbolic Jerusalem that rejects God and his witnesses, i.e., Rome, called Babylon in Rev 16–18; see note on Rev 17:9 and Introduction.

11:9–12 Over the martyrdom (Rev 11:7) of the two witnesses, now called prophets, the ungodly rejoice for three and a half days, a symbolic period of time; see note on Rev 11:2. Afterwards they go in triumph to heaven, as did Elijah (2 Kgs 2:11).

11:13 Seven thousand people: a symbolic sum to represent all social classes (seven) and large numbers (thousands); cf. Introduction.

11:15–19 The seventh trumpet proclaims the coming of God's reign after the victory over diabolical powers; see note on Rev 10:7.

12:1–14:20 This central section of Revelation portrays the power of evil, represented by a dragon, in opposition to God and his people. First, the dragon pursues the woman about to give birth, but her son is saved and "caught up to God and his throne" (Rev 12:5). Then Michael and his angels cast the dragon and his angels out of heaven (Rev 12:7–9). After this, the dragon tries to attack the boy indirectly by attacking members of his church (Rev 12:13–17). A beast, symbolizing the Roman empire, then becomes the dragon's agent, mortally wounded but restored to life and worshiped by all the world (Rev 13:1–10). A second beast arises from the land, symbolizing the antichrist, which leads people astray by its prodigies to idolize the first beast (Rev 13:11–18). This is followed by a vision of the Lamb and his faithful ones, and the proclamation of imminent judgment upon the world in terms of the wine of God's wrath (Rev 14:1–20).

12:1–6 The woman adorned with the sun, the moon, and the stars (images taken from Gn 37:9–10) symbolizes God's people in the Old and the New Testament. The Israel of old gave birth to the Messiah (Rev 12:5) and then became the new Israel, the church, which suffers persecution by the dragon (Rev 12:6, 13–17); cf. Is 50:1; 66:7; Jer 50:12. This corresponds to a widespread myth throughout the ancient world that a goddess pregnant with a savior was pursued by a horrible monster; by miraculous intervention, she bore a son who then killed the monster.

12:2 Because of Eve's sin, the woman gives birth in distress and pain (Gn 3:16; cf. Is 66:7–14).

12:3 Huge red dragon: the Devil or Satan (cf. Rev 12:9; 20:2), symbol of the forces of evil, a mythical monster known also as Leviathan (Ps 74:13–14) or Rahab (Jb 26:12–13; Ps 89:11). Seven diadems: these are symbolic of the fullness of the dragon's sovereignty over the kingdoms of this world; cf. Christ with many diadems (Rev 19:12).

12:5 Rule ... iron rod: fulfilled in Rev 19:15; cf. Ps 2:9. Was caught up to God: reference to Christ's ascension.

12:6 God protects the persecuted church in the desert, the traditional Old Testament place of refuge for the afflicted, according to the typology of the Exodus; see note on Rev 11:2.

12:7–12 Michael, mentioned only here in Revelation, wins a victory over the dragon. A hymn of praise follows.

12:7 Michael: the archangel, guardian and champion of Israel; cf. Dn 10:13, 21; 12:1; Jude 9. In Hebrew, the name Michael means "Who can compare with God?"; cf. Rev 13:4.

12:9 The ancient serpent: who seduced Eve (Gn 3:1–6), mother of the human race; cf. Rev 20:2; Eph 6:11–12. Was thrown down: allusion to the expulsion of Satan from heaven; cf. Lk 10:18.

12:10 The accuser: the meaning of the Hebrew word "Satan," found in Rev 12:9; Jb 1–2; Zec 3:1; 1 Chr 21:1; he continues to accuse Christ's disciples.

12:14 Great eagle: symbol of the power and swiftness of divine help; cf. Ex 19:4; Dt 32:11; Is 40:31.

12:15 The serpent is depicted as the sea monster; cf. Rev 13:1; Is 27:1; Ez 32:2; Ps 74:13–14.

12:17 Although the church is protected by God's special providence (Rev 12:16), the individual Christian is to expect persecution and suffering.

12:18 It took its position: many later manuscripts and versions read "I took my position," thus connecting the sentence to the following paragraph.

13:1–10 This wild beast, combining features of the four beasts in Dn 7:2–28, symbolizes the Roman empire; the seven heads represent the emperors; see notes on Rev 17:10 and Rev 17:12–14. The blasphemous names are the divine titles assumed by the emperors.

13:2 Satan (Rev 12:9), the prince of this world (Jn 12:31), commissioned the beast to persecute the church (Rev 13:5–7).

13:3 This may be a reference to the popular legend that Nero would come back to life and rule again after his death (which occurred in A.D. 68 from a self-inflicted stab wound in the throat); cf. Rev 13:14; Rev 17:8. Domitian (A.D. 81–96) embodied all the cruelty and impiety of Nero. Cf. Introduction.

13:4 Worshiped the beast: allusion to emperor worship, which Domitian insisted upon and ruthlessly enforced. Who can compare with the beast: perhaps a deliberate parody of the name Michael; see note on Rev 12:7.

13:5–6 Domitian, like Antiochus IV Epiphanes (Dn 7:8, 11, 25), demanded that he be called by divine titles such as “our lord and god” and “Jupiter.” See note on Rev 11:2.

13:5 Forty-two months: this is the same duration as the profanation of the holy city (Rev 11:2), the prophetic mission of the two witnesses (Rev 11:3), and the retreat of the woman into the desert (Rev 12:6, 14).

13:11–18 The second beast is described in terms of the false prophets (cf. Rev 16:13; 19:20; 20:10) who accompany the false messiahs (the first beast); cf. Mt 24:24; Mk 13:22; 2 Thes 2:9; cf. also Dt 13:2–4. Christians had either to worship the emperor and his image or to suffer martyrdom.

13:18 Each of the letters of the alphabet in Hebrew as well as in Greek has a numerical value. Many possible combinations of letters will add up to 666, and many candidates have been nominated for this infamous number. The most likely is the emperor Caesar Nero (see note on Rev 13:3), the Greek form of whose name in Hebrew letters gives the required sum. (The Latin form of this name equals 616, which is the reading of a few manuscripts.) Nero personifies the emperors who viciously persecuted the church. It has also been observed that “6” represents imperfection, falling short of the perfect number “7,” and is represented here in a triple or superlative form.

14:1–5 Now follows a tender and consoling vision of the Lamb and his companions.

14:1 Mount Zion: in Jerusalem, the traditional place where the true remnant, the Israel of faith, is to be gathered in the messianic reign; cf. 2 Kgs 19:30–31; Jl 3:5; Ob 17; Mi 4:6–8; Zep 3:12–20. A hundred and forty-four thousand: see note on Rev 7:4–9. His Father’s name ... foreheads: in contrast to the pagans who were marked with the name or number of the beast (Rev 13:16–17).

14:4 Virgins: metaphorically, because they never indulged in any idolatrous practices, which are considered in the Old Testament to be adultery and fornication (Rev 2:14–15, 20–22; 17:1–6; cf. Ez 16:1–58; 23:1–49). The parallel passages (Rev 7:3; 22:4) indicate that the 144,000 whose foreheads are sealed represent all Christian people.

14:5 No deceit: because they did not deny Christ or do homage to the beast. Lying is characteristic of the opponents of Christ (Jn 8:44), but the Suffering Servant spoke no falsehood (Is 53:9; 1 Pt 2:22). Unblemished: a cultic term taken from the vocabulary of sacrificial ritual.

14:6–13 Three angels proclaim imminent judgment on the pagan world, calling all peoples to worship God the creator. Babylon (Rome) will fall, and its supporters will be tormented forever.

14:6 Everlasting good news: that God’s eternal reign is about to begin; see note on Rev 10:7.

14:8 This verse anticipates the lengthy dirge over Babylon (Rome) in Rev 18:1–19:4. The oracle of Is 21:9 to Babylon is applied here.

14:10–11 The wine of God’s fury: image taken from Is 51:17; Jer 25:15–16; 49:12; 51:7; Ez 23:31–34. Eternal punishment in the fiery pool of burning sulfur (or “fire and brimstone”; cf. Gn 19:24) is also reserved for the Devil, the beast, and the false prophet (Rev 19:20; 20:10; 21:8).

14:12 In addition to faith in Jesus, the seer insists upon the necessity and value of works, as in Rev 2:23; 20:12–13; 22:12; cf. Mt 16:27; Rom 2:6.

14:13 See note on Rev 1:3. According to Jewish thought, people’s actions followed them as witnesses before the court of God.

14:14–20 The reaping of the harvest symbolizes the gathering of the elect in the final judgment, while the reaping and treading of the grapes symbolizes the doom of the ungodly (cf. Jl 4:12–13; Is 63:1–6) that will come in Rev 19:11–21.

14:18 Altar: there was only one altar in the heavenly temple; see notes above on Rev 6:9; 8:3; 11:1.

14:20 Two hundred miles: literally sixteen hundred stades. The stadion, a Greek unit of measurement, was about 607 feet in length, approximately the length of a furlong.

15:1–16:21 The seven bowls, the third and last group of seven after the seven seals and the seven trumpets, foreshadow the final cataclysm. Again, the series is introduced by a heavenly prelude, in which the victors over the beast sing the canticle of Moses (Rev 15:2–4).

15:1–4 A vision of the victorious martyrs precedes the vision of woe in Rev 15:5–16:21; cf. Rev 7:9–12.

15:2 Mingled with fire: fire symbolizes the sanctity involved in facing God, reflected in the trials that have prepared the victorious Christians or in God’s wrath.

15:3 The song of Moses: the song that Moses and the Israelites sang after their escape from the oppression of Egypt (Ex 15:1–18). The martyrs have escaped from the oppression of the Devil. Nations: many other Greek manuscripts and versions read “ages.”

15:5–8 Seven angels receive the bowls of God’s wrath.

15:5 Tent of testimony: the name of the meeting tent in the Greek text of Ex 40. Cf. 2 Mc 2:4–7.

16:1–21 These seven bowls, like the seven seals (Rev 6:1–17; 8:1) and the seven trumpets (Rev 8:2–9:21; 11:15–19), bring on a succession of disasters modeled in part on the plagues of Egypt (Ex 7–12). See note on Rev 6:12–14.

16:2 Like the sixth Egyptian plague (Ex 9:8–11).

16:3–4 Like the first Egyptian plague (Ex 7:20–21). The same woe followed the blowing of the second trumpet (Rev 8:8–9).

16:10 The throne of the beast: symbol of the forces of evil. Darkness: like the ninth Egyptian plague (Ex 10:21–23); cf. Rev 9:2.

16:12 The kings of the East: Parthians; see notes on Rev 6:2 and Rev 17:12–13. East: literally, “rising of the sun,” as in Rev 7:2.

16:13 Frogs: possibly an allusion to the second Egyptian plague (Ex 7:26–8:11). The false prophet: identified with the two-horned second beast (Rev 13:11–18 and the note there).

16:15 Like a thief: as in Rev 3:3 (cf. Mt 24:42–44; 1 Thes 5:2). Blessed: see note on Rev 1:3.

16:16 Armageddon: in Hebrew, this means “Mountain of Megiddo.” Since Megiddo was the scene of many decisive battles in antiquity (Jgs 5:19–20; 2 Kgs 9:27; 2 Chr 35:20–24), the town became the symbol of the final disastrous rout of the forces of evil.

16:19 The great city: Rome and the empire.

16:20–21 See note on Rev 6:12–14. Hailstones: as in the seventh Egyptian plague (Ex 9:23–24); cf. Rev 8:7. Like huge weights: literally, “weighing a talent,” about one hundred pounds.

17:1–19:10 The punishment of Babylon is now described as a past event and, metaphorically, under the image of the great harlot who leads people astray into idolatry.

17:1–6 Babylon, the symbolic name (Rev 17:5) of Rome, is graphically described as “the great harlot.”

17:2 Intercourse ... harlotry: see note on Rev 14:4. The pagan kings subject to Rome adopted the cult of the emperor.

17:3 Scarlet beast: see note on Rev 13:1–10. Blasphemous names: divine titles assumed by the Roman emperors; see note on Rev 13:5–6.

17:6 Reference to the great wealth and idolatrous cults of Rome.

17:6b–18 An interpretation of the vision is here given.

17:8 Allusion to the belief that the dead Nero would return to power (Rev 17:11); see note on Rev 13:3.

17:9 Here is a clue: literally, “Here a mind that has wisdom.” Seven hills: of Rome.

17:10 There is little agreement as to the identity of the Roman emperors alluded to here. The number seven (Rev 17:9) suggests that all the emperors are meant; see note on Rev 1:4.

17:11 The beast: Nero; see note on Rev 17:8.

17:12–13 Ten kings who have not yet been crowned: perhaps Parthian satraps who are to accompany the revived Nero (the beast) in his march on Rome to regain power; see note on Rev

13:3. In Rev 19:11–21, the Lamb and his companions will conquer them.

17:16–18 The ten horns: the ten pagan kings (Rev 17:12) who unwittingly fulfill God's will against harlot Rome, the great city; cf. Ez 16:37.

18:1–19:4 A stirring dirge over the fall of Babylon-Rome. The perspective is prophetic, as if the fall of Rome had already taken place. The imagery here, as elsewhere in this book, is not to be taken literally. The vindictiveness of some of the language, borrowed from the scathing Old Testament prophecies against Babylon, Tyre, and Nineveh (Is 23; 24; 27; Jer 50–51; Ez 26–27), is meant to portray symbolically the inexorable demands of God's holiness and justice; cf. Introduction. The section concludes with a joyous canticle on the future glory of heaven.

18:2 Many Greek manuscripts and versions omit a cage for every unclean ... beast.

18:4 Depart from her: not evacuation of the city but separation from sinners, as always in apocalyptic literature.

18:11 Ironically, the merchants weep not so much for Babylon-Rome, but for their lost markets; cf. Ez 27:36.

18:13 Spice: an unidentified spice plant called in Greek amōmon.

19:1, 3, 4, 6 Alleluia: found only here in the New Testament, this frequent exclamation of praise in the Hebrew psalms was important in Jewish liturgy.

19:5–10 A victory song follows, sung by the entire church, celebrating the marriage of the Lamb, the union of the Messiah with the community of the elect.

19:7 The wedding day of the Lamb: symbol of God's reign about to begin (Rev 21:1–22:5); see note on Rev 10:7. His bride: the church; cf. 2 Cor 11:2; Eph 5:22–27. Marriage is one of the biblical metaphors used to describe the covenant relationship between God and his people; cf. Hos 2:16–22; Is 54:5–6; 62:5; Ez 16:6–14. Hence, idolatry and apostasy are viewed as adultery and harlotry (Hos 2:4–15; Ez 16:15–63); see note on Rev 14:4.

19:8 See note on Rev 14:12.

19:9 Blessed: see note on Rev 1:3.

19:10 The spirit of prophecy: as the prophets were inspired to proclaim God's word, so the Christian is called to give witness to the Word of God (Rev 19:13) made flesh; cf. Rev 1:2; 6:9; 12:17.

19:11–16 Symbolic description of the exalted Christ (cf. Rev 1:13–16) who together with the armies of heaven overcomes the beast and its followers; cf. Rev 17:14.

19:12 A name: in Semitic thought, the name conveyed the reality of the person; cf. Mt 11:27; Lk 10:22.

19:13 Had been dipped in: other Greek manuscripts and versions read "had been sprinkled with"; cf. Rev 19:15. The Word of God: Christ is the revelation of the Father; cf. Jn 1:1, 14; 1 Jn 2:14.

19:15 The treading of the wine press is a prophetic symbol used to describe the destruction of God's enemies; cf. Is 63:1–6; Jl 4:13.

19:17–21 The certainty of Christ's victory is proclaimed by an angel, followed by a reference to the mustering of enemy forces and a fearsome description of their annihilation. The gruesome imagery is borrowed from Ez 39:4, 17–20.

19:20 Beast ... false prophet: see notes on Rev 13. The fiery pool ... sulfur: symbol of God's punishment (Rev 14:10; 20:10, 14–15), different from the abyss; see note on Rev 9:1.

20:1–6 Like the other numerical values in this book, the thousand years are not to be taken literally; they symbolize the long period of time between the chaining up of Satan (a symbol for Christ's resurrection-victory over death and the forces of evil) and the end of the world. During this time God's people share in the glorious reign of God that is present to them by virtue of their baptismal victory over death and sin; cf. Rom 6:1–8; Jn 5:24–25; 16:33; 1 Jn 3:14; Eph 2:1.

20:1 Abyss: see note on Rev 9:1.

20:4 Beast ... mark: see Rev 13 and its notes.

20:6 Blessed: see note on Rev 1:3. Second death: see note on Rev 2:11. Priests: as in Rev 1:6; 5:10; cf. 1 Pt 2:9.

20:7–10 A description of the symbolic battle to take place when Satan is released at the end of time, when the thousand years are over; see note on Rev 20:1–6.

20:8 Gog and Magog: symbols of all pagan nations; the names are taken from Ez 38:1–39:20.

20:9 The breadth of the earth: Palestine. The beloved city: Jerusalem; see note on Rev 14:1.

20:11–15 A description of the final judgment. After the intermediate reign of Christ, all the dead are raised and judged, thus inaugurating the new age.

20:12 The book of life: see note on Rev 3:5. Judged ... scrolls: see note on Rev 14:12.

20:14 Second death: see note on Rev 2:11.

21:1–22:5 A description of God's eternal kingdom in heaven under the symbols of a new heaven and a new earth; cf. Is 65:17–25; 66:22; Mt 19:28.

21:1 Sea ... no more: because as home of the dragon it was doomed to disappear; cf. Jb 7:12.

21:2 New Jerusalem ... bride: symbol of the church (Gal 4:26); see note on Rev 19:7.

21:3–4 Language taken from Ez 37:27; Is 25:8; 35:10; cf. Rev 7:17.

21:5 The one ... on the throne: God himself; cf. Rev 4:1–11.

21:6 They are accomplished: God's reign has already begun; see note on Rev 20:1–6. Alpha ... Omega: see note on Rev 1:8. Life-giving water: see note on Rev 7:17.

21:7 The victor: over the forces of evil; see the conclusions of the seven letters (Rev 2:7, 11, 17, 26; 3:5, 12, 21). He will be my son: the victorious Christian enjoys divine affiliation by adoption (Gal 4:4–7; Rom 8:14–17); see note on Rev 2:26–28.

21:8 Cowards: their conviction is so weak that they deny Christ in time of trial and become traitors. Second death: see note on Rev 2:11.

21:9–22:5 Symbolic descriptions of the new Jerusalem, the church. Most of the images are borrowed from Ez 40–48.

21:14 Courses of stones ... apostles: literally, “twelve foundations”; cf. Eph 2:19–20.

21:15–17 The city is shaped like a gigantic cube, a symbol of perfection (cf. 1 Kgs 6:19–20). The measurements of the city and its wall are multiples of the symbolic number twelve; see note on Rev 7:4–9.

21:16 Fifteen hundred miles: literally, twelve thousand stades, about 12,000 furlongs (see note on Rev 14:20); the number is symbolic: twelve (the apostles as leaders of the new Israel) multiplied by 1,000 (the immensity of Christians); cf. Introduction. In length and width and height: literally, “its length and width and height are the same.”

21:17 One hundred and forty-four cubits: the cubit was about eighteen inches in length. Standard unit of measurement the angel used: literally, “by a human measure, i.e., an angel's.”

21:18–21 The gold and precious gems symbolize the beauty and excellence of the church; cf. Ex 28:15–21; Tb 13:16–17; Is 54:11–12.

21:22 Christ is present throughout the church; hence, no temple is needed as an earthly dwelling for God; cf. Mt 18:20; 28:20; Jn 4:21.

21:23 Lamp ... Lamb: cf. Jn 8:12.

21:24–27 All men and women of good will are welcome in the church; cf. Is 60:1, 3, 5, 11. The ... book of life: see note on Rev 3:5.

22:1, 17 Life-giving water: see note on Rev 7:17.

22:4 Look upon his face: cf. Mt 5:8; 1 Cor 13:12; 1 Jn 3:2.

22:7, 14 Blessed: see note on Rev 1:3.

22:10 The appointed time: see note on Rev 1:3.

22:13 Christ applies to himself words used by God in Rev 1:8.

22:14 The city: heavenly Jerusalem; see note on Rev 21:2

22:16 The root ... of David: see note on Rev 5:5. Morning star: see note on Rev 2:26–28.

22:17 Bride: the church; see note on Rev 21:2.

22:20 Come, Lord Jesus: a liturgical refrain, similar to the Aramaic expression Marana tha —“Our Lord, come!”—in 1 Cor 16:22; cf. note there. It was a prayer for the coming of Christ in glory at the parousia; see note on Rev 1:3.

GLOSSARY

A

Abba (Aram. “father”), the word Jesus (Mk 14:36 and many other places) and, following him, the early church (Rom 8:15) used to address God.

Abaddon (Heb. “place of destruction”), the realm of the dead (Jb 26:6; Prv 15:11; Ps 88:10–12; Rev 9:11).

acrostic a literary device in which the first letter of each line of poetry occurs according to a predetermined pattern. In the poetry of the Hebrew Bible all acrostics are alphabetical the individual lines of a poem (or occasionally small groups of lines) begin with the twenty-two letters of the Hebrew alphabet in order. (This would be equivalent to the first line of an English poem beginning with A, the second with B, etc.) The acrostic form, besides giving the esthetic pleasure of a pattern, may have been intended to make memorization easier. It may also have been intended as a way of expressing completeness: in Lamentations, for instance, the acrostic format of the individual chapters might have been used to express both the completeness of the outpouring of grief and its finality. The following poems in the Bible are acrostics: Psalms 9–10; 25; 34; 37; 111; 112; 119; 145; Proverbs 31:10–31; Lamentations 1; 2; 3; 4 (ch 5 is not an acrostic, but preserves part of the form by having 22 lines, the number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet); Nahum 1:2–8 (or 9) (incomplete). In the Hebrew text of Sirach, 51:13–30 is acrostic.

Adonai (Heb. “my Lord”) a divine title and the word generally substituted for the tetragrammaton, YHWH, when the Bible is read aloud.

allegorical a method of reading a text as an allegory; explaining or interpreting elements in a narrative as if they stood for something else. Paul uses an allegorical method in Galatians 4:22–26. “Allegorical interpretation,” such as that used by Philo Judaeus to draw out the meaning of the Bible, is an effort to make an allegory out of a writing that was not originally intended to be one, but that is, in the view of the interpreter, presenting a hidden meaning that the allegorical interpretation will reveal.

allegory an extended comparison which directly describes one reality while indirectly describing something entirely different. An allegory as a narrative uses action, setting, and characters to point symbolically to something else. Biblical allegories include the “Song of the Vineyard” in Isaiah 5, in which the story of the vineyard is also the story of Judah, and the parable of the sower in Matthew 13:1–8 and 18–23. Allegory is infrequent in present-day literature, but allegorical treatments or uses of art still occur. The statue of Justice in courthouses uses allegorical elements: a beautiful woman (justice attracts us), blindfolded (justice is indifferent to external appearance), holding balancing scales (justice weighs the merits of a case in a publicly observable way) and a sword (justice can punish), all of which express our ideals of justice.

Amorites according to the Bible, one of the native nations of Canaan. Amorites are attested in other ancient Near Eastern documents from the third millennium and onwards as residents of Syria who migrated to Mesopotamia and other areas. They spoke a language related to Hebrew.

anachronism an element in a story that is out of place because it did not exist at the time of the story. Anachronisms can be valuable clues to when a particular narrative was written.

anawim the Hebrew word for “the poor,” “the afflicted,” “the meek or humble.” Often used in Psalms for the group to which the Psalmist belongs.

anoint touch or rub with oil. Both things and people can be anointed. Anointing was a sign that the person or thing was dedicated to God kings (1 Kgs 1:39) and priests (Lv 8:30) were anointed, as were the bodies of those who had died (Lk 23:56).

anthropomorphic (Gr. “human form”) language that presents God in human or human-like terms. “Your right hand, O LORD, magnificent in power, your right hand, O LORD, has shattered the enemy” (Ex 15:6).

antithesis the contrast of ideas through closely contrasted words “A mild answer calms wrath, but a harsh word stirs up anger” (Prv 15:1).

antithetic parallelism two parallel lines related to one another by opposition (e.g., Prv 10:4, “The slack hand impoverishes, but the hand of the diligent enriches”).

aphorism a short, memorable saying. Many of the Proverbs are aphorisms, as are many of Jesus’ statements.

apocalypse (Gr. apokalypsis, “removal of the veil, revelation”) a narrative literary genre in which an angel or other heavenly being communicates to a human being the divine plan for history and the arrangement of the supernatural order. Many apocalypses are a series of visions of heaven and earth that are then explained. Apocalypses are a feature of late biblical religion.

apocalyptic having the character of an apocalypse; assuming the existence of a supernatural realm closely related to the natural; maintaining the imminence of a final judgment.

Apocrypha (Gr. “hidden things”) a group of about 20 mostly Jewish works, many of which were included in the Septuagint, but which were not accepted into the Jewish canon of the Bible. All of these works are extra-canonical for Protestants; some are canonical for Roman Catholics; a few more are canonical for Orthodox Christians. See deuterocanonical.

apodictic law law stated absolutely, as in the Decalogue’s “you shall not,” rather than casuistically, “if a person ... ” See casuistic law.

apologia (Gr. “explanation”) a defense of one’s actions or beliefs, usually in a formal speech or written document.

apostasy abandoning a set of beliefs, or the position of having abandoned them.

apostle (Gr. “one who is sent”), a delegate or representative. In the New Testament, an apostle was one who had known Jesus and could witness to the resurrection (Acts 1:21–22) or a preacher of the gospel who had been called by God (1 Cor 12:28; Rom 16:7).

apostrophe an address to an absent person or personified object. There is an apostrophe to Assyria in Isaiah 10:5.

Aramaic a Semitic language used widely in Mesopotamia and the Land of Israel during the Persian period, though it developed earlier. In the mid-first millennium, it eventually replaced Akkadian as the lingua franca of the ancient near eastern world. It became the ordinary language of Jews and is the language of much rabbinic commentary. The Aramaic translation of the Bible is the Targum.

Arameans a Semitic people living in the area of Syria from the second millennium onwards. Some biblical texts suggest particular kinship between Israel and the Arameans (see esp. Dt 26:5). Damascus was their main city.

Ark (for the Torah) a box or cabinet, typically of wood, in which the Torah scrolls are stored at the front of the synagogue. It is often finely decorated, reflecting the centrality of the Torah scrolls to Judaism.

Ark of the Covenant the chest (Heb. ’aron) in the Tabernacle or Temple that contained the Pact (Heb. ’edut) (Ex 40:20), or the tablets (Dt 10:2), or that served as the throne of the LORD (1 Sm 4:4).

Armageddon the traditional site of the final battle between good and evil (Rev 16:16), possibly derived from Megiddo, a battle site in Israel’s history (Jgs 5:19; 2 Kgs 9:27).

Asherah (pl. Asherim) Canaanite goddess, wife or consort of El; her sacred symbol, a pole or tree, was the object of prophetic condemnation.

Assyria a Mesopotamian world power, in addition to Egypt and Babylonia. Its capital cities included Asshur and Nineveh. The Assyrian empire conquered the northern kingdom of Israel in 722 and exiled its people. The Assyrians were well-known for their massive building projects, and for their cruelty in war.

'atbash a form of cipher in which a word is transformed into a code by letter substitution, in which the last letter of the alphabet is substituted for the first, the next-to-last for the second, and so on: alef becomes tav, bet becomes shin, gimel becomes resh, and so on. (In English, A would become Z, B would become Y, etc.) Using this method, Jeremiah transforms Babylon into Sheshach (Jer 25:26; 51:41) “b–b–l” or bet-betlamed becomes “sh-sh-k” or shin-shin-kaf.

atonement the expiation for sin, or reparation for an injury committed against another. The Hebrew kapparah (with possible root meaning “to cover”) refers to ritual cleansing of the Temple precincts.

B

baal (Heb. “master,” “lord,” “husband”) the chief god of the Canaanite religion; the storm god.

Babylonia a Mesopotamian world power. It often competed against Assyria, which it conquered in 612 B.C. Its major city was Babylon, Akkadian for “gate of the gods.” Its main god became Marduk, and its religion and literature were extremely influential, even on its arch-rival Assyria. Babylonia destroyed the First Temple in 586, and was conquered by Cyrus the Great in 539.

Babylonian Exile the forced relocation of some of the population of Judah, perhaps the ruling portion of it, after the conquest by Babylonia in 595–586 B.C. The exile ended with the permitted return to the land under Cyrus (beginning ca. 538 B.C.).

idols) from which no benefit is permissible. See herem.

baptism ritual purification by immersion in water, a practice in use throughout the ancient Mediterranean world. New Testament baptism, based on the reported practice of John the Baptist (Mk 1:4) may have been derived from Jewish purification ritual (Lv 15:18), but Paul's connection of baptism with the death and resurrection of Christ (Rom 6:1–14) changed its meaning from purification to initiation into a new community and new identity.

basilica a church built according to an ancient Roman plan, with a rectangular nave and a semicircular apse at one end; also, a Catholic church with certain ceremonial or liturgical privileges.

B.C.E. before the Common Era, an alternative to B.C.

Bedouin an Arab nomad; in general, a member of a nomadic desert tribe.

Beelzebul (also Baalzebul, Baalzebub, Beelzebub) the ruler of the demons (Mt 12:24–27). It is based on the Hebrew Baalzebul, “lord of heaven,” a title of the Phoenician god at Ekron (2 Kgs 1:2–18), transformed (probably as a derogatory name) into Baalzebub, “lord of the flies.”

behemoth a mythical beast, sometimes identified with the hippopotamus (Jb 40:15–24) who represents violent forces in the world.

berit (Heb. “treaty”) a term that may be used of a treaty between two individuals, groups, or nations, or between God and Israel. See covenant.

Book of the Covenant see Covenant Collection.

Booths, Feast of the final harvest festival of grapes and olives, falling usually within our month of October. It was called “Booths” because the harvesters lived in the fields in makeshift tents or booths. Also called Tabernacles, Sukkoth.

C

Canaan a designation for the area roughly equivalent to the land of Israel in pre-biblical Mesopotamian and Egyptian documents. In the Bible, it most often refers to the pre-Israelite land of Israel.

canon (Gr. “measuring rod”) the rule by which something is determined to belong or not to a category. Christian tradition uses the word for the official list of the individual books that make up the Scriptures. The canon of the Catholic church is more extensive than that of the Protestant churches, but less extensive than that of the Orthodox churches.

canonical criticism the interpretation of a biblical text based upon its final form, rather than interpretation built up from viewing it as an assemblage of smaller, pre-existing units.

casemate two parallel walls, joined by short cross-walls. The small rooms, like closets, that result were sometimes used for storage and sometimes filled with rubble or earth to strengthen them.

casuistic law (also called “case law”) the form of law dealing with the treatment of specific cases. It is frequently in the form of “if/when ... then” formulae. Most ancient near eastern law collections are formulated this way.

C.E. common era; equivalent to the christological term A.D.

ceramic typology dating different levels of an archeological site by classifying the pieces of pottery found in them according to the approximate eras in which they were made.

chaos complete lack of order. In ancient Near Eastern mythology, chaos was sometimes personified as divine beings who had to be conquered by other gods to establish an orderly, habitable universe.

charisma a gift of spiritual grace, particularly a gift of one of the manifestations of the Holy Spirit in the New Testament church.

charismatic (Gr. “gifted, graced”) characterized by the ability to influence or lead others; personally magnetic; talented.

cherubim mythical, composite creatures with body parts from various animals; they often had wings and human heads. They were commonly guardians of temples and palaces in the ancient near east.

chiasm, chiasmus (from Gr. “chi,” the letter that resembles an “X”) inverting the second pair of terms in a parallel structure, so that the corresponding terms, if laid out in a square, would form an X. The resultant pattern is ABBA, ABCBA, ABCCBA, etc. “The king takes delight (A) in honest lips (B), and the man who speaks what is right (B) he loves (A)” (Prv 16:13). Chiasmus can also describe the structure of an entire passage, and it can involve several terms or parts of a passage, each of which has an analog that occurs in the reverse order of the original list of terms or sequence of parts.

Christ (Gr. “anointed”), the translation of the Hebrew mashshiach, “messiah.” In the New Testament and in general usage, Christ always refers to Jesus of Nazareth, though in contrast to New Testament usage (where it is always a title, “the anointed one”), in general use today “Christ” is simply an alternative name for Jesus.

Christian Hebraists Christian scholars, inspired by the examples of Origen and Jerome, who taught the importance of returning to the Hebrew text of the Christian Old Testament, and who therefore studied Hebrew with rabbinic scholars and influenced Christian Bible translation and commentary to rely on the Hebrew and not on the Latin Vulgate text. The beginnings of Christian Hebraism are generally traced to Andrew of St. Victor (d. 1175), a monk at the Abbey of St. Victor in Paris, where Hugh of St. Victor (d. 1141) had established a school specializing in biblical exposition. There was a significant renaissance of Christian Hebraism during the Renaissance.

chronicle an account of events in the order in which they occurred.

circumcision the removal of the foreskin of the penis. In the Bible it is a sign of entry into the covenant community, whether the circumcision is meant literally (Jos 5:5–7) or metaphorically (“uncircumcised hearts,” Lv 26:41). In the writings of Paul, “the circumcised” and “the uncircumcised” (Gal 2:7) refer to Jews and Gentiles, respectively.

citadel a stronghold or fortress, whether standing alone or serving as the inner fortification of a city.

climax (Gr. “ladder”), a series of clauses in which each succeeding clause repeats the important term from the previous clause, each clause in turn making a more important point “... affliction produces endurance, and endurance, proven character, and proven character, hope ...” (Rom 5:3–4).

Community Rule (or “Rule of the Community”) a scroll from the Dead Sea community, 1QS, that sets out the communal arrangements under which the community functioned, or at least those that they held up as an ideal holding property in common; eating, blessing, and advising one another in unity; preparing for the eschaton; and training new members of the community in their responsibilities.

concordance a word index to a given text, listing each occurrence of a given word along with a context line so that scholars may better see how a particular word is used.

concubine a woman who is the sexual partner of a man, and is legally recognized as such, but who does not have the full status of a wife.

cosmos (Gr. “order, regularity”) the created world of order, stability, relative permanence; the opposite of chaos.

Council of Trent the twenty-ninth ecumenical council of the Catholic Church (1545–1563), held after the Protestant Reformation had begun. Among other decisions, it defined the books that are included in the Catholic canon of Scripture.

covenant (Heb. berit) a treaty between God and Israel. Some covenants have specific conditions or treaty stipulations, while others are covenants of grant. The biblical notion of covenant between God and Israel, especially as it appears in Deuteronomy, may reflect a theologized reworking of treaties between Assyrian kings and their vassals.

Covenant Code another term for Covenant Collection.

cult prostitute one available for sexual intercourse with worshipers at the temple of a god. The biblical accusation (Dt 23:17–18; 1 Kgs 14:24) that non-Israelite religions have cult prostitutes may be a polemical exaggeration.

Cyrus king of Persia (559–530 B.C.). He defeated Media in 550 and conquered most of the ancient Near East, including Babylonia, allowing the Jewish exiles in Babylonia to return to the land beginning about 538.

D

D the Deuteronomic source, which covers almost the entire book of Deuteronomy (except for sections of the last few chapters).

Davidic dynasty the direct descendants of King David, who reigned in Jerusalem from the tenth century through the sixth. An attempt to reinstitute this dynasty after the return from exile was not successful.

Day of Atonement (Heb. Yom Kippur) commemorated on the tenth day of the seventh month in the fall. It was a day of fasting and abstinence, as well as performance of certain key Temple rituals (see Lv. 16).

Day of the LORD the time mentioned in many prophetic books where God appears as a warrior, sometimes fighting against Israel, sometimes against Israel's enemies. The earliest text to mention this Day is Amos 5:18.

Dead Sea Scrolls a group of manuscripts found in 1947 in caves near the Dead Sea, at wadi Qumran. The scrolls were probably the library of an Essene settlement that flourished at the site from the second century B.C. until it was destroyed by the Romans in A.D. 68. The library included Hebrew manuscripts of biblical books older than those previously known, and other scrolls regulating the life of the community that shed light on the variety of Jewish belief and practice in the time of Jesus.

defilement a state of ritual impurity caused by contact with a corpse or other impure object. Priestly literature in the Torah is especially concerned with defilement and removing defilement.

demon (Gr. daimon, "spirit") a spiritual or non-physical being, generally hostile to human beings, but in most Old Testament passages still under God's control (see Jb 1 and 2). A common Hebrew name was satan, meaning "adversary." By the time of the New Testament demons were generally regarded as hostile to God as well, and therefore evil, or the cause of bad influences—disease, mental distress—on human beings.

deuterocanon, deuterocanonical (Gr. "second canon") those books or portions of books not included in the Hebrew canon but accepted as canonical by some Christian churches (Roman Catholic and Orthodox) because they were included in the Septuagint.

Deutero-Isaiah the general term for the portion of Isaiah beginning with chapter 40. Most scholars consider Deutero-Isaiah to consist of chapters 40–55 (or 40–54). These chapters are primarily concerned with the promise of return from exile and the events leading up to the decree of Cyrus (538 B.C.) permitting the exiles to return to Judah and rebuild their city and Temple. See Trito-Isaiah.

deuteronomistic pertaining to the editor(s) of the history comprised in the books of Joshua, Judges, Samuel, and Kings, as prefaced by the book of Deuteronomy. The term is also applied to the style of these books, reflecting concern for such matters as obedience to the laws given in Deuteronomy, centralized worship in Jerusalem, and support for the Davidic dynasty.

Deuteronomistic History the account in the books Deuteronomy, Joshua, Judges, Samuel, and Kings, that portrays the history of Israel as a partial failure to keep the covenant faithfully, and the consequences of that failure in the subsequent history of the people. These books show significant theological and linguistic similarities, suggesting that they have a common editor or editors.

diatribe an argument against a position, or one critical of a person or group. Diatribe often includes an imagined dialogue between opposing viewpoints, as in the book of Job.

Didache (Gr. “teaching”) an early Christian writing, dating from around A.D. 150 but including earlier materials. It consists of moral exhortation, a manual of church order, and guidance for community life. It is valuable for providing insight into the concerns of early Christian communities. It contains material similar to that in the Pastoral Letters (1 and 2 Tm and Ti).

discernment the ability to distinguish between what is valuable and what is not, especially in the spiritual or moral realms.

doctrine (Lat. doctrina, “teaching”) the beliefs or tenets held by a particular group; Christian doctrines are rooted in the person of Christ.

documentary hypothesis a theory about the formation of the first five books of the Bible, Genesis through Deuteronomy. The hypothesis holds that there are four traditions underlying these books, naming them after a chief characteristic of each “J” or the “Yahwist” (“J” from the German spelling “Jahveh”) uses the divine name “YHWH” (the LORD) consistently and contains much of the oldest material; “E” or the “Elohist” uses the divine name “Elohim” (God) fairly consistently and contains traditions from the northern kingdom of Israel; “P” or the “Priestly” writer is concerned largely with legal codes and matters of religious practice; and “D” or the “Deuteronomist” represents the traditions gathered mostly in Deuteronomy and continued through the deuteronomistic history in Joshua, Judges, Samuel, and Kings. There have been many modifications in the documentary hypothesis, and most scholars now agree that these “documents” are much more like streams of tradition, at least partly oral, than they are like fully-conceived, written texts that could be combined in a cut-and-paste process.

doxology (Gr. “word of glory”) a prayer of praise to God, or one glorifying God.

dualism the religious view that reality consists of two basic elements, often seen as “good” and “evil.” Some dualistic thought is primarily ethical, arguing that human actions ultimately fall into one category or the other; other dualistic philosophies see good and evil as the basic constituents of the nature of the universe.

dynasty a ruling family; when a leader dies, the next leader is always chosen from among the family members.

E

E one of the four sources or traditions in the Torah, which characteristically refers to God as elohim. More recently, as scholars have examined the texts more closely, they speak of a JE tradition, since E as a separate source is difficult to isolate entirely. It may represent the traditions and practices of the inhabitants of the northern areas of Israel.

early Christian writings besides the books contained in the New Testament, many other writings from the first century or so of the Christian church are known to have survived, or are quoted or referred to by later writers. These writings include letters, gospels, narrative books like the Acts of the Apostles, apocalypses, and collections of teachings. In some cases these works provide direct evidence of teachings that were later rejected by the main body of Christians. In other cases they contain similar material, or parallel arguments, to those in parts of the New Testament, such as the instructions to local churches in the Pastoral Letters. In still other cases, they provide further examples of kinds of literature found in the New Testament.

ecclesiology the theological study of the church; the doctrines that concern the nature of the Christian community.

ecumenism (from the Greek oikoumene, “the whole inhabited world”) any attempts to deal with the relations between different Christian groups, or to think about ways in which divisions among them might be overcome. Since the Second Vatican Council (1963–65), ecumenical activity has become a major goal of the Catholic Church.

edom/Edomites the territory and people to the south of Judah, first attested in late second millennium texts. Edom is identified in Genesis 36 with Esau, Jacob's brother. The enmity between these brothers and that between Judah and Edom mirror each other.

eisegesis (Gr. "lead into"; opposed to exegesis, "lead out of") the practice of reading into the text what one desires to find there, rather than reading out of the text to determine what it actually says.

El a Canaanite deity popular in the second millennium. In the texts from Ugarit, he is a significant deity, but is often depicted as old and is largely supplanted by Baal.

Elohim the Hebrew word usually translated "God," though its plural form is sometimes translated "gods" (e.g., Gn 6:2, "sons of elohim," NAB note "sons of the gods"). It is originally a common noun (a god), though it is often used as a proper noun for The God of Israel, even though it is a plural form.

ephod two different objects are called an ephod (1) the linen apron worn by priests in the Temple; (2) a device used to divine the will of God. The second kind of ephod was carried in priestly garments, which may explain why the same word was used for both (1 Sm 2:18). "Ephod" in Judges 8:27 seems to be an idol rather than a priestly garment.

Ephraim the most important tribe of the Northern Kingdom.

Epicureans a Greek philosophical school, founded by Epicurus, who taught that human beings naturally seek pleasure, and that the best way to achieve this pursuit was in moderation, since moderation permits the longest possible life of pleasure-seeking.

Epiphanes a title, "[God] made manifest," adopted by Antiochus IV, the ruler of the part of the Greek empire that included Israel during the second century B.C. He was the king who forced pagan worship to occur in the Jerusalem Temple, thus provoking the revolt of the Maccabees.

epiphany (Gr. "manifestation, appearance") usually the appearance of a god or divine being in a form that can be seen by human beings.

epithet a word or phrase that characterizes a person or thing, and that can often be used by itself to refer to the person. The name “Maccabeus,” or “Hammer,” is an epithet of Judas, the son of Mattathias and leader of the Jewish revolt against Antiochus IV in 167 B.C.

eschatological, eschatology (Gr. eschata, “last things”) a concern with the end time, or the end of the world as we know it, whether that involves a new historical era radically discontinuous from this one, or an entirely new cosmos after the destruction of the current one.

Essenes a communal society in Judaism around the first century B.C. to the first century A.D. that kept the law with utmost rigor and lived apart in communities that were similar in some respects to later monastic groups. It is generally agreed that the Dead Sea Scrolls of Qumran were collected and preserved by an Essene community.

etiology (Gr. aition, “cause”) an explanation for a word, an event, or a natural phenomenon. An etiological story is one that posits a particular cause (not necessarily the right cause) for some event. For example, the story at the end of Genesis 32 explains why Israelites do not eat the thigh muscle.

Eucharist a ritual or service of thanksgiving, centering on the sharing of bread and wine, based on the final meal Jesus shared with his followers before his trial and crucifixion; also called Communion, the Lord’s Supper, and the Mass.

euphemism the substitution of an inoffensive word for one that is too explicit or impolite. The word “feet” in Isaiah 6:2; 7:20 (NAB “between the legs”) and possibly Ruth 3:4, 7, 8, 14 is a euphemism for “genitals.”

exhortation urging a particular course of action or behavior by argument or advice.

Exile the forced removal of a people from its land, and the community in which they lived in the foreign land. The Israelites of the northern kingdom were exiled by the Assyrians in the late eighth century, and the Judeans were exiled by the Babylonians in the early sixth century. Specifically, “the Exile” is the period from 586 to approximately 539 B.C. During this time the ruling classes of Judah were forced to leave Judah and live in Babylonia. See Babylonian Exile.

F

fable an illustrative story in which animals or plants have speaking parts. Judges 9:8–15 is a fable about the dangers of kingship in which plants speak.

Fertile Crescent the agriculturally fertile areas of Egypt, Israel, and Mesopotamia, forming a rough arc from the Nile through the coastal regions of Israel to the Tigris-Euphrates basin.

Festival of Weeks see Shavuot.

festival scrolls the five short books that are read on five holy days in the Jewish calendar Song of Songs on Passover, Ruth on Pentecost (Weeks or Shavuoth), Lamentations on 9 Ab (the date of the Temple’s destruction), Ecclesiastes on Booths (Sukkoth), and Esther on Purim.

First Temple the Temple in Jerusalem from Solomon’s time (tenth century) until the destruction of Jerusalem by the Babylonians in 586 B.C. The First Temple period extends from the tenth to sixth centuries B.C.

form criticism the interpretation of a text—a parable, a psalm, a proverb—with particular attention to the structure of the text and to the original setting of that form out of which it arose. Form criticism attempts to recover the original context, audience, or situation of a particular kind of literature, before the unit was made a part of a larger narrative such as a gospel or a historical book with its own context, audience, and situation.

Former Prophets the name in the Hebrew Bible for the first part of the longer section called “the Prophets.” The Former Prophets are Joshua, Judges, Samuel, and Kings.

fundamentalist in its narrow meaning, a conservative Protestant who holds to the five fundamentals the sole authority of Scripture; the Virgin Birth of Jesus Christ; the doctrine of the substitutionary atonement of the death of Christ; the physical, bodily resurrection of Christ; and the literal Second Coming of Christ to judge the world. In a wider sense, a fundamentalist is any rigidly conservative adherent to a belief system who regards all those outside the belief system as without hope of salvation and who treats the sacred text of the tradition as an infallible guide to belief and action.

G

Galilee the northernmost geographical area of Israel.

Gehenna the place of punishment after death (e.g., see Mt 5:22). The name means “valley of Hinnom,” a place south of Jerusalem that had been thought to be the area where children were burnt as sacrificial offerings Josiah (2 Kgs 23:10) destroyed the site, but its associations with burning and evil remained and developed into the image of burning punishment that is found in the New Testament.

genre a form of literature with particular characteristics. The detective story is a genre. Once a genre is established, the audience for it knows what to expect and can respond more easily to any given work. Biblical genres include oracles, laments, proverbs, hymns, parables, letters, gospels, and apocalypses.

gentile a non-Jew.

Gilgamesh the Babylonian and Assyrian epic, whose hero, Gilgamesh, travels the world in search of immortality. Among the characters he encounters is Utnapishtim, whose tale of the flood has parallels with the

glean to gather or collect, usually by hand, grain that is left behind by reapers. People too poor to own their own fields were permitted to glean in the fields of those better off (Lv 19:9–10; Dt 24:19–24).

gnosticism (from Gk. gnosis, “knowledge”) a philosophy that regards spirit and matter as opposites. According to gnostic teaching, human beings are spirits trapped or imprisoned in matter; the material world is an illusion or the work of an inferior, even demonic, divine being; and the purpose of life is to learn how to free oneself from material things (including the body) and attain eternal life in the spiritual realm. This is accomplished by learning specialized or secret knowledge about the nature of reality; it is from this emphasis on knowledge that gnosticism gets its name. Gnostic teachings were often in the form of secret doctrines or mysteries, and many mystery religions were gnostic. Gnosticism, though influential during the first few centuries of the Christian church’s existence, was ultimately rejected by what became the main body of Christians, and most of the gnostic writings were lost or suppressed. Because gnosticism itself did not continue as an established form of Christianity, it did not develop an “orthodox” or systematic body of thought, and most of what is attributed to it as a philosophy has had to be assembled from disparate sources that do not always agree with each other in every particular.

God, names for see Adonai, Elohim, YHWH.

Greek Bible a general term for the variety of ancient translations of the Bible into Greek in antiquity, including the Septuagint and the translations of Aquila, Symmachus, and Theodotion.

H

Hades the abode of the dead in Greek religion, used in the New Testament as the general name for the place where souls go after death (e.g., see Mt 11:23; Acts 2:27).

haggadah (poss. from Heb. huggad, “things said” or “what is told”) the nonlegal portions of the Talmud and Midrash (see halakhah). Haggadah is concerned with explicating the meaning of Scripture in the moral sense, and with elaborating on the stories in the Bible. As such, it is more akin to preaching than to legal analysis, and many haggadic collections are homiletical in character. The legal sections, called halakhah, are concerned with understanding the obligations placed on the believer by the biblical text; haggadah, by contrast, contains ethical teaching as well as illustrative narrative, prayers, legends, and folklore.

Haggadah of Pesah (“telling of Passover”) the liturgical recitation, used at the Passover seder; also the book that contains the recitation and instructions of the seder.

halakhah (Heb. “way,” from halakh “go”; pl. halakhot) the legal portions of the Talmud, or any legal ruling according to Jewish law.

hallelujah a Hebrew acclamation, “Praise Yah!” It is frequent in the Psalms.

Hammurabi Babylonian monarch (ruled 1792–1750 B.C.), responsible for the formulation of a legal collection (the Code [or Laws] of Hammurabi) that is one of the earliest collections of case law on various subjects.

Hasidic, Hasidim (Heb. Hasid, “pious one”) (1) a Jewish group in the Maccabean period, concerned with re-establishing Jewish practices in ritual and purity laws. The Hasidim supported the Maccabees for a time; they may have been the precursors of the Sadducees. (2) a renewal movement that began in the mid-eighteenth century in eastern Europe under the influence of the Baal Shem Tov (“master of the good Name”), R. Yisrael ben Eliezer (ca. 1700–1760).

Hasmonean the dynasty descended from the Maccabee brothers. It ruled Israel from 135 to 36 B.C.; the last Hasmonean was overthrown by Herod the Great.

Hasmonean Revolt the uprising led by the family of Mattathias Heshmon against the Seleucid ruler Antiochus IV Epiphanes beginning in 166 B.C., particularly by Mattathias' son Judah (or Judas) Maccabeus ("the hammer"), which succeeded in liberating Jerusalem and the surrounding territory from Seleucid rule in 164. When the Temple, which had been desecrated by Antiochus, was retaken by the Jews, it was rededicated, an event commemorated in the festival of Hanukkah ("dedication").

Hebrew Bible a term used to refer to what Christians call the (Protestant) Old Testament. Though the two terms refer to basically the same body of writings, the order of books in the Hebrew Bible (i.e., the Jewish Bible) differs from that found in the Old Testament.

Hellenism a general term for the spread of Greek culture, politics, and language around the Mediterranean in the period after the conquests of Alexander the Great (d. 323 B.C.).

herem (Heb. "ban") the total dedication of conquest to God; later, the exile or suspension of someone from the community ("excommunication").

heresy (Gr. hairesis, "choice") an opinion or belief contrary to the accepted doctrine of the Catholic Church; an unorthodox position.

Herodian followers and members of the court of Herod the Great and his sons (36 B.C. to A.D. 40).

Hexateuch (Gr. "six scrolls") a grouping of the first six books in the Bible—Genesis through Joshua—to complete the narrative with the conquest of the Land that is in Joshua. See Pentateuch, Tetrateuch.

high places shrines, usually on a hill or a raised platform, where worship, especially sacrifices, took place. Because they were outside of Jerusalem and sometimes, though not always, used for other gods, they were regularly condemned in the Deuteronomistic History, though in earlier writings, and even in the narratives in Kings, there are clear indications that sacrifice and worship took place in numerous locations throughout Israel.

higher criticism the effort to distinguish among the sources of biblical documents, and to trace them back to their origins, so far as that is possible; distinguished from textual criticism (“lower criticism”), which is concerned with establishing the most accurate text in its final form. See documentary hypothesis.

historical-critical method interpreting a text by trying to understand its original setting and audience, and what it would have meant when it was originally written or spoken. This method uses the tools of historical research to understand the conditions of the past, and critical tools to understand the traditions and developments that lie behind the surface of the text. It is also an umbrella term that includes such methods as form criticism and redaction criticism.

hortatory characteristic of writing or speech that aims at changing the behavior of the hearers or inspiring them to a particular course of action.

hosanna a Hebrew word, meaning “Save!” that was used as a cry of acclamation (Ps 118:26; Mt 21:9).

household code a list of rules or prescribed behaviors for the members of an extended family and their servants living under one roof. There are household codes in some of the New Testament letters, for instance Ephesians 5:22–6:9.

Hyksos the mostly Semitic rulers of Egypt during the period 1665–1560 B.C. (approximately).

hyperbole exaggeration for effect. “Will the LORD be pleased with thousands of rams, with myriad streams of oil?” (Mi 6:7).

hypostasis (Gr. “that which stands under,” i.e., the real nature or essence of anything; pl. hypostases) a Greek philosophical term, meaning both “essential being” or what defines a thing as a member of a class of things and “individual being” or what a thing is in itself. It was used by, among others, the neo-Platonist mystics. It refers to the three constitutive orders of reality, the One, Mind, and Soul, each of which is an hypostasis.

hyssop a shrub related to mint. It was used as a medicine and, because of its leafy branches, for ritual sprinkling of water or blood (Ex 12:22).

I

idolatry the worship of anything other than what the worshiper defines as the true God.

Idumea the Greek form of the name Edom; province in the Land during Persian, Hellenistic, and Roman times, located south of Judah (Yehud), between the Dead Sea and the Mediterranean.

Ignatius, Letters of early Christian writings of instruction. The author, Ignatius, bishop of Antioch, wrote them (seven are known to have survived) on his way to martyrdom in Rome. They are largely concerned with overcoming divisions in local churches, combating false teaching, and conducting one’s life properly. They therefore are very similar to some of the canonical New Testament letters, particularly 1 and 2 Timothy and Titus. The letters of Ignatius are addressed to the Ephesians, the Magnesians, the Trallians, the Romans, the Philadelphians, and the Smyrnians, as well as one to Polycarp, bishop of Smyrna.

inerrancy the doctrine that the biblical materials are without error. In its most expansive form, as held for instance by Protestant fundamentalists, inerrancy includes the assertion that in the original manuscripts of the biblical books, there are no errors of fact, whether theological, historical, or scientific. A more restrained version of the doctrine would claim that the Bible is an inerrant guide in matters of faith but that it may contain historical errors or assertions that cannot be reconciled with present-day science. Vatican II expressed it this way “Therefore, since everything asserted by the inspired authors or sacred writers must be held to be asserted by the Holy Spirit, it follows that the books of Scriptures must be acknowledged as teaching firmly, faithfully, and without error that truth which God wanted put into the sacred writings for the sake of our salvation” (Document on Revelation, Dei Verbum, n. 11). The final phrase, “for the sake of our salvation”—that is, not for the sake of giving us historical or scientific information—establishes the limits of inerrancy.

inspiration the belief that the words uttered by a human being are really the words of a divine being. In the ancient world, prophets and oracles were thought to be inspired. In Christian tradition, the notion of inspiration was eventually applied to the whole Bible. Inspiration in a more expanded sense speaks of an inspired tradition, in which numerous authors, anonymous contributors, editors, and others all worked together more or less consciously to create the biblical materials; in this view, God used all these people and their human traditions to express the Bible’s teachings. The Second Vatican Council affirms the inspiration of Scripture, but warns that God speaks “through men in human fashion” so that careful attention must be given “to what the sacred writers really intended” (Dogmatic Constitution on Divine Revelation, III.12).

interpolation an insertion of material into a previously existent text. In the absence of textual evidence, e.g. differing forms of a manuscript for a given text, interpolation must be inferred and is often the subject of scholarly disagreement.

interpretation There are a number of different methods of interpreting the Bible, each meant to answer different questions. In general, the purpose of interpretation is to help make the meaning of the text clear, but this sometimes means not only understanding the sentences and paragraphs that we read today, but also understanding the possible ways by which they came to be written, trying to determine the original context of the story or saying, and looking at the different stages through which a biblical text does on its way to its final form. So interpreters are interested in examining the meanings of words used in the Bible, the historical religious, or social background of a particular story or saying, the process by which a story was written down, how groups of stories were combined into a longer narrative, how different biblical writers treated the same materials, what the original audience would have gotten out of a story, how a saying was adapted to address the concerns of later readers, and many similar paths of investigation. Terms used by biblical interpreters include canonical criticism, documentary hypothesis, form criticism, redaction criticism, source criticism, synoptic problem, tradition criticism, textual criticism.

interregnum an interruption or gap between the end of one reign or dynasty and the beginning of the next.

intertextuality the interrelationship between one part of a text (or collection of texts) and other parts. Intertextuality can take the form of recurrent images (the vineyard in Is 5:1–10 and 27:2–4), quotation and/or inner biblical interpretation (Jer 25:11–12 is partly quoted in Dn 9:2 before it is reinterpreted; 1 Cor 3:20 quotes Ps 94:11), or allusion (Is 54:8 alludes to the promise made to Noah in Gn 9:11).

irony, ironic a characteristic of literature in which the reader or listener knows more than the characters about the situation in the story. A character in an ironic situation is missing a vital piece of information that is known to the audience. By extension, an ironic aspect of a story, situation, or fact is one that from the outside looks very different than it does from the inside. Irony thus becomes a rhetorical technique in which the author's plain or literal meaning (what the words mean in the dictionary sense) is different from, even in conflict with, the author's intended meaning (what the words mean in their context, with particular emphasis, etc.). Saying “My! Don’t you look lovely!” to someone dressed in old work clothes who has just finished a strenuous and messy task is an example of irony in this sense.

Isis the Egyptian mother-goddess, wife of Osiris, the god of vegetation and hence of regeneration.

Israel the name for both the kingdom of twelve tribal groups, of which David and Solomon were kings, and for the northern section of this kingdom, which split off after the death of Solomon and began a separate political existence under Jeroboam (1 Kgs 12). See Northern Kingdom, Southern Kingdom.

J

J the posited document or narrative tradition that is one of the constituent parts of the Torah (Pentateuch), according to a scholarly hypothesis codified by J. Wellhausen and subsequently developed by numerous biblical researchers. J is usually understood to be the earliest source, and is Judean; it frequently depicts God, for whom it uses the tetragrammaton (YHWH, misvocalized Jehovah, thus J), in very anthropomorphic terms.

Jerome (ca. 340–420) Christian theologian and translator. Beginning in 382, he produced a Latin version of the Bible, the Old Testament of which was based not on a previous Latin version nor on the Greek text (Septuagint) but on the Hebrew. To do this, Jerome studied Hebrew with rabbis of the time, an unusual step for a Christian. His version, which became known as the Vulgate (“common”) because it was the translation into commonly used Latin in the Western world, was completed in 405.

Jerusalem Talmud also called the Palestinian Talmud or the Talmud of the Land of Israel— none of these titles is fully accurate. This Talmud, mostly reflecting traditions of the Galilean rabbis of the third and fourth centuries A.D., is a commentary on several tractates of the Mishnah. It was ultimately seen as less authoritative than the longer, more comprehensive, and more carefully edited Babylonian Talmud. See Talmud.

Joseph and Aseneth an ancient Greek novel about Joseph's life in Egypt, his marriage to the haughty daughter of an Egyptian priest, and her conversion to faith in Joseph's God, and their triumph over a plot to kill them.

Josephus a Hellenistic Jewish historian who lived from about A.D. 37 to about A.D. 100. Four of his writings have survived: The Jewish War, an account of the rebellion against Rome in A.D. 66–70, with background information starting at about 200 B.C.; The Antiquities of the Jews, a complete history from the creation up to the point where The Jewish War begins; Against Apion, a defense of Judaism; and an autobiography, the Life. Josephus provides invaluable historical information about Judaism and its background from 200 B.C. to A.D. 100; his account of the rebellion, in which he was involved, is in part that of an eyewitness. He also provides first-hand information about the Essenes and the Pharisees, because at one time or another he was associated with both groups, as well as giving information about the Sadducees. Josephus is important to scholars in trying to understand the religious context in which Jesus lived and from which early Christianity and rabbinic Judaism developed.

Jubilee (Heb. yovel, perhaps “ram” from the sounding of the ram's horn to mark the beginning of the observance) the year of release for slaves and return of ancestral lands to their original owners (or descendants of the owners), to occur every 50 years (after seven sabbaths of years) (Lv ch 25). It is a cornerstone of Priestly ideology, but it is uncertain if it was ever practiced.

Judah the major tribal group of the southern kingdom. According to the biblical text, after the death of Solomon, the kingdom was divided into two, with Judah in the south and Israel in the north. The capital of Judah was Jerusalem.

Judea the Roman name for the area of Judah.

K

kabbalah “what is received,” that is, matter handed to one. In the twelfth century and later, however, kabbalah came to mean esoteric or in some sense mystical teaching. Kabbalah taught that God was inaccessible by direct experience and could only be apprehended through emanations of the Godhead; Torah in kabbalistic teaching had a hidden meaning, and meditation on texts was a method of ascent to a mystical vision.

kaddish (Aram. “holiness, sanctification”) prayer in praise of God that is recited at the conclusion of a principal section of the synagogue service; a special type of kaddish is also recited in memory of the deceased.

Kiddush short for kiddush ha-yom, “sanctification of the day,” both the ceremony and the prayer that proclaims the holiness of the Sabbath (or festival), recited over wine before the Sabbath (or festival) meal.

kohen (Heb. “priest”) a member of the hereditary group within the Levites, traditionally supposed to be descended from Aaron or Zadok, who alone were allowed to serve as Temple priests.

kosher (Heb. “fit” or “proper”) a general term used in post-biblical texts for dietary laws; usually applied to food, but also to other ritual objects and practices. Most dietary laws apply to meat. It may not be consumed with blood in it, certain kinds of internal fat are not to be eaten, it may not be consumed along with dairy products, and some meats (e.g., pork), sea creatures (e.g., shellfish), and “creeping things” (e.g., snails) are not permitted.

L

lament a poem of grief or mourning. See qinah meter.

Latter Prophets the canonical division of Nevi'im that includes the books of Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and the Twelve.

law the usual English translation of Hebrew torah, which more generally means “teaching, instruction.” Torah is also the name for the first five books of the Hebrew Bible, Genesis through Deuteronomy.

lectionary a list of readings of Scripture passages for Sabbaths and holy days (in Judaism) or Sundays and holy days (in Christianity). Christian lectionaries also sometimes include readings for weekdays. Lectionaries are partly designed to read certain portions of the Bible—for instance, the Torah, in Jewish lectionaries, or the first three Gospels, in Christian lectionaries—completely through, in order, over a lectionary cycle of a year or several years. In addition, in Christian lectionaries important seasons (e.g., Christmas or Easter) have their own specific readings outside the continuous readings. In the synagogue, the Torah reading is followed by what is called a Haftarah reading (haphtarah is Hebrew for “conclusion, completion”) from one of the prophets; in addition, the five festival scrolls are read on five holy days. In many Christian churches, the Gospel reading is preceded by a reading from the Hebrew Scriptures, a psalm, and a reading from elsewhere in the New Testament, usually a letter. The Gospel of John is read during Easter season.

legend, legendary a popular story, sometimes exaggerated or romanticized, about a holy or righteous person or a special place. The characters in legends can themselves be legendary, like Paul Bunyan, or they can be real historical personages about whom stories are told, like George Washington and the cherry tree. Characters that are legendary are those who are famous enough to have legends told about their exploits. Many of the stories told about Elijah and especially Elisha have legendary elements.

leviathan the monster of the sea in Canaanite mythology, who is defeated by Baal. It is sometimes identified with the crocodile (Jb 41:1) and represents the forces of watery chaos that must be overcome at creation (Ps 74:1–17) and that will be finally defeated at the end of time (Is 27:1). In the book of Revelation, the dragon, the enemy of God, is identified with the sea (17:1, 3), and in the new creation there is no more sea (21:1).

levirate marriage (from Lat. levir, “husband’s brother”) the provision that if a man died without an heir to carry on his name, his brother would marry the widow and the first son she bore would be regarded as the dead brother’s heir. This practice is dealt with in Deuteronomy 25:5–10, but it is unclear whether it was actually carried out to any extent; by rabbinic times halitzah, the ceremony that released the levir from this obligation, was preferred.

Levite (from Heb. “descendant of Levi”) originally the tribe or group from which priests were chosen; later, after the establishment of the Zadokites as priests (1 Kgs 1), a subordinate Temple servant who assisted the priests in their duties (see Ex 32:28; Nm 3:18; Ez 4:10–14).

liminal (Lat. limina, “threshold”) the term for rites or practices that governed life passages, such as entry into puberty or marriage.

literary criticism the older name for source criticism.

M

malediction curse; opposite of benediction, “blessing.”

martyr (Gr. “witness”) a person who demonstrates loyalty by remaining faithful even when being threatened with death or being killed.

Martyrdom of Isaiah a Greco-Roman, Jewish work that is the origin of the legend that Isaiah died by being sawn in two. It is alluded to in Hebrews 11:37.

Masoretic text the text of the Hebrew Bible, established by Jewish scholars (called Masoretes). (Masorah means “tradition.”) The text consists of the Hebrew consonants, vowel signs, accent markings, and other notes. Texts derived from this effort date from circa A.D. 900 to 1000. The Masoretic text is the only complete form of the Hebrew Bible that has come down to us, though individual manuscripts of books are among the Dead Sea Scrolls.

matrilineal tracing descent through female ancestors. See patrilineal.

messiah the Hebrew word for “anointed.” A king could be referred to as “the LORD’s anointed” (1 Sm 24:6); even a foreign king could be so called (Is 45:1). Later the term came to be used of the expected savior of the Jewish people and was taken over by Christians to refer to Jesus, whom they believed to be the messiah (Gr. christos, “anointed”).

Messiah (Heb. mashshiach, “anointed [one]”) a title for the king or other servant or agent of God (priest, prophet, or even non-Israelite Cyrus in Is 45:1).

metaphor a direct comparison between two things: “The LORD is my shepherd” (Ps 23:1). See simile.

metonymy a figure of speech in which a word is used in place of another word to which it is closely related. “The coastlands have seen and are afraid” (Is 41:5) means “the inhabitants of the coastlands,” that is, foreigners.

mezuzah (Heb. “doorpost”) a parchment on which are written the paragraphs of the Shema (Dt 6:4–9; 11:13–21), and on the back of which sh-d-y (“Shaddai,” “Almighty”) is written so as to be visible through a small opening in the case. Sh-d-y is interpreted as an acronym for shomer delatot Yisrael, “guardian of the doors of Israel.”

midrash, midrashic (Heb. derash “inquire”) interpretation to draw out meanings from a text that are other than, or go beyond, the “plain sense.”

Minor Prophets (so-called because compared to the Major Prophets, Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel, they are much shorter) the books from Hosea through Malachi; in the Hebrew Bible they are treated as one collection, “The Book of the Twelve.”

mitzvah (Heb. “commandment”) a religious obligation; by extension, any good deed.

Moab/Moabites the territory and inhabitants south and east of the Dead Sea.

Molech the title—“king”—of the Ammonite god. The worshipers of this god were accused of child sacrifice.

motif an image or character type that recurs throughout a literary work. The Servant motif occurs in Isaiah at 42:1–4; 49:1–6; 50:4–11; 52:13–53:12.

mystery in the New Testament, a divine truth that is kept hidden or secret by God until the right moment for it to be revealed (see Rom 16:25–26). A “mystery” in this sense is a revelation about God’s plan (Eph 1:9–10). The later, theological meaning of “mystery,” a religious teaching that is based on a revelation from God or other divine messenger, rather than on conclusions from reasoning, and that therefore can never be fully understood by reason alone, is not present in the New Testament.

mystery religion any one of various religious groups in the Greek and Roman empires that practiced secret rites of initiation. These rites often involved rituals enacting the myth of creation of other underlying teaching about the meaning of the universe according to the particular group. Mystery religions taught that the real meaning of life could not be learned without divine guidance and that such guidance was available in their secret teachings and practices. These secret rites were themselves known as “mysteries” and had the sense of a revelation from the divine realm that is similar to some of the New Testament uses of “mystery.”

myth a story that expresses a spiritual truth or basic conviction of a culture through narrative. In particular myths give explanations of origins, often through the struggles of divine beings or superhuman creatures. Because the Bible firmly maintains the teaching that there is only one God, in biblical myths the presence of multiple deities has faded out, but the titanic struggle between good and evil is still maintained, as in the story of Paradise in Genesis 2–3, or the Tower of Babel story in Genesis 11:1–9. Such stories, for example, express the impossibility of human efforts to attain the level of God. Myths are not meant to be taken literally.

N

narrative a connected, orderly account of an incident, or a longer account including many incidents. Narratives can be historical, fictional, legendary, mythical, or a combination of types.

Negev the high plateau south of the central hill country of Israel.

Neoplatonism a development of Platonism. It originated with Plotinus (ca. 204–270) and saw the universe as a series of emanations flowing out from the One, the unknowable source of all. The emanations, Mind, the realm of knowledge, and Soul, the realm of thought and activity, are called hypostases. All of existence is a balance between emanation, or movement outward, and contemplation or return, movement back toward the One. The individual's task is to return to the One by contemplation, involving a progressive detachment from the world of matter and sense and ultimately from all categories of thought until the One can be grasped in an indescribable void of thought. There may be early neoplatonic influences in the Wisdom of Solomon 7:25.

Nevi'im the Prophets, the second division of the Hebrew Scriptures.

new moon the beginning of any month in the Jewish calendar.

Northern Kingdom the political assembly of tribal groups that split off from the kingdom of Israel after Solomon's death (1 Kgs 12). This newly-formed kingdom was itself called Israel, and in some of the prophets (e.g., Hos 8:11), Ephraim, after its largest tribe.

novel a fictional work in prose. Ancient novels were often romances.

O

obelisk a four-sided stone shaft, usually tapered and topped with a pyramid, characteristic of ancient Egypt.

Old Latin the Latin translation of the Bible based on the Greek text, the Septuagint. The Old Latin version was replaced by Jerome's Latin translation, the Vulgate.

oracle a statement uttered by a prophet or other sacred person, purporting to be the words of a deity.

Oral Torah a synonym for the Mishnah and Talmud. According to traditional rabbinic belief, the Oral Law was given to Moses on Mount Sinai along with the written law, the Torah. The Oral Law was, however, as its name suggests, originally transmitted orally alongside the Torah, as the authoritative interpretation of the Torah. As a result of historical exigencies, it was committed to writing by the rabbis, in stages, in the first millennium A.D.

ordination a formal ceremony and process by which certain members of the community are set apart for religious service, for instance as priests (Lv 8:1–46).

oxymoron (Gr. “swift-slow”) combining two terms that appear contradictory. “For the foolishness of God is wiser than human wisdom, and the weakness of God is stronger than human strength” (1 Cor 1:25).

P

P the Priestly document in the Torah, comprised of both narratives and laws. It is concerned, among other things, with laws and regulations, ritual practices, the proper conduct of the Temple worship, holiness and purity, and genealogies. P may also have had a hand in the shaping or redaction of the Torah.

Palestine a name derived from the Roman designation Provincia Syria Palaestina, “Syro-Palestinian Province,” which replaced Provincia

Judaea after the revolt of A.D. 135; Palaestina was the Roman spelling of “Philistine,” and the designation was probably intended as a derogation of Jewish claims to the territory.

Palestinian Talmud the Jerusalem Talmud or Talmud Yerushalmi; see Talmud.

parable a statement or story that uses figurative or imaginative language to evoke a reality that lies beyond the literal level of the story or statement. A parable makes its point by analogy, or the comparison of a known fact, situation, or experience with one that is less familiar. The analogy is usually not made explicit; for instance, in the parable of the Prodigal Son (Lk 15:11–32) the father is meant to represent, by analogy, the merciful action of God’s forgiveness, but this is not stated. Sometimes an interpretation is added, however, as with the parable of the Sower (Mk 4:1–8, interpreted in vv. 14–20).

parallelism a characteristic feature of biblical Hebrew poetry in which the second line of a unit in some way echoes the meaning or grammatical structure of the first line. This can take the form of a repetition of the meaning, or of a statement of opposites, or of a further statement that serves to extend or modify the first line in some way. Psalms and Proverbs are largely composed in parallelistic form and demonstrate the great degree of variation that the form permits.

parousia (Gr. “coming”) the second coming of Christ; the expected return of the messiah at the end of the age or the end of the world.

Paschal pertaining to the Passover (ultimately from the Gr. pascha, derived from Heb. pesah).

Passover (Heb. pesach, prob. “protection”; others “pass over”) the name of the festival commemorating the Exodus from Egypt. The first day involves the sacrifice of the lamb, which took place on the eve of the Exodus (14 Nisan); the rest of the festival, the “festival of unleavened bread,” was probably originally a festival marking the beginning of the spring barley harvest.

Passover Haggadah, Haggadah of Pesah the “telling” of the Passover story in the context of the household liturgy of Pesah, which accompanies the ritual meal, the seder.

patriarchs the founding fathers of Israel Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

patrilineal tracing one’s descent through male ancestors. See matrilineal.

patristic writers the theologians of the early Christian centuries, from the time of the close of the New Testament period (sometime after A.D. 100) to about the fifth century. Clement, Irenaeus, Origen, and Jerome are patristic figures of importance to biblical studies.

penitential psalms Psalms 6; 32; 38; 51; 102; 130; and 143, used in Christian services of repentance from the earliest times, and by the Middle Ages in regular use during Lent.

Pentapolis the five cities of the Philistines: Ashdod, Ashkelon, Ekron, Gath, Gaza.

Pentateuch (Gr. “five scrolls”) the first five books of the Bible—Genesis through Deuteronomy—regarded as a unit after its final editing during or after the Exile. The traditional term in Judaism for this collection of books is Torah, “teaching.” Although these five books are traditionally grouped together, they contain markedly different kinds of writing—prehistory, narrative, law, ritual instruction, and so on—and scholars have investigated the materials of which they are composed. Deuteronomy is largely a separate work that was probably attached to the first four books at a later stage, leading some scholars to speak of a Tetrateuch consisting of Genesis through Numbers; and it is also the case that the actual narrative climax of the story, the conquest of the Land, is given in the book of Joshua, leading other scholars to speak of a Hexateuch consisting of Genesis through Joshua.

Pentecost (Gr. “fiftieth [day]”) the Greek name for the Jewish festival of Weeks (Shavuoth), which occurs 50 days after Passover. On the Pentecost after Jesus’ crucifixion, according to Acts chapter 2, the Holy Spirit descended on his followers and inspired them to speak in different languages.

Persian era the period of domination of the Persian empire over the Near East, beginning at around 550 B.C. when Cyrus the Great, King of Persia, defeated the Medes, and lasting until about 330 B.C., when Alexander the Great of Macedon conquered the lands surrounding the Mediterranean and brought them under Greek rule. It was during the Persian era that the Israelites were allowed to return to their land from exile (537 B.C.) and rebuild the Temple (515 B.C. or thereafter).

Persian period the era from approximately 539–333 B.C., from the time of Cyrus the Great until the Greek conquest under Alexander.

personification representing an idea, a value, or other abstract thought as a person. Wisdom is personified as a woman in Proverbs 8.

Pesach the Hebrew word usually translated “Passover.”

Pharisees a movement among Jews in the first century A.D., according to Josephus and the writings in the New Testament. The Pharisees were concerned to extend Jewish practice into all areas of life, and followed the tradition of interpretation (Oral Law) associated with the schools of Hillel and Shammai. They were thus proponents of a Jewish identity separate from the larger non-Jewish culture that surrounded Judea, but were also opponents of the more conservative Sadducees, who did not accept their traditions of oral law. See Sadducees.

Philistines a group from the “Sea Peoples,” who invaded and settled on the coastal region of Canaan. They had been repulsed from an invasion of Egypt (ca. 1190 B.C.). The five major Philistine cities (the Pentapolis) were Ashkelon, Ashdod, Ekron, Gath, and Gaza.

Philo Judaeus Hellenistic Jewish philosopher (ca. 20 B.C.-A.D. 50) of Alexandria, Egypt. Philo worked out a system that tried to interpret biblical concepts and beliefs in terms of the philosophy of Plato and his followers. In this system, God cannot be known directly, but only through intermediate beings; the soul, the higher element in the human person, is always attempting to return to God, its origin, although if this task is not far enough along at the time of the individual’s death, the soul may have to transmigrate into another body and try again. In Philo’s view, the best insights of Greek philosophy were compatible with the religion of the Hebrew Scriptures and could be found in the Bible by means of allegorical interpretation, which he used in his own interpretive works. He influenced Jewish writers like the author of the Wisdom of Solomon and Christian theologians such as Clement, Origen, and Ambrose.

Phoenicians the people who lived in the area north of Israel, in part of what is present-day Lebanon. Their chief cities were Tyre and Sidon. The Phoenicians were known throughout the eastern Mediterranean region as merchants, and for producing a reddish-purple dye, from which they apparently got their name (phoinix is the Greek word for the color of the dye).

phylacteries (Gr. phylakterion, “amulet,” from phulax, “guard”) see tefillin.

Platonism a particular philosophy derived from the teaching of Plato, saying that there is a profound difference, even an opposition, between the realm of matter and the realm of spirit, and that the world of sense experience is essentially an illusion, deriving what reality it has from a correspondence with a true, ultimately real world of Forms. The influence of Platonism on religious thought can be seen in the Wisdom of Solomon; it is also apparent in the thought of Philo Judaeus and Christian thinkers like Clement, Origen, and Augustine.

polemic, polemical (Gr. polemos, “war”) an argument or debate in the form of an attack on one’s opponent or on the opposing position. Polemical speech is characterized by verbal attacks, exaggerated language, and sometimes violent imagery.

Polycarp, Letter of an early Christian letter of instruction. it was written by Polycarp, bishop of Smyrna, and addressed to the church of Philippi. It gives advice about dealing with problems in the congregation, exhorts readers to behave in a moral fashion, and combats false teachings. It is therefore similar to many canonical New Testament writings, some of which (like the Gospels and Paul’s letters) Polycarp seems to know.

potsherd a broken piece of pottery. Examination of such pieces allows archeologists to date the different levels of a site according to the type of pottery represented at a given level.

primogeniture the social arrangement by which the eldest son inherits a father's title or the bulk of the father's property.

prophet (Gr. prophetes, "speak out" or "speak forth") the LXX translation of nabi' ("one who is called"), the standard Hebrew term for prophet. Synonyms include "seer," "man of God," and "visionary." Besides the authors of the prophetic books, Moses, Samuel, and others are called prophets. Prophets do not so much predict the future, as the current use would imply, as they speak about the situation of their own time and what it will result in if nothing changes.

Prophets, The the second division of the Hebrew Scriptures.

proverb (Heb. mashal, "comparison") a short statement of traditional wisdom, supported by long experience and expressed in memorable form. In Hebrew proverbs, generally the second line repeats or develops, sometimes by contrast, the thought of the first line. This feature is called parallelism and is common in Hebrew poetry. Proverbs are quoted in many books of the Bible, but the major collection is in the book of Proverbs. There are also proverbs in the Wisdom of Solomon and, in a longer "essay" form, in Sirach (Ecclesiasticus).

psalm (from Gr. psalmos) a song accompanied by musical instruments. In the Bible these songs cover a wide variety of styles and greatly differing content; psalms appear in many places (e.g., 1 Sm 2:1–10; Jon 2:1–9), but the principal collection of them is found in the book of Psalms. The Hebrew name for this book is Tehillim, meaning "praises," even though the majority of the psalms are not hymns of praise but spread over many other categories such as laments, prayers of thanksgiving and confidence, wisdom, and psalms of royalty.

pseudonymous written or published under a false name (e.g., Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs). Most pseudonymous writing is attributed to someone much better known than the actual writer, to give the text the benefit of the presumed authority of the famous person.

Ptolemies the rulers of Egypt and its surrounding areas after the breakup of the Greek empire of Alexander the Great, following his death.

Purim the festival that commemorates the delivery of the Jews in Persia from destruction, as recounted in the book of Esther. It is celebrated on 14 or 15 Adar.

Q

qinah meter a metrical pattern consisting of a line with three stresses followed by a line with two stresses; it is primarily used in psalms of lament or complaint, and in the book of Lamentations, though it can also express joy (Ps 65).

Qumran Community the settlement near Wadi Qumran at the Dead Sea, most likely composed of Essenes. The Qumran group was a sectarian Jewish community that kept its own practices in opposition to the established community in Jerusalem and Judea; the library of this group was discovered in 1948 and is known as the Dead Sea Scrolls.

R

rabbi (Aram. “teacher”) a Jewish religious leader who studied Torah and its associated commentaries, particularly the Talmud, and offered his own teaching based on that study.

reader-response criticism analyzing a text by looking at the relationship between the text and its reader, including the clues within the text that guide the reader in drawing meaning from it.

redaction criticism the study of how already existing textual units—narratives of incidents, laws, proverbs, or other isolatable pieces that can be disentangled by source criticism—were combined into larger texts by the activities of editors called “redactors.” Redaction criticism concentrates on the perspective of the editor, trying to deduce what editorial intentions can be understood from the way smaller units are arranged, expanded, and combined.

redactor an editor who works with already existing units to combine them into larger wholes.

resident alien a foreigner with legal rights living in Israel or an Israelite residing in the territory of another tribe.

revelation (Lat. “remove the veil,” translating Gr. apokalypsis) belief or insight granted to a human being by a deity or heavenly being.

rhetoric (Gr. rhetor, “speaker, orator”) the art or study of persuasive speech or writing.

Roman Period the period from 63 B.C. onwards, marking the beginning of Roman rule of Judea.

romance a popular storytelling technique in the ancient Mediterranean world that recounted the situation of young lovers and how they overcome obstacles to their marriage. Tobit is the purest romance in biblical literature. In early Christianity the form was modified to tell the stories of early converts and martyrs and the obstacles to their faith.

Rosh ha-Shanah (Heb. “head [i.e., beginning] of the year”) the fall New Year in the Jewish calendar, 1 Tishri. (Rosh Ha-Shanah is now observed for two days.) The beginning of the religious calendar is 1 Nisan.

sackcloth rough cloth, often made from animal hair. A garment made of sackcloth is uncomfortable and is worn to indicate penitence or grief.

sacrifice (Lat. “make holy”) the practice of giving something of value to God to show one’s devotion or commitment. In Israelite religion, sacrifice, usually of an animal or bird (though grain and wine were also offered), was carried out by the ritual destruction of part or all of it by fire on an altar; by chasing it off into the wilderness; by letting it fly away; or by pouring it out on the ground or against the side of the altar. By giving to God something of value, the offerer symbolized the bonding of self with God or the reunion with God after a sinful or unclean person received forgiveness and purification. Christianity took over this idea of sacrifice and applied it to the death of Jesus Christ, teaching that Christ's sacrifice was an atonement for human sin. In modern-day Christianity, sacrifice usually entails doing without things of value (money, material possessions, or time) by giving them away, to the church to promote its work of worship and service, to any organization engaged in the service of others, or directly to those in need.

Sadducees a movement among Jews in the first century A.D., according to Josephus and the New Testament. They held to a strict application of Torah and to maintaining Temple worship according to its mandate; to continue the Temple practices without interference, the Sadducees were apparently willing to collaborate with the occupying Roman power to some extent, including accepting Roman interference in the choice of high priest. They were opposed to the Pharisees in not accepting the traditions of oral law as a guide to Torah practices, and they were also opposed to the political activists who wished to rebel against Roman rule, fearing that any rebellion would bring an end to the limited autonomy under which they could maintain Temple worship. See Pharisees.

Samaritan Pentateuch a text of the Torah in Hebrew used by the Samaritans. This text disagrees with the Masoretic text at many points. Some of these disagreements reflect Samaritan beliefs (e.g., in the religious importance of Mt. Gerizim), but others are supported by the Dead Sea Scrolls and reflect an alternate textual tradition.

Samaritans the descendants of the population of Samaria (northern kingdom) after the invasion of that kingdom and the deportation of the inhabitants in 722 B.C. The Samaritans regard themselves as descended from the Jewish remnant after the deportation, but the returning exiles from the southern kingdom (after the Babylonian Exile) did not regard them as Jews, seeing them rather as descendants of foreigners who had been settled there after the Jewish population had been removed. Therefore, beginning with Ezra and Nehemiah, the leadership forbade intermarriage between Samaritans and Jews. The Samaritans maintained worship (with a Temple on Mt. Gerizim) and the Torah (but not the rest of the Bible), although their calendar is not the same as the Jewish calendar.

Sanhedrin (ultimately from Gr. synedria from syn- and hedra, “with seat,” i.e., “council”) the religious court, whose membership was drawn from the Jewish ruling classes, that held ruling authority over the territory of Palestine under the Roman empire. The Sanhedrin was responsible for census-taking and taxation, as well as for acting as a court that would decide cases on its own and also, after preliminary determination, send cases on to the Roman governors.

scribe in general, one who could write, especially official documents, and take down dictation for letters, legal proceedings, etc. In the New Testament, a scribe was a lawyer, one who was expert in the requirements and meaning of Jewish law.

scroll a long strip of parchment (treated leather) or papyrus (reeds split, moistened, and pressed together), on which a text was written in columns. The scroll was read by unrolling one side while rolling up the other, to expose successive columns of text.

Second Isaiah see Deutero-Isaiah.

Second Temple the Temple constructed ca. 515 B.C. by the returning exiles, and continued and expanded over the course of time, until its destruction by the Romans in A.D. 70.

sect a religious grouping that emphasizes strict adherence to particular teachings and excludes those who do not conform.

seder (Heb. “order”) the ritual meal and recitation of Passover eve. Also, the major divisions of the Mishnah (pl. sedarim).

Seleucid Empire the political entity that ruled over Syria and (at times) Judea after the death of Alexander the Great. The Seleucid ruler Antiochus IV “Epiphanes” desecrated the Temple in 167 B.C., leading to the Maccabean revolt and the rededication of the Temple in 164 B.C., an event commemorated in the festival of Hanukkah.

Seleucids (after Seleucus, the general who was the first of this ruling group) the rulers of Syria and its surrounding areas after the breakup of the Greek empire of Alexander the Great, following his death.

Septuagint the ancient Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures. The Septuagint was translated over a lengthy period beginning probably in the third century B.C. Traditionally there were 72 translators, a number that is rounded off to 70 and, in roman numerals, used as the abbreviation for this translation (LXX). The Septuagint was prepared for the use of Jews who lived outside the land of Israel and whose main language was Greek. It is important for several reasons it translated a version of the Hebrew text that is older than the currently available Hebrew (Masoretic) text (see Masoretic text); it contains additional works, the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books, most of which were originally written in Greek; and it was the Bible of early Christians and therefore represents what they thought of as Scripture.

Shabbat (Heb. “cessation”) the Sabbath day.

Shavuot the festival of “Weeks,” (also “Pentecost,” Gr. for “fiftieth” [day]) the spring harvest, occurring, according to Priestly texts, 50 days (seven full weeks) after Passover.

Shekhinah a post-biblical term for the “dwelling” or “presence” of God with Israel; by extension, the divine manifestation in the community’s life, or the sense of divine immanence within the world.

Shema the first word, used as a title, of the exhortation (Dt 6:4), “Hear, O Israel! The LORD is our God, the LORD alone!” (or, “the LORD our God, the LORD is one”); also the name of perhaps the most important and best-known prayer in Judaism, comprised of Deuteronomy 6:4–9; 11:13–21 and Numbers 15:37–41.

Sheol the underworld or abode of the dead. In the Hebrew Bible (Old Testament), all deceased descended to Sheol; there is no concept of a separate heaven and hell.

shofar the ram’s horn for ceremonial use. In ancient Israel it was sounded to announce the anointing of a king or as a summons to war or

simile a comparison, using “like” or “as” rather than, as in metaphor, linking two things directly. “[He] made my feet swift as a deer’s” (Ps 18:34).

source criticism the effort to discover the sources or documents behind a text and to explore how the sources were combined into larger units. See documentary hypothesis.

Southern Kingdom the remaining part of the undivided kingdom of Israel, after the northern tribes withdrew from Israel at Solomon’s death (1 Kgs 12). It is also called Judah.

Stoics Greek philosophers in the Hellenistic and Roman periods, who taught that emotions should be strictly controlled by reason.

Sukkot (Heb. “booths”) the autumn harvest festival (“festival of ingathering”), during which it is customary, following Leviticus 23:42–43, to dwell in temporary booths. See Tabernacles, feast of.

suzerain the lord or ruler to whom loyalty is due in a covenant relationship. (Although the term is actually Old French for “sovereign,” and originally applied to the feudal relationship of lord to peasant or subsidiary, it has been adapted for the ancient Near Eastern covenant system.)

synagogue (Gr. “coming together with”) an assembly; a congregation. For Jews who were too distant from the Temple to worship at it, and for all Jews after the final destruction of the Temple by the Romans in A.D. 70, the synagogue became the only form of worship. Services consisted of prayer, song, and study of the sacred text.

syncretism the incorporation into one religion of practices and teachings derived from another, or the effort to combine two different religious traditions into a third, composite religion.

synonymous parallelism an imprecise term used for the type of parallelism where the second line or colon of a bicolon echoes the meaning of the first in different terms, for example, Isaiah 1:3, “An ox knows its owner, and an ass its master’s manger But Israel does not know, my people has not understood.”

synoptic problem the observation that in many passages Matthew and Luke repeat with only minor changes what Mark says, yet in other passages they do not follow Mark, or include stories or sayings that Mark does not have, yet match each other very closely. (They also each include material that none of the others have, but that is not a characteristic that needs to be explained.) Many commentators, from the earliest years of Christianity, have tried to understand the relationship among the Synoptic Gospels. According to the most widely held theory, Matthew and Luke relied on Mark and on another document (now lost) that contained mostly sayings of Jesus; this second document is referred to as “Q” from the German word “Quelle,” meaning “source.” In addition, Matthew and Luke each had their own sources.

T

tabernacle the portable sanctuary used by the Israelites during their wanderings in the wilderness. Exodus chapters 25–30 contain instructions for building it; the construction is narrated in Exodus chapters 35–40. It was eventually replaced by the Temple.

Tabernacles, Feast of the final harvest festival of grapes and olives, falling within our month of October. It was also called the “Feast of Booths” because the harvesters lived in the field in makeshift tents or booths. See Sukkot.

tablet a slab, typically of clay, with a smoothed surface that can be inscribed with a text.

talion (Lat. talio, “in kind” from talis, “like,” “such like”) a punishment that is of the same kind as the crime exacting an equivalent penalty, such as an equal economic loss for theft, or death for murder, or “an eye for an eye.” Talion is well-attested in Mesopotamian law, and in some biblical legal collections.

Talmud (Heb. “teaching”) the title of the two great collections of rabbinic teaching, the Jerusalem Talmud or Talmud Yerushalmi and the Babylonian Talmud or Talmud Bavli. The Talmuds were compiled beginning after A.D. 200, as an extensive commentary on the Mishnah; they consist of comments on, and extensions of, the Mishnah sections to work out the application of Jewish teaching to everyday life, but they also include much other material, and information and teaching on a wide range of topics. The form of the Talmuds is that passages of the Mishnah are commented on by rabbinic teachings (called gemara). The Mishnah is not treated in its entirety. At the beginning of the Talmud’s formation, the two centers of rabbinic study (the land of Israel and Babylonia) were in contact with each other and the commentary therefore reflected a common effort; later, especially with the completion of the Talmud in Israel (ca. A.D. 400), the Babylonian effort continued to refine and extend the applications, and it was the Talmud developed in Babylonia (completion after A.D. 500) that was distributed worldwide, under the auspices of the academies that continued to work in Babylon until the beginning of the second millennium A.D.

tefillin small black leather boxes containing biblical passages from Exodus 13:1–10; 13:11–16 and Deuteronomy 6:4–9; 11:13–21. Two are worn during weekday morning prayer one on the head (above the space between the eyes, just below the hairline) and one on the (left) arm (see e.g., Dt 6:8). Also called “phylacteries.”

tel a mound formed by repeated construction, occupation, and destruction of buildings on a particular site.

Temple the central place of worship for Israelite religion in Jerusalem, referring either to the first Temple built by Solomon or the Second Temple of Zerubbabel that was enlarged and rebuilt by Herod the Great.

testament (Lat. testamentum, “will, covenant”; translating Gr. diatheke, “covenant”) an agreement, especially between God and human beings; also, the collections of books detailing various covenants between God and human beings the “Old Testament” or “first covenant,” that between God and Noah, Abraham, Moses, and the Israelites in general; and the “New Testament” or “new covenant” established by Jesus Christ.

Tetrateuch the first four books of the Bible, Genesis through Numbers, regarded as an edited collection to which Deuteronomy was then attached. See Pentateuch.

Text any fixed, written form of words; particularly, any writing that is subject to historical investigation, interpretation, exegesis, or homiletics.

textual criticism the effort to establish, by scholarly assessment of manuscript copies and other sources, an accurate version of a text according to what the original author had written.

theodicy the theological effort to justify the goodness of God in the face of suffering.

theophany (Gr. “appearance of god”) the temporary appearance or manifestation of a divine being in a form that can be apprehended by the human senses.

Third Isaiah see Trito-Isaiah.

Thomas, Gospel of an early collection of sayings attributed to Jesus. It contains no miracle stories and no account of Jesus’ deeds, his birth, his death, or the resurrection. Some of the sayings resemble those in the canonical Gospels, but others reflect a philosophy that regards spirit and matter as radically different and opposed to each other; in this view, life on earth is one of spirits trapped in matter, and the purpose of life is to free oneself from matter and attain eternal life in the spiritual realm. This philosophy, called gnosticism, was rejected by the main body of early Christians, and this may explain why the Gospel of Thomas was never accepted as canonical.

thresh to beat gathered stalks of grain to separate the grain from the stems and husks. See winnow. A threshing floor, a flat area used for threshing grain, was often built on a hilltop to catch the breeze necessary for winnowing. This hilltop location made a threshing floor an ideal location for holding sacrifices (1 Chr 21:18–27).

threshing floor a location where the usable portion of grain is separated from its outer covering. Grain is threshed by being beaten to crack the husks and separate the grain from the stems. It is then winnowed by being tossed in a flat basket in a breeze, allowing the husks (chaff), which are lighter, to blow away. A good location for this process is a flat area on a hilltop; this was also an ideal spot for offering sacrifice (see 1 Chr 21:18–27).

toledoth (Heb. “generations”) lists of descendants; also, histories of ancestors and their descendants.

Torah (Heb. “teaching, instruction”) the first division of the Hebrew Scriptures, consisting of Genesis through Deuteronomy. The word (and hence the title) is sometimes translated “law,” but this translation can be misleading since the full collection of books contains much more than law codes and regulations.

tradition (Lat. traditio, “what is handed on”) the means by which beliefs, customs, stories, laws, religious practices, and other cultural phenomena are handed down from one generation to the next. The Bible is in part a record of traditions, first among the Hebrew people and then among the Christians. The Bible itself was first represented in tradition in traditional stories and beliefs, in religious practices, and so on; only later was it written down and handed on in that form. The study of tradition—of how things are handed on, and how they change or stay the same during the process—is of great importance for understanding the Bible and the beliefs that are based on it.

tradition criticism the interpretation of the history of a tradition, including stages such as oral transmission, the alteration of a tradition to address a changed situation, and the examination of particular kinds of traditions, such as the explanation of place names, the development of religious practices, or the growth or disuse of social practices.

Transjordan the area to the east of the Jordan River.

transmission history an account, usually inferred, of how a text came down to the present from its originator. Steps in transmission history can include oral transmission, redaction, manuscript copying, and scribal emendation.

Trito-Isaiah the scholarly term for chs 56–66 (or 55–66) of Isaiah. These chapters are primarily concerned with the life of the returned exiles in the province of Yehud (the Persian name for Judah) after 538 B.C. Some scholars doubt the separate existence of Trito-Isaiah; others maintain that it is not the product of one author, but a collection of diverse oracles by different members of a “school of Isaiah” collected during the Persian period.

Twelve, Book of the the Hebrew Bible’s designation for the Minor Prophets.

typology (Gr. typos, the raised design on a seal for imprinting in wax, then by extension a pattern or model) understanding persons or events, especially in the New Testament, by referring them to Old Testament “types,” such as the Exodus (1 Cor 10:1–6); Solomon (Lk 11:31); or narratives like that of Jonah (Lk 11:29–30).

U

uncircumcised, the Gentiles (Rom 4:9; Gal 2:7).

unleavened bread (Heb. matzah, matzot) bread made without yeast; also the festival that follows Passover.

V

vassal the underlord in a covenant relationship, who is granted power and control over people in a particular area in return for loyalty to the suzerain.

Vatican II the Council of Catholic bishops under the leadership of Popes John XXIII and Paul VI, held 1962–1965 in the Vatican. It undertook numerous reforms, including establishing vernacular liturgies and issuing decrees on ecumenism, relations with Judaism and other religions, and the Church and the modern world. The Council also promoted the study and reading of the Scriptures and encouraged new Catholic translations and commentaries to help the understanding of nonexperts.

Vulgate (Lat., “common”) the Latin translation of the Bible begun by St. Jerome in the fourth century A.D., completed 405. Jerome translated his version directly from the Hebrew (unlike that of the previous Latin version [the “Old Latin” or “Vetus Latina”], which was translated from the Septuagint) and Greek texts and also separated the Old Testament text that was not part of the Hebrew Bible, but included in the Septuagint, into a separate section of “deuterocanonical” books. In the Middle Ages the Vulgate became the standard translation of the Bible for Western Christians. With the Protestant Reformation, its authority was questioned, but was reaffirmed by the Roman Catholic Church at the Council of Trent (1546).

W

wadi (Arabic) a stream bed or valley that is dry for part of the year; an arroyo or gulch.

Weeks, Feast of Shavuoth or Pentecost.

winnow to separate grain from its husks (called chaff) after it has been threshed. The threshed grain is placed in a wide, flat basket and tossed repeatedly into the air, allowing a breeze to blow away the lighter chaff while the grain drops back down into the basket.

wisdom literature Job, Proverbs, and Ecclesiastes in the Hebrew Bible; Sirach and Wisdom in the Septuagint; and some Psalms, for example, 37. Wisdom literature is concerned with insight, instruction, meditation of the meaning of life, and moral exhortation. It does not generally concern itself with key events in Israel’s history, such as the Exodus; central teachings, such as the covenant; or focal institutions, such as the Davidic monarchy, prophecy, or the Temple.

Writings the third division of the Hebrew Scriptures.

X

Y

Yehud designation of the province of Judea during Persian times.

YHWH the name of God, which conventionally remains unpronounced and is represented in the text by the Hebrew letters yod-he-vav-he and the vowels for the title Adonai, “my Lord.” In standard English translations, YHWH is represented by the word LORD written in capital and small capital letters. The original vocalization and meaning of this name is unknown, though it is connected to the verb h-y-h, “be” or “become,” most likely in a causitive sense, “he who causes to be.”

Yom Kippur (Heb. “day of atonement”) the solemn fast observed each year on 10 Tishri, according to the command recorded in Leviticus 23:26–32. The observance involves abstention of various kinds and focuses on personal and communal repentance (teshuvah). The prayer services begin with the evening service and continue through the next day, with a morning service, an additional service, an afternoon service, and a concluding service.

Z

Zealot a member of the Jewish revolutionary movement during the Roman occupation of Palestine; an advocate of armed resistance in Roman rule.

ziggurat a temple-tower in ancient Mesopotamia. Ziggurats are presumed to represent a mount, on the top of which the earthly and divine realms merged.

Measures of Capacity in the New Testament

GREEK	NAB	EQUIVALENCE	U.S. MEASURES	METRIC UNITS
batos	measure	(Hebrew) bat	6.073 gallons	23 liters
koros	kor	(Hebrew) kor	60.738 gallons or 6.524 bushels	230 liters

Hebrew Measures of Length

HEBREW	NAB	EQUIVALENCE	U.S. MEASURES	METRIC UNITS
'ammah	cubit	2 spans	17.49 inches	.443 meter
zeret	span	3 handbreadths	8.745 inches	.221 meter
topah, tepah	handbreadth	4 fingers	2.915 inches	.074 meter
'etsba'	finger		.728 inch	.019 meter

The cubit described in Ezekiel 40:5; 43:13 is equal to seven (not six) handbreadths, namely 20.405 inches.

Measures of Length in the New Testament

GREEK	NAB	U.S. MEASURES	METRIC UNITS
pechus	cubit	about 1.5 feet	.456 meter
orguia	fathom	about 72.44 inches	1.839 meters

Hebrew Weights

HEBREW	NAB	EQUIVALENCE	U.S. UNITS	METRIC UNITS
kikkar	talent	60 minas	75.558 pounds	34.3 kilograms
maneh	mina	50 shekels	20.148 ounces	571.2 grams
sheqel	shekel	2 bekas	176.29 grains	11.42 grams
beqa'	bekah, half a shekel	10 gerahs	88.14 grains	5.71 grams
gerah	gerah		8.81 grains	.57 gram

The practice of weighing unmarked ingots of metal used in commercial transactions prior to the invention of money explains that the names of the units of weight were used later as indications of value, and as names for monetary standards. There is, however, no direct relation between the shekel-weight and the weight of a shekel piece.
